The present edition was undertaken by a gentleman with the view of presenting the public with the Poetical Works of Burns more methodically arranged, more copiously illustrated, and less expensive in the purchase, than they have yet appeared.

In comparing it with others, it will be found to possess several advantages.

I. It contains, besides a number of other pieces, not inserted in Dr. Currie's edition, The Jolly Beggars, a cantata replete with humorous description and discrimination of character, and inferior to no poem of the same length in the English language. It likewise comprehends Holy Willie's Prayer, a piece of satire unequalled for exquisite severity, and felicitous delineation.

II. In the editions hitherto published, no regard is paid to method or classification. In this, the poems are disposed according to their respective subjects, and divided into five books.

III. Most of the poetry of Burns, though possessing an energy, a richness, and an ardour, which never fail to strike and captivate the mind, yet appears under great disadvantages to the English reader. Much of the fire, which warms and dazzles a native of Scotland, is to him necessarily lost by the obscurity of the language.
To obviate this as much as possible, a considerable number of words have been added to the Glossary, and several of the old definitions have been corrected or enlarged. A new Life, drawn up with care and fidelity, has likewise been prefixed.

Of an edition, thus enlarged and improved, it is unnecessary to say more. Should its utility be acknowledged, the editor will consider his exertions sufficiently rewarded. J. T.

There is no poet of the present age more deservedly popular than Burns. Though born in an humble station in life, he raised himself, by the mere exertions of his mind, to the highest pitch of intellectual greatness. The originality of his genius, the energy of his language, and the richness of his imagination, merited the gratitude as well as the admiration of his countrymen. But his highest efforts, in which the tide of human feeling seemed to flow in deep and exhaustless channels, failed to soften the avarice of a mean and selfish aristocracy. Like his native and lonely hills, he was subject to every blast, and exposed naked and bare to every tempest. No refreshing showers came to rest upon his head, or to pour fertility into his bosom. He was an elevated point, round which the storm clung and gathered; a prominent rock condemned by nature as it were to endure the buffettings of the surge. Yet his rude splendour remained uninjured. Amidst the bitter waters... of indigence and sorrow, of drudgery and neglect, he produced those beautiful idylliums which will ever exist for the delight of the world; and which will never be read without an expansion of the understanding and of the heart.

Robert Burns was born on the 25th of January, 1759, in a cottage near the banks of the Doon, about two miles from Ayr. The chief incidents of his life are related, by himself, in a letter to Dr. Moore. In this document, and in several passages of his correspondence, he unfolds the vicissitudes of his fortune and the peculiarities of his character with great strength and clearness. Whoever would do justice to his memory, must copy his sentiments and his language.

"For some months past," says he, "I have been rambling over the country; but I am now confined with some lingering complaints, originating, as I take it, in the stomach. To divert my spirits a little in this miserable fog of ennui, I have taken a whim to give you a history of myself. My name has made some little noise in this country; you have done me the honour to interest yourself very warmly in my behalf; and I think a faithful account of what character of a man I am, and how I came by that character, may perhaps amuse you in an idle moment. I will give you an honest narrative; though I know it will be often at my own expense; for I assure you, sir, I have, like Solomon, whose character, excepting in the trifling affair of wisdom, I sometimes think I resemble; I have, I say, like him, turned my eyes to behold madness and folly, and, like him, too, frequently shaken hands with their intoxicating friendship  After you have perused these pages, should you think them trifling and impertinent, I only beg leave to tell you, that the poor author wrote them under some twitching qualms of conscience, arising from suspicion that he was doing what he ought not to do: a predicament he has more than once been in before.

"I have not the most distant pretensions to assume that character which the pye-coated guardians of escutcheons call a gentleman. When at Edinburgh, last winter, I got acquainted in the Herald's Office, and, looking through that granary of honours, I there found almost every name in the kingdom; but for me,

My ancient but ignoble blood
Has crept through scoundrels ever since the flood.
Gules, Purpure, Argent, &c. quite disowned me.

"My father was of the north of Scotland, the son of a farmer, who rented lands of the noble Keiths of Marischal, and had the honour of sharing their fate. I do not use the word honour with any reference to political principles: loyal and disloyal, I take to be merely relative terms, in that ancient and formidable court, known in this country by the name of Club law, where the right is always with the strongest.—But those who dare welcome ruin, and shake hands with infamy, for what they sincerely believe to be the cause of their God, or their king; are, as Mark Antony says in Shakspeare of Brutus and Cassius, honourable men. I mention this circumstance, because it threw my father on the world at large.

"After many years' wanderings and sojournings, he picked up a pretty large quantity of observation and experience, to which I am indebted for most of my little pretensions to wisdom. I have met with few who understood men, their manners, and their ways, equal to him; but stubborn, ungainly integrity, and headlong, ungovernable irascibility, are disqualifying circumstances; consequently, I was born a very poor man's son. For the first six or seven years of my life, my father was gardener to a worthy gentleman of small estate, in the neighbourhood of Ayr. Had he continued in that station, I must have marched off to be one of the little underlings about a farm house: but it was his dearest wish and prayer to have it in his power to keep his children under his own eye till they could discern between good and evil; so, with the assistance of his generous master, my father ventured on a small farm on his estate. At those years I was by no means a favourite with any body. I was a good deal noted for a retentive memory, a stubborn sturdy something in my disposition, and an enthusiastic idiot piety. I say idiot piety, because I was then but a child. Though it cost the schoolmaster some thrashings, I made an excellent English scholar; and by the time I was ten or eleven years of age, I was a critic in substantives, verbs, and particles. In my infant and boyish days, too, I owed much to an old woman who resided in the family, remarkable for her ignorance, credulity and superstition. She had, I suppose, the largest collection in the country, of tales and songs concerning devils, ghosts, fairies, brownies, witches, warlocks, spunkies, kelpies, elf-candles, dead-lights, wraiths, apparitions, cantrips, giants, enchanted towers, dragons, and other trumpery. This cultivated the latent seeds of poetry; but had so strong an effect on my imagination, that to this hour, in my nocturnal rambles, I sometimes keep a sharp look-out in suspicious places; and though nobody can be more skeptical than I am in such matters, yet it often takes an effort of philosophy to shake off these idle terrors. The earliest composition that I recollect taking pleasure in, was the Vision of Mirza, and a hymn of Addison's, beginning, 'How are thy servants blest, O Lord!' I particularly remember one half stanza, which was music to my boyish ear—

For though on dreadful whiles we hung
High on the broken wave.

I met with these pieces in Mason's English Collection, one of my school books. The two first books I ever read in private, and which gave me more pleasure than any two books I ever read since, were the Life of Hannibal, and the History of Sir William Wallace. Hannibal gave my young ideas such a turn, that I used to strut in raptures up and down after the recruiting drum and bagpipe, and wish myself tall enough to be a soldier; while the story of Wallace poured a Scottish prejudice into my veins, which will boil along there till the flood-gates of life shut in eternal rest.

"Polemical divinity about this time was putting the country half mad; and I, ambitious of shining in conversation parties on Sundays, between sermons, at funerals, &c. used, a few years afterwards, to puzzle Calvinism with so much heat and indiscretion, that I raised a hue and cry of heresy against me, which has not ceased to this hour.

"My vicinity to Ayr was of some advantage to me. My social disposition, when not checked by some modifications of spirited pride, was, like our catechism-definition of infinitude, 'without bounds or limits.' I formed several connexions with other younkers who possessed superior advantages, the youngling actors, who were busy in the rehearsal of parts in which they were shortly to appear on the stage of life, where, alas! I was destined to drudge behind the scenes. It is not commonly at this green age that our gentry have a just sense of the immense distance between them and their ragged playfellows. It takes a few dashes into the world, to give the young great man that proper, decent, unnoticing disregard for the poor, insignificant, stupid devils, the mechanics and peasantry around him, who were perhaps born in the same village. My young superiors never insulted the cloutery appearance of my ploughboy carcass, the two extremes of which were often exposed to all the inclemencies of all the seasons. They would give me stray volumes of books; among them, even then, I could pick up some observations; and one, whose heart I am sure not even the Mummy Begum scenes have tainted, helped me to a little French. Parting with these my young friends and benefactors, as they occasionally went off for the East or West Indies, was often to me a sore affliction; but I was soon called to more serious evils. My father's generous master died; the farm proved a ruinous bargain; and, to clench the misfortune, we fell into the hands of a factor, who sat for the picture I have drawn of one in my tale of Twa Dogs. My father was advanced in life, when he married; he was the eldest of seven children; and he, worn out by early hardships, was unfit for labour. My father's spirit was soon irritated, but not easily broken. There was a freedom in his lease in two years more; and, to weather these two years, we retrenched our expenses. We lived very poorly; I was a dexterous ploughman, for my age; and the next eldest to me was a brother (Gilbert) who could drive the plough very well, and help me to thrash the corn. A novel writer might perhaps have viewed these scenes with some satisfaction; but so did not I: my indignation yet boils at the recollection of the factor's insolent, threatening letters, which used to set us all in tears.

"This kind of life—the cheerless gloom of a hermit, with the unceasing toil of a galley slave, brought me to my sixteenth year; a little before which period I first committed the sin of rhyme. You know our country custom of coupling a man and woman together as partners in the labours of harvest. In my fifteenth autumn my partner was a bewitching creature, a year younger than myself. My scarcity of English denies me the power of doing her justice in that language; but you know the Scottish idiom—she was a bonie, sweet, sonsie lass. In short, she, altogether unwittingly to herself, initiated me in that delicious passion, which, in spite of acid disappointment, gin-horse prudence, and book-worm philosophy, I hold to be the first of human joys, our dearest blessing here below! How she caught the contagion I cannot tell: you medical people talk much of infection from breathing the same air, the touch, &c.; but I never expressly said I loved her. Indeed I did not know myself why I liked so much to loiter behind with her, when returning in the evening from our labours; why the tones of her voice made my heart-strings thrill like an Æolian harp; and particularly why my pulse beat such a furious ratan when I looked and fingered over her little hand to pick out the cruel nettle-stings and thistles. Among her other love-inspiring qualities, she sung sweetly; and it was her favourite reel to which I attempted giving an embodied vehicle in rhyme. I was not so presumptuous as to imagine that I could make verses like printed ones, composed by men who had Greek and Latin; but my girl sung a song, which was said to be composed by a small country laird's son, on one of his father's maids, with whom he was in love! and I saw no reason why I might not rhyme as well as he; for, excepting that he could smear sheep and cast peats, his father living in the moorlands, he had no more scholarcraft than myself.

"Thus with me began love and poetry; which at times have been my only, and till within the last twelve months, have been my highest enjoyment. My father struggled on till he reached the freedom in his lease, when he entered on a larger farm about ten miles further in the country. The nature of the bargain he made was such as to throw a little ready money into his hands at the commencement of his lease, otherwise the affair would have been impracticable. For four years we lived comfortably here; but a difference commencing between him and his landlord as to terms, after three years' tossing and whirling in the vortex of litigation, my father was just saved from the horrors of a jail by a consumption, which, after two years' promises, kindly stepped in, and carried him away to 'where the wicked cease from troubling, and the weary are at rest.'

'It is during the time that we lived on this farm that my little story is most eventful. I was, at the beginning of this period, perhaps, the most ungainly, awkward boy in the parish—no solitaire was less acquainted with the ways of the world. What I knew of ancient story was gathered from Salmon's and Guthrie's geographical grammars; and the ideas I had formed of modern manners, of literature, and criticism, I got from the Spectator. These, with Pope's Works, some plays of Shakspeare, Tell and Dickson on Agriculture, The Pantheon, Locke's Essay on the Human Understanding, Stackhouse's History of the Bible, Justice's British Gardener's Directory, Bayle's Lectures, Allan Ramsay's Works, Taylor's Scripture Doctrine of Original Sin, A select collection of English Songs, and Hervey's Meditations, had formed the whole of my reading. The collection of songs was my vade mecum. I pored over them, driving my cart, or walking to labour, song by song, verse by verse; carefully noting the true tender, or sublime, from affectation and fustian. I am convinced I owe to this practice much of my critic-craft, such as it is.

"In my seventeenth year, to give my manners a brush, I went to a country dancing school. My father had an unaccountable antipathy against these meetings; and my going was, what to this moment I repent, in opposition to his wishes. My father, as I said before, was subject to strong passions; from that instance of disobedience in me he took a sort of dislike to me, which I believe was one cause of the dissipation which marked my succeeding years. I say dissipation, comparatively with the strictness, and sobriety, and regularity of Presbyterian country life; for though the Will o' Wisp meteors of thoughtless whim were almost the sole lights of my path, yet early ingrained piety and virtue kept me for several years afterwards within the line of innocence. The great misfortune of my life was to want an aim. I had felt early some stirrings of ambition, but they were the blind groppings of Homer's Cyclops round the walls of his cave. I saw my father's situation entailed upon me perpetual labour. The only two openings by which I could enter the temple of Fortune, was the gate of niggardly economy, or the path of little chicaning bargain-making. The first is so contracted an aperture, I never could squeeze myself into it—the last I always hated—there was contamination in the very entrance! Thus abandoned of aim or view in life, with a strong appetite for sociability, as well from native hilarity, as from a pride of observation and remark; a constitutional melancholy, or hypochondriasm, that made me fly to solitude; add to these incentives to social life, my reputation for bookish knowledge, a certain wild logical talent, and a strength of thought some thing like the rudiments of good sense; and it will not seem surprising that I was generally a welcome guest where I visited, or any great wonder that, always where two or three met together there was I among them.

"But far beyond all other impulses of my heart was un penchant a l'adorable moité de genre humain. My heart was completely tender, and was eternally lighted up by some goddess or other; and as in every other warfare in this world my fortune was various; sometimes I was received with favour, and sometimes I was mortified with a repulse. At the plough, scythe, or reap-hook, I feared no competitor, and thus I set absolute want at defiance; and as I never cared farther for my labours than while I was in actual exercise, I spent the evenings in the way after my own heart. A country lad seldom carries on a love adventure without an assisting confidant. I possessed a curiosity, zeal, and intrepid dexterity, that recommended me as a proper second on these occasions; and I dare say, I felt as much pleasure in being in the secret of half the loves of the parish of Tarbolton, as ever did statesmen in knowing the intrigues of half the courts of Europe. The very goose-feather in my hand seems to know instinctively the well-worn path of my imagination, the favourite theme of my song; and is with difficulty restrained from giving you a couple of paragraphs on the love adventures of my comppeers, the humble inmates of the farm-house and cottage; but the grave sons of science, ambition, or avarice, baptize these things by the name of Follies. To the sons and daughters of labour and poverty, they are matters of the most serious nature; to them the ardent hope, the stolen interview, the tender farewell, are the greatest and most delicious parts of their enjoyments.

"Another circumstance in my life, which made some alteration in my mind and manners was, that I spent my nineteenth summer on a smuggling coast, a good distance from home, at a noted school, to learn mensuration, surveying.
diarling, &c. in which I made a pretty good progress. But I made a greater progress in the knowledge of mankind. The contraband trade was at that time very successful, and it sometimes happened to me to fall in with those who carried it on. Scenes of swaggering riot and roaring dissipation were till this time new to me; but I was no enemy to social life. Here, though I learnt to fill my glass, and to mix without fear in a drunken squabble, yet I went on with a high hand with my geometry till the sun entered Virgo, a month which is always a carnival in my bosom, when a charming filette, who lived next door to the school, overset my trigonometry, and set me off at a tangent from the sphere of my studies. I, however, struggled on with my sines and co-sines for a few days more; but, stepping into the garden one charming noon to take the sun's altitude, there I met my angel,

Like Proserpine gathering flowers,
    Herself a fairer flower——
It was in vain to think of doing any more good at school. The remaining week I staid, I did nothing but craze the faculties of my soul about her, or steal out to meet her; and the two last nights of my stay in the country, had sleep been a mortal sin, the image of this modest and innocent girl had kept me guiltless.

"I returned home very considerably improved. My reading was enlarged with the very important addition of Thomson's and Shenstone's works; I had seen human nature in a new phasis; and I engaged several of my school fellows to keep up a literary correspondence with me. This improved me in composition. I had met with a collection of letters by the wits of Queen Anne's reign, and I pored over them most devoutly: I kept copies of any of my own letters that pleased me; and a comparison between them and the compositions of most of my correspondents flattered my vanity. I carried this whim so far, that though I had not three farthings' worth of business in the world, yet almost every post brought me as many letters as if I had been a broad plodding son of a day-book and leger.

"My life flowed on much in the same course till my twenty-third year. \textit{Vive l'amour, et vive la bagatelle}, were my sole principles of action. The addition of two more authors to my library gave me great pleasure: Sterne and M'Kenzie—Tristram Shandy and the Man of Feeling—were my bosom favourites. Poesy was still a darling walk for my mind; but it was only indulged in according to the humour of the hour. I had usually half a dozen or more pieces on hand; I took up one or other, as it suited the momentary tone of the mind, and dismissed the work as it bordered on fatigue. My passions, when once lighted up, raged like so many devils, till they got vent in rhyme; and then the conning over my verses, like a spell, soothed all into quiet! None of the rhymes of those days are in print, except Winter, a dirge, the eldest of my printed pieces; the Death of poor Mailie; John Barleycorn; the songs, first, second, and third.* Song second was the ebullition of that passion which ended the fore-mentioned school business.

"My twenty-third year was to me an important era. Partly through whim, and partly that I wished to set about doing something in life, I joined a flax dresser in a neighbouring town (Irvine) to learn his trade. This was an unlucky affair. My ; and to finish the whole, as we were giving a welcome carousal to the new year, the shop took fire, and burnt to ashes; and I was left, like a true poet, no' worth a sixpence.

"I was obliged to give up this scheme; the clouds of misfortune were gathering thick round my father's head, and what was worst of all, he was visibly far gone in a consumption; and, to crown my distresses, a belle fille, whom I adored, and who had pledged her soul to meet me in matrimony, jilted me with peculiar circumstances of mortification. The finishing evil that brought up the rear of this infernal file, was my constitutional melancholy, being increased to such a degree, that for three months I was in a state of mind scarcely to be envied by the hopeless wretches who have got their mittimus—'Depart from me, ye accursed!'"

"From this adventure I learned something of a town life; but the principal thing which gave my mind a turn, was a friendship I had formed with a young fellow, a very noble character, but a hapless son of misfortune. He was the son of a simple mechanic; but a great man in the neighbourhood taking him under his patronage, gave him a genteel education, with a view of bettering his situation, in life. The patron dying just as he was ready to launch out into the world, the poor fellow, in despair, went to sea; where, after a variety of good and ill fortune, a little before I was acquainted with him, he had been set on shore by an American privateer, on the wild coast of Connaught, stripped of every thing. I cannot quit this poor fellow's story without adding that he is at this time master of a large West-Indiaman belonging to the Thames.

"His mind was fraught with independence, magnanimity and every manly virtue. I loved and admired him to a degree of enthusiasm, and of course strove to imitate him. In some measure I succeeded: I had pride before, but he taught it to flow in proper channels. His knowledge of the world was vastly superior to mine, and I was all attention to learn. He was the only man I ever saw who was a greater fool than myself, where woman was the presiding star; but he spoke of illicit love with the levity of a sailor, which hitherto I had regarded with horror. Here his friendship did me mischief; and the consequence was, that soon after I resumed the plough, I wrote The Poet's Welcome.* My reading only increased, while in this town, by two stray volumes of Pamela, and one of Ferdinand Count Fathom, which gave me some idea of novels. Rhyme, except some religious pieces that are in print, I had given up: but meeting with Ferguson's Scottish Poems, I strung anew my wildly-sounding lyre with emulating vigour. When my father died, his all went among the hell-hounds that prowl in the kennel of justice! but we made a shift to collect a little money in the family amongst us, with which, to keep us together, my brother and I took a neighbouring farm. My brother wanted my hair-brained imagination, as well as my social and amorous madness; but in good sense, and every sober qualification, he was far my superior.

* This piece, we believe, was afterwards entituled Address to an 'Illegitimate Child

"I entered on the farm with a full resolution, 'Come, go to, I will be wise!' I read farming books; I calculated crops; I attended markets; and, in short, in spite of 'the devil, and the world, and the flesh,' I believe I should have been a wise man; but the first year, from unfortunately buying bad seed, the second, from a late harvest, we lost half our crops. This overset all my wisdom, and I returned, 'like the dog to his vomit, and the sow that was washed, to her wallowing in the mire.'

"I now began to be known in the neighbourhood as a maker of rhymes. The first of my poetical offspring that saw the light was a burlesque lamentation on a quarrel between two reverend Calvinists, both of them dramatis personae in my Holy Fair. I had a notion myself that the piece had some merit; but to prevent the worst, I gave a copy to a friend who was very fond of such things, and told him that I could not guess who was the author of it, but that I thought it pretty clever. With a certain description of the clergy, as well as laity, it met with a roar of applause. Holy Willie's Prayer next made its appearance, and alarmed the kirk-session so much, that they held several meetings to look over their spiritual artillery, if haply any of it might be pointed against profane rhymers. Unluckily for me, my wanderings led me, on another side, within point blank shot of their heaviest metal. This is the unfortunate story that gave rise to my printed poem, The Lament. This was a most melancholy affair, which cannot yet bear to reflect on, and had nearly given me one or two of the principal qualifications for a place among those who have lost the chart, and mistaken the reckoning of rationality.*

I gave up my part of the farm to my brother; in truth it was only nominally mine; and made what little preparation was in my power for Jamaica. But, before leaving my native country for ever, I resolved to publish my poems. I weighed my productions as impartially as was in my power: I thought they had merit; and it was a delicious idea, that I should be called a clever fellow, even though it should never reach my ears—a poor negro-driver; or perhaps a victim to that inhospitable clime, and gone to the world of spirits! I can truly say, that pauvre inconnu as I then was, I had pretty nearly as high an idea of myself and of my works, as I have at this moment, when the public has decided in their favour. It was my opinion, that the mistakes and blunders, both in a rational and religious point of view, of which we see thousands daily guilty, are owing to their ignorance of themselves. To know myself, has been all along my constant study.

* This distraction of mind arose from the misery and sorrow in which he involved Jean Armour, afterwards Mrs Burns. She was a great favourite of her father. The intimation of a marriage was the first suggestion he received of her real situation. He was in the greatest distress, and fainted away. The marriage did not appear to him to make the matter better. He expressed a wish that the agreement between them should be cancelled. This was communicated to Burns. He felt the deepest anguish of mind. He offered to stay at home, and provide for his wife and family by every exertion in his power. Even this was not approved of; and humble as Jean Armour's station was, and great though her imprudence had been, she was still thought by her parents, to look forward to a more advantageous connexion than that which now presented itself.
weighed myself alone; I balanced myself with others; I watched every means of information, to see how much ground I occupied as a man and as a poet; I studied assiduously nature's design in my formation—where the lights and shades in my character were intended. I was pretty confident my poems would meet with some applause; but, at the worst, the roar of the Atlantic would deafen the voice of censure, and the novelty of West Indian scenes make me forget neglect. I threw off six hundred copies, of which I had got subscriptions for about three hundred and fifty. My vanity was highly gratified by the reception I met with from the public; and besides, I pocketed, all expenses deducted, nearly twenty pounds. This sum came very seasonably, as I was thinking of indenting myself, for want of money, to procure my passage. As soon as I was master of nine guineas, the price of wafting me to the torrid zone, I took a steerage-passage in the first ship that was to sail from the Clyde; for Hungry ruin had me in the wind.

"I had been for some days skulking from covert to covert, under all the terrors of a jail; as some ill-advised people had uncoupled the merciless pack of the law at my heels.* I had taken the last farewell of my few friends, my chest was on the road to Greenock; I had composed the last song I should ever measure in Caledonia. The gloomy night is gathering fast—when a letter from Dr. Blacklock to a friend of mine, overthrew all my schemes, by opening new prospects to my poetic ambition. The doctor belonged to a set of critics, for whose applause I had not dared to hope. His opinion, that I would meet with encouragement in Edinburgh, for a second edition, fired me so much, that away I posted for that city, without a single acquaintance, or a single letter of introduction. The beneficial star that had so long shed its blasting influence in my zenith, for once made a revolution to the nadir; and a kind Providence placed me under the patronage of one of the noblest of men, the earl of Glencairn. Oublie moi, Grand Dieu, si jamais je l'oublie!

"I need relate no farther. At Edinburgh I was in a new world; I mingled among many classes of men, but all of them new to me, and I was all attention to 'catch' the characters and 'the manners living as they rise.' Whether I have profited, time will show."

His reception from men of letters, in general, was flattering. Dr. Robertson, Dr. Blair, Dr. Gregory, Mr. Stewart, Mr. Makenzie, and Mr. Frazer Tytler, perceived and acknowledged his talents. He was an acceptable guest in the gayest and most elevated circles, and received from female beauty and elegance, those attentions above all others most grateful to him. Among men of rank and fashion, he was particularly distinguished by James, earl of Glencairn, who introduced him to the notice and the convivial society of the Caledonian Hunt. But while he was invited into the company of men of virtue and taste, he was also seduced, by pressing solicitations, into the fellowship of those whose habits, without being extremely gross, were yet too licentious and dissolute. The festive indul gences which he enjoyed among them, gradually deprived him of his relish for the temperate and austere virtues. But whatever influence this change produced on his conduct and morals, his understanding suffered no correspondent debasement. He estimated his new friends and associates at their proper value; and manifested great discrimination in appreciating the character of those who imagined themselves men of the first order in the walks of literature and fashion.

"There are few of the sore evils under the sun," he observes, "give me more uneasiness and chagrin, than the comparison how a man of genius, nay, of avowed worth, is received everywhere, with the reception which a mere ordinary character, decorated with the trappings and futile distinctions of fortune, meets. I imagine a man of abilities, his breast glowing with honest pride, conscious that men are born equal, still giving 'honour to whom honour is due; he meets at a great man's table a squire something, or a sir somebody; he knows the noble landlord, at heart, gives the bard, or whatever he is, a share of his good wishes, beyond, perhaps, any one at the table; yet how will it mortify him to see a fellow, whose abilities would scarcely have made an eight-penny tailor, and whose heart is not worth three farthings, meet with attention and notice, that are withheld from the son of genius and poverty?"

"The noble Glencairn has wounded me to the soul here, because I dearly esteem, respect and love him. He showed so much attention—engrossing attention—one day, to the only blockhead at table (the whole company consisted of his lordship, dunderpate, and myself,) that I was within half a point of throwing down my gage of contemptuous defiance; but he shook my hand, and looked so benevolently good at parting. God bless him! though I should never see him more, I shall love him until my dying day! I am pleased to think I am so capable of the throes of gratitude, as I am miserably deficient in some other virtues.

"With Dr. Blair I am more at my ease. I never respect him with humble veneration; but when he kindly interests himself in my welfare, or still more, when he descends from his pinnacle, and meets me on equal ground in conversation, my heart overflows with what is called liking. When he neglects me for the mere carcass of greatness, or when his eye measures the difference of our points of elevation, I say to myself, with scarcely any emotion, what do I care for him or his pomp either?

"It is not easy forming an exact judgment of any one; but in my opinion, Dr. Blair is merely an astonishing proof of what industry and application can do. Natural parts like his are frequently to be met with; his vanity is proverbially known among his acquaintance; but he is justly at the head of what may be called fine writing; and a critic of the first, the very first, rank in prose; even in poetry, a bard of nature's making can only take the pas of him. He has a heart, not of the very finest water, but far from being an ordinary one. In short, he is truly a worthy and most respectable character."

The respect and sympathy of Burns dwelt with keener emotion and more intense interest on the fate of Ferguson, than on the intercourse which he held with persons of distinction. On the 6th of February, 1787, he addressed a letter to the bailies of Canongate, Edinburgh, requesting permission to erect a monument to his memory. "Gentlemen," said he, "I am sorry to be told that the remains of Robert Ferguson, the so justly celebrated poet, a man whose talents, for ages to come, will do honour to our Caledonian name, lie in your church-yard, among the ignoble dead, unnoticed and unknown. Some memorial to direct the steps of the lovers of Scottish song, when they wish to shed a tear over the narrow house of the bard who is no more, is surely a tribute due to Ferguson's memory—a tribute I wish to have the honour of paying. I petition you, then, gentlemen, to permit me to lay a simple stone over his revered ashes, to remain unalienable property to his deathless fame."

Burns, in consequence of this application, obtained leave to gratify his desire.* The inscription of the stone is as follows:

* A correspondent of Burns, in alluding to this transaction, expresses himself in this manner: "So you have obtained liberty from the magistrates to erect a stone over Ferguson's grave? I do not doubt it; such things have been, as Shakespeare says, "in the olden time;"

The poet's fate is here in emblem shown,
He ask'd for bread, and he received a stone.

It is, I believe, upon poor Butler's tomb that this is written. But how many poor brothers of Parnassus, as well as poor Butler and poor Ferguson, have asked for bread, and been served with the same sauce!

"The magistrates gave you liberty, did they? O generous magistrates! * * * * * celebrated over the three kingdoms for his public spirit, given a poor poet liberty to raise a tomb to a poor poet's memory! Must generous! * * * * * once upon a time gave that same poet the mighty sum of eighteen pence for a copy of his works. But then it must be considered
HERE LIES ROBERT FERGUSON, POET.

Born September 5th, 1751—Died 16th October, 1774

No sculptur'd marble here, nor pompous lay,
"No storied urn, nor animated bust;"
This simple stone directs pale Scotia's way
To pour her sorrows o'er her Poet's dust.

On the other side of the stone is as follows:

"By special grant of the managers to Robert Burns, who erected this stone, this burial place is to remain forever sacred to the memory of Robert Ferguson."

Shortly after paying this mark of respect to the ashes of a kindred genius, he acquired by the new edition of his poems, a sum of money more than sufficient for his present exigencies. He therefore determined to gratify a desire he had long entertained, of visiting some of the most interesting districts of his native country. For this purpose, he left Edinburgh on the sixth of May; and in the course of his journey was hospitably received at the houses of several gentlemen of worth and learning. After proceeding up the Tweed, through the counties of Roxburgh and Selkirk; penetrating into England, as far as Newcastle; and crossing the island to Carlisle, he returned through Annan and Dumfries to Ayrshire, after an absence of six months.

It will easily be conceived with what pleasure and pride he was received by his mother, his brothers and sisters. He had left them poor, and comparatively friendless; he returned to them high in public estimation and easy in his circumstances. He returned to them, unchanged that the poet was at this time absolutely starving, and besought his aid with all the earnestness of hunger; and ever and above he received a value, worth at least one-third of the value, in exchange, but which, I believe, the poet afterwards very ungraciously expended."

in his ardent affections, and ready to share with them, to the uttermost farthing, the pittance that fortune had bestowed.

Having remained with them a few days, he proceeded again to Edinburgh, and immediately set out on a tour to the highlands: from this journey he returned to his relations in his native country, renewing his friendships and extending his acquaintance.

In August, he made another visit to Edinburgh, whence he travelled in company with Mr. Adair through Linlithgow, Carron, Stirling, the vale of Devon, and Harvieston. In a visit to Mrs. Bruce of Clackmanan, a lady above ninety, the lineal descendant of that race which gave the Scottish throne its brightest ornament, his feelings were powerfully interested. Though almost deprived of speech by a paralytic affection, she preserved her hospitality and urbanity. She was in possession of the helmet and two-handed sword of her great ancestor, with which she conferred on her two visitors the honour of knighthood, remarking, that she had a better right to confer that title than some people.

At Dunfermline they visited the ruined abbey, and the abbey-church, now consecrated to Presbyterian worship. Here Mr. Adair mounted the cutty-stool, or stool of repentance, assuming the character of a penitent for fornication; while Burns, from the pulpit, addressed to him a ludicrous reproof and exhortation, parodied from that which had been delivered to himself in Ayrshire, where he had once been one of seven who mounted the seat of shame together.

In the church-yard two broad flag-stones marked the grave of Robert Bruce, for whose memory Burns had a more than a common veneration. He knelt and kissed the stone with sacred fervour, and heartily (suus ut mos erat) execrated the worse than Gothic neglect of the first of Scottish heroes. He afterwards returned, with Mr. Adair, to Edinburgh by Kinross, (on the shore of Lochleven) and Queen's ferry.

These journeys, however, did not satisfy the curiosity of Burns. About the beginning of September, he again set out from the metropolis on a more extended tour to the highlands, in company with Mr. Nicol, assistant teacher in the high school. After passing through the heart of that mountainous division of their native country, they stretched northwards about ten miles beyond Inverness. There they bent their course eastward, across the island, and returned by the shore of the German sea, to Edinburgh. In the course of this journey, they visited a number of remarkable scenes; and the imagination of Burns was constantly excited by the wild and sublime scenery through which he passed.

Having settled with his publisher, in February, 1788, he found himself master of nearly five hundred pounds, after discharging all his expenses. To his brother Gilbert, who had taken upon him the support of their aged mother, and was struggling with many difficulties in the farm of Mossgiel, he immediately advanced two hundred pounds. With the remainder he resolved on settling himself for life in the occupation of agriculture, and took the farm of Ellisland, on the banks of the Nith, six miles above Dumfries, on which he entered at Whitsunday.

When he had in this manner arranged his plans for futurity, his generous heart turned to the object of his attachment; and listening to no considerations but those of honour and affection, he led her to the altar, and joined with her in a public declaration of marriage. His notice of this event to Mrs. Dunlop, is truly honourable to his feelings. "When Jean found herself," says he, "as women wish to be who love their lords," as I loved her nearly to distraction, we took steps for a private marriage. Her parents got the hint; and not only forbade me her company and the house, but on my rumoured West Indian voyage got a warrant to put me in jail till I should find security in my about-to-be paternal relation. You know my lucky reverse of fortune. On my elatant return to Mauchline, I was made very welcome to visit my girl. The usual consequences began to betray her; and as I was at that time laid up a cripple in Edinburgh, she was turned—literally turned out of doors; and I wrote to a friend to shelter her till my return, when our marriage was declared. Her happiness or misery was in my hands; and who could trifle with such a deposit!"

He now engaged in rebuilding the dwelling house on his farm, which, in the state he found it, was inadequate to the accommodation of his family. On this occasion he resumed at times the occupation of a labourer, and found neither his strength nor his skill impaired. Pleased with surveying the grounds he was about to cultivate, and with rearing a habitation that might give shelter to his wife and children, and, as he fondly hoped, to his own gray hairs, sentiments of independence buoyed up his mind; pictures of domestic content and peace rose on his imagination; and a few days passed away, the most tranquil, and perhaps the happiest he had ever experienced.

His industry, however, was frequently interrupted by visiting his family in Ayrshire, and as the distance was too great for a single day's journey, he generally spent a night at an inn on the road. On such occasions he sometimes fell into company, and was drawn into irregular and intemperate habits. His appointment in the excise, which was completed in autumn 1789, likewise obstructed his agricultural pursuits. He was unable to reconcile the business of the two occupations. His farm was in a great measure abandoned to his servants, while he was engaged in performing his official duties. He might be seen, now and then, in the spring, directing his plough, a labour in which he excelled, or with a white sheet, containing his seed-corn, slung across his shoulders, striding with measured steps along his turned-up furrows, and scattering the grain in the earth. But his farm no longer occupied the principal part of his thoughts. It was not at Ellisland that he was now in general to be found. Mounted on horseback, this high-minded poet was pursuing the defaulters of the revenue, among the hills and vales of Nithsdale, his roving eye wandering over the charms of nature, and muttering his wayward fancies as he moved along.

Besides his duties in the excise, other circumstances interfered with his attention to his farm. He engaged in the formation and management of a society for purchasing and circulating books among the farmers of his neighbourhood; and occasionally occupied himself in composing songs for the musical work of Mr. Johnson, then in the course of publication. These engagements, though useful and honourable, necessarily contributed to the abstraction of his thoughts, and the neglect of his rural affairs.

The consequences may easily be imagined. Notwithstanding the prudence and good management of Mrs. Burns, he found it necessary, after the expiration of three years and a half, to relinquish his lease. His employment in the excise originally produced fifty pounds per annum. He was now appointed to a new district, the emoluments of which rose to about seventy. Hoping to support himself and his family on this humble income till promotion should reach him, he removed to a small house in Dumfries about the end of the year 1791.

His great celebrity made him an object of interest and curiosity to strangers, and few persons passed through Dumfries without an attempt to see him, and to enjoy the pleasure of his conversation. As he could not receive them conveniently at home, these interviews passed at the inns of the town, and often terminated in convivial excesses. Among the inhabitants also, there were never wanting persons to lead or accompany him to the tavern; to applaud the sallies of his wit; and to witness at once the strength and the degradation of his genius.

In the four years that he lived in Dumfries, he produced many of his beautiful lyrics; and cheerfully consented to give his aid to a collection of original Scottish airs and verses, projected by George Thomson of Edinburgh. During this time he made several excursions into the neighbouring country. In one of these he passed through Glendewynnes, a beautiful situation on the banks of the Dee, in company with Mr. Syme, and reached Kenmore, where they remained three days at the seat of Mr. Gordon. On leaving Kenmore for Gatehouse, they took the moor-road, where every thing presented a wild and desolate aspect. The sky appeared to sympathize with the dreariness of the soil. It became lowering and dark. Gleams of sheeted lightning were followed by the awful rolling of thunder. Burns spoke not a word, but seemed wrapped in meditation. In a little while the rain began to fall; and for three hours it poured in torrents on the waste. In the midst of this storm, though drenched as it were by the embattled elements, he remained absorbed in thought, wholly inattentive to the descending floods. He was equally regardless of every thing around him during his ride home from St. Mary's isle; and his companion did not venture to disturb him. Next day he produced the celebrated martial hymn, entitled Robert Bruce's Address to his Army, a hymn unparalleled in the annals of modern poetry, and equal to the happiest efforts of the greatest geniuses of antiquity.

Burns had entertained hopes of promotion in the excise; but circumstances occurred which prevented their fulfilment. The events of the French revolution, which interested the feelings of every thinking mind, were commented on by Burns in a manner very different from what might have been expected from an officer under government. Information of his sentiments were given to the board of excise; an inquiry was instituted into his conduct; and, after being reprimanded, he was suffered to retain his situation.

This circumstance made a deep impression on his mind. Fame exaggerated his misfortune, and represented him as actually dismissed from his office; and this report induced gentlemen of much respectability to propose a subscription in his favour. But he refused the offer with great elevation of sentiment, and nobly defended himself against the imputation of having made submission for the sake of his office, unworthy of his character.

"The partiality of my countrymen," he observes, "has brought me forward as a man of genius, and has given me a character to support. In the poet I have avowed manly and independent sentiments, which I hope have been found in the man. Reasons of no less weight than the support of a wife and children, have pointed my present occupation as the only eligible line of life within my reach. Still my honest fame is my dearest concern, and a thousand times have I trembled at the idea of the degrading epithets that malice or misrepresentation may affix to my name. Often, in blasting anticipation, have I listened to some future hackney scribbler, with the heavy malice of savage stupidity, exultingly asserting, that Burns, notwithstanding the fan-faronade of independence to be found in his works, and after being held up to public view, and to public estimation, as a man of some genius, yet, quite destitute of resources within himself to support his borrowed dignity, dwindled into a paltry exciseman, and slunk out the rest of his insignificant existence in the meanest of pursuits and among the lowest of mankind.

"In your illustrious hands, sir, permit me to lodge my strong disavowal and defiance of such slanderous falsehoods. Burns was a poor man
LIFE OF BURNS.

FROM HIS BIRTH, AND AN EXCISEMAN BY NECESSITY; BUT—I WILL SAY IT!—THE STERLING OF HIS HONEST WORTH, POVERTY COULD NOT DEBASE, AND HIS INDEPENDENT BRITISH SPIRIT, OPPRESSION MIGHT BEND, BUT COULD NOT SUBDUE."

It was one of the last acts of his life to copy this heart-rending letter into a book which he kept for the purpose of recording such circumstances as he thought worthy of preservation. Upwards of a year before his death there was an evident decline in his personal appearance; and though his appetite continued unimpaired, he was himself sensible that his constitution was sinking. From October, 1795, to the January following, an accidental complaint confined him to the house. A few days after he began to go abroad, he dined at a tavern, and returned home about three o'clock in a very cold morning, benumbed and intoxicated. This was followed by an attack of rheumatism, which confined him about a week. His appetite began to fail, his hand shook, and his voice faltered on any exertion or emotion, his pulse became weaker and more rapid, and pain in the larger joints, and in the hands and feet, deprived him of sleep. In the month of June, 1796, he removed to Brow in Annandale, about ten miles from Dumfries, to try the effects of sea-bathing. Here he was invited to dinner by a lady in the neighbourhood; and as he was unable to walk, she sent her carriage for him to the cottage where he lodged. As he entered her apartment the stamp of death seemed imprinted on his features. He appeared already touching the brink of eternity. His first salutation was, "Well, madam, have you any commands for the other world?" He ate little, and complained of having entirely lost the tone of his stomach. He spoke of his death without any of the ostentation of philosophy, but with firmness and feeling, as an event likely to happen very soon. His anxiety for his family hung heavy upon him; and when he alluded to their approaching desolation, his heart was touched with pure and unmingled sorrow.

At first he imagined that bathing in the sea had been of benefit to him; the pains in his limbs were relieved; but this was immediately followed by a new attack of fever. When brought back to his own house in Dumfries, on the 18th of July, he was no longer able to stand upright. A tremor pervaded his frame; his tongue was parched, and his mind fell into a delirium, when not roused by conversation. On the second and third day the fever increased, and his strength diminished. On the fourth, the sufferings of this great, but ill-fated genius, were terminated; and a life was closed, which had been embittered by suffering, and insulted by unmerited calumny.

When his death was known, it excited a deep and mournful sensation. It was felt as a loss which no earthly power could replace; as the extinction of a prodigy whose appearance was rare and uncertain. He was lamented, not merely like a common individual, by friends and neighbours, but by a whole country, whose pleasures he had an exclusive capacity to augment.

He left a widow and four sons. The ceremonial of his interment was accompanied with military honours, not only by the corps of Dumfries volunteers, of which he was a member, but by the Fencible infantry, and a regiment of Cinque Port cavalry then quartered in Dumfries. On the same day, by a coincidence singularly touching, Mrs. Burns was delivered of a son, who did not long survive his father.

Burns was nearly five feet ten inches in height, and of a form that indicated agility as well as strength. His well raised forehead, shaded with black curling hair, expressed uncommon capacity. His eyes were large, dark, full of ardour and animation. His face was well formed, and his countenance strikingly interesting.

Of his general behaviour every one spoke in the highest terms. It usually bespoke a mind conscious of superior talents, not however unmixed with the affections which beget familiarity and affability. His conversation was extremely fascinating; rich in wit, humour, whim, and occasionally in serious and opposite reflection. No man had a quicker apprehension of right and wrong, or a stronger sense of what was ridiculous and mean. Neither chicanery nor sordidness ever appeared in his conduct. Even in the midst of distress, while his feeling heart sunk under the secret consciousness of indigence, and the apprehensions of absolute want, he bore himself loftily to the world. He died in the utmost penury, but not in debt; and left behind him a name which will be remembered as long as departed worth and goodness are esteemed among men.

After contemplating the melancholy story of his life, it is impossible not to heave a sigh at the asperity of his fortune, while we reprobate the conduct of those who drew him from the simplicity of humble life, and left him a prey to anxiety and want, to sorrow and despair.

Of his poems which have been so often printed and so eagerly read, it is unnecessary to enter into a critical examination. All readers of taste and sensibility assign him the first place among the poets of his country; and acknowledge the presence of that "light from heaven," which consecrates and eternizes every monument of genius.
GLOSSARY.

The \( ch \) and \( gh \) have always the guttural sound. The sound of the English diphthong \( oo \), is commonly spelled \( ou \). The French \( u \), a sound which often occurs in the Scottish language, is marked \( oo \), or \( ui \). The \( a \) in genuine Scottish words, except when forming a diphthong, or followed by an \( e \) mute after a single consonant, sounds generally like the broad English \( a \) in \textit{wall}. The Scottish diphthongs \( ae \) always, and \( ea \) very often, sound like the French \( e \) masculine. The Scottish diphthongs \( ey \), sounds like the Latin \( ei \).

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION.

The following trifles are not the production of the poet, who, with all the advantages of learned art, and perhaps amid the elegances and idleness of upper life, looks down for a rural theme, with an eye to Theocritus or Virgil. To the author of this, these and other celebrated names, their countrymen, are, at least in their original language, a fountain shut up, and a book sealed. Unacquainted with the necessary requisites for commencing poet by rule, he sings the sentiments and manners he felt and saw in himself, and his rustic comppeers around him, in his and their native language. Though a rhymer from his earliest years, at least from the earliest impulses of the softer passions, it was not till very lately that the applause, perhaps the partiality of friendship, wakened his vanity so far as to make him think any thing of his worth showing; and none of the following works were composed with a view to the press. To amuse himself with the little creations of his own fancy, amid the toil and fatigues of a laborious life; to transcribe the various feelings, the loves, the griefs, the hopes, the fears, in his own breast; to find some kind of counterpoise to the struggles of a world, always an alien scene, a task uncouth to the poetical mind—these were his motives for courting the muses, and in these he found Poetry to be its own reward.
Now that he appears in the public character of an author, he does it with fear and trembling. So dear is fame to the rhyming tribe, that even he, an obscure, nameless bard, shrinks aghast at the thought of being branded as—an impertinent blockhead, obtruding his nonsense on the world; and, because he can make a shift to jingle a few doggerel Scotch rhymes together, looking upon himself as a poet of no small consequence forsooth.

It is an observation of that celebrated poet, Shenstone, whose divine elegies do honour to our language, our nation, and our species, that "Humility has depressed many a genius to a hermit, but never raised one to fame!" If any critic catches at the word Genius, the author tells him, once for all, that he certainly looks upon himself as possessed of some poetic abilities, otherwise his publishing in the manner he has done, would be a maneuvre below the worst character which, he hopes, his worst enemy will ever give him. But to the genius of a Ramsay, or the glorious dawning of the poor, unfortunate Ferguson, he, with equal unaffected sincerity, declares, that even in his highest pulse of vanity, he has not the most distant pretensions. These two justly admired Scotch poets he has often had in his eye in the following pieces; but rather with a view to kindle at their flame, than for servile imitation.

To his subscribers, the author returns his most sincere thanks—not the mercenary bow over a counter, but the heart-throbbing gratitude of the bard, conscious how much he owes to benevolence and friendship, for gratifying him, if he deserves it, in that dearest wish of every poetic bosom—to be distinguished. He begs his readers, particularly the learned and the polite, who may honour him with a perusal, that they will make every allowance for education and circumstances of life; but, if, after a fair, candid, and impartial criticism, he shall stand convicted of dulness and nonsense, let him be done by as he would in that case do by others—let him be condemned, without mercy, to contempt and oblivion.
DEDICATION

TO THE SECOND EDITION.

TO THE NOBLEMEN AND GENTLEMEN OF THE CALEDONIAN HUNT.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

A Scottish bard, proud of the name, and whose highest ambition is to sing in his Country's service—where shall he so properly look for patronage as to the illustrious names of his native Land; those who bear the honours and inherit the virtues of their Ancestors? The Poetic Genius of my Country found me, as the prophetic bard Elijah did Elisha—at the Plough; and threw her inspiring Mantle over me. She bade me sing the loves, the joys, the rural scenes and rural pleasures of my native soil, in my native tongue; I tuned my wild, artless notes, as she inspired. She whispered me to come to this ancient Metropolis of Caledonia, and lay my songs under your honoured protection.

Though much indebted to your goodness, I do not approach you, my Lords and Gentlemen, in the usual style of dedication, to thank you for past favours. That path is so hackneyed by prostituted learning, that honest rusticity is ashamed of it. Nor do I present this address with the venal soul of a servile Author, looking for a continuation of those favours: I was bred...

to the Plough, and am independent. I come to claim the common Scottish name with you, my illustrious countrymen; and to tell the world that I glory in the title. I come to congratulate my Country that the blood of her ancient heroes still runs uncontaminated; and that from your courage, knowledge, and public spirit, she may expect protection, wealth and liberty. In the last place, I come to proffer my warmest wishes to the great Fountain of honour, the Monarch of the Universe, for your welfare and happiness. When you go forth to waken the Echoes, in the ancient and favourite amusement of your forefathers, may Pleasure ever be of your party; and may social Joy await your return! When harassed in courts or camps with the jostlings of bad men and bad measures, may the honest consciousness of injured worth attend your return to your native Seats; and may domestic Happiness, with a smiling welcome, meet you at your gates! May corruption shrink at your kindling, indignant glance; and may tyranny in the Ruler, and licentiousness in the People, equally find you an inexorable foe!

I have the honour to be, With the sincerest gratitude, And highest respect, My Lords and Gentlemen, Your most devoted humble Servant, ROBERT BURNS.

Book I.
MORAL, RELIGIOUS, AND PRECEPTIVE.

THE TWA DOGS
A TALE.

'Twas in that place o' Scotland's isle,
That bears the name o' Auld King Coil,
Upon a bonie day in June,
When wearin' thro' the afternoon,
Twa dogs that were na thrang at hame,
Forgather'd ance upon a time.

The first I'll name, they ca'd him Caesar,
Was keepit for his Honour's pleasure;
His hair, his size, his mouth, his lugs,
Show'd he was nane o' Scotland's dogs;
But whalpit some place far abroad,
Where sailors gang to fish for cod.

His locked, letter'd, braw brass collar,
Show'd him the gentleman and scholar;
But tho' he was o' high degree,
The fient a pride nane pride had he;
But wad hae spent an hour caressin',
Ev'n wi' a tinkler-gipsey's messin':
At kirk or market, mill or smiddie,
Nae taunted tyke, tho' 'er she duddie,
But he wad stan't, as glad to see him,
And streen't on stanes an' hillocks wi' him.
The title was a ploughman's collic;
A rhyming, ranting, raving billie,
Wha for his friend an' comrade had him,
And in his freaks had Luath ca'd him,
After some dog in Highland sang,*
Was made lang sync—Lord knows how lang

He was a gosh an' faithfu' tyke,
As ever hap a sheugh or dyke,
His honest, sonsie, baw'nt face,
Ay'gat him friends in ilka place.
His breast was white, his touzie back
Weel clad wi' coat o' glossy black;
His gawcie tail, wi' upward curl,
Hang o'er his hurdles wi' a swirll.

Nae doubt but they were fain o' ither,
An' unco pack an' thick thegither ;
Wi' social nose whytes smuff'd and snowkit,
Whyles mice and mowdeworts they howkit
Whyles scour'd awa in-lang excursion,
An' worry'd ither in diversion;
Until wi' daftin weary grown,
Upon an' kno've they set them down;
And there began a lang digression
About the Lords o' the Creation.

CAESAR.
I've aften wondered, honest Luath,
What sort o' life poor dogs like you have;
An' when the gentry's life I saw,
What way poor bodies liv'd awa.'

Our Laird gets in his racked rents,
His coals, his kain, and a' his stents.
He rises when he likes himself;
His flunkies answer at the bell;
He ca's his coach, he ca's his horse;
He draws a bonie silken purse
As lang's ny tail, where, thro' the stecks,
The yellow-letter'd Geordie keeks.

Frae morn to e'en it's nought but toiling,
At baking, roasting, frying, boiling;
An' tho' the gentry first are stechin,
Yet e'en the ha' folk fill their pechin
Wi' sauce, ragouts, and sic like trashtrie,
That's little short o' downright wastrie.

* Cuthullin's dog in Ossian's Fingal.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Our Whipper-in, wee blastit wonner,
Poor worthless elf, it eats a dinner,
Better than ony tenant man
His Honour has in a' the lan':
An' what poor cot-folk pit their painch in,
I own its past my comprehension.

LUATH.

Trowth, Caesar, whyles they're fasht enough;
A cotter howkin in a shenagh,
Wi' dirty stanes begin a dyke,
Boring a quarry, and sic like.
Himself, a wife, he thus sustains,
An' nought but his hand darg, to keep
Them right and tight in thack an' rape.

As when they meet with sair disasters,
Like loss o' health, or want o' masters,
Ye maist wad think, a wee touch lauger,
An' they maun starve o' cauld an' hunger:
But, how it comes, I never kenn'd yet,
They're maistly wonderful' contented;
An' buirdly chivs, and clever hizzies,
Are bred in sic a way as this is.

CAESAR.

But then to see how ye're negligence,
How huff'd, and cufF'd, and disrepeckit!
L—d, man, our gentry care as little
For delvers, ditchers, an' sic cattle;
They gang as saucy by poor folk,
As I wad by a stinking brock.

I've notice'd on our Laird's court-day,
An' mony a time my heart's been wae,
Poor tenant bodies, scant o' cash,
How they maun thole a factor's snash:
He'll stamp and threaten, curse and swear,
He'll apprehend them, point their gear;
While they maun stay, wi' aspect humble;
An' hear it a', an' fear an' tremble!

I see how folks live that hae riches;
But surely poor folk maun be wretches?

LUATH.

They're nae sae wretched's ane wad think;
Tho' constantly on poortith's brink:
They're sae accustomed wi' the sight,
The view o't gies them little fright.
Then chance and fortune are sae guided,
They’re ay in less o’ mair provided;
An’ tho’ fatigu’d with close employment,
A blink o’ rest’s a sweet enjoyment.

The dearest comfort o’ their lives,
Their gruslie weans an’ faithfu’ wives;
The prattling things are just their pride,
That sweetens a’ their fire-side.

An’ whyles twalpennie worth o’ nappy
Can mak’e the bodies muckle happy;
They lay aside their private cares,
To mind the kirk and state affairs:
They’ll talk o’ patronage and priests,
Wi’ kindling fury in their breasts,
Or tell what new taxation’s comin’,
An’ ferlie at the folk in Lon’on.

As Bleak-faced Hallowmas returns,
They get the jovial, ranting kins,
When rural life, o’ every station,
Unite in common recreation:
Love blinks, Wit slips, and social Mirth
Forgets there’s Care up’ the earth.

That merry day the year begins,
They ban the door on frosty winds;
The happy reeks wi’ mantling reams,
An’ sheds a heart-inspiring steam;
The hootin pipe, an’ sneseff’s mill,
Are handed round wi’ right gude will;
The cantie auld folks crackin crouse,
The young anes routin thro’ the house—
My heart has been sae fain to see them,
That I for joy hae barkit wi’ them.

Still its owre true that ye hae said,
Sic game is now owre aften play’d.
There’s monie a creditable stock
O’ decent, honest fawson folk,
Are riven out baith root and branch,
Some rascal’s pridifu’ greed to quench,
Wha thinks to knit himsel the faster
In favour wi’ some gentle Master,
Wha, aiblin, thrang a-parliamentin,
For Britain’s guid his soul indentin—

CAESAR.

Raithe, lad, ye lie little ken about it;
For R-r-i-t-a-i-n’s guid! guid faith! I doubt it;
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Say, rather, gaun as Premiers lead him,
An' saying aye or no's they bid him:
At operas an' plays parading;
Mortgaging, gambling, masquerading;
Or, may be, in a frolic daft,
To Hague or Calais takes a waft;
To make a tour, an' tak a whirl,
'To learn bon ton an' see the woor'.

There, at Vienna or Versailles,
He rives his father's auld entails;
Or by Madrid he takes the rout,
To thrum guitars, and fecht wi' nowt;
Or down Italian vista statues,
Where-hunting among groves o' myrtles:
Then houses drumbly German water
To mak himself look fair and fatter,
An' clear the consequential sorrow's,
Love-gifts of Carnival signoras,
For Britain's guid! for her destruction!
Wi' dissipation, fend, an' faction.

LUATH.

Hech man! dear sirs! is that the gate
They waste sac mony a braw estate!
Are we sa' fraughten an' harass'd
For gear to gang that gate at last!

O' would they stay aback frae courts,
An' please themselves wi' countra sports,
It wad for every ane be better,
The Laird, the Tenant, an' the Cotter!
For thae frank, rantin', ramblin' billies,
Fient haet o' them's ill-hearted fellows!
Except for breakin' o' their tinner,
Or speakin' lightly o' their limmer,
Or shootin' o' a hare or moor-cock,
The ne'er a bit they're ill to poor folk.

But will you tell me, Master Caesar,
Shure great folk's life's a life o' pleasure!
Nae cauld or hunger e'er can stier them;
The vera thought o't need na feir them.

CÆSAR.

L—d, man, were ye but whyles where I am.
The gentles ye wad ne'er envy 'em.

It's true, they need nae starve or sweat,
Tho' winter's cauld or summer's heat.
They've nae sair wark to craze their banes,
An' fill auld age wi' grips an' granes;
But human bodies are sic fools,
For a' their colleges and schools,
That when nae real ills perplex them,
They make enow themsel's to vex them;
An' ay the less they hae to sturt them.
In like proportion less will hurt them.
A country-fellow at the plough,
His acres till'd, he's right eneugh;
A country girl at her wlicel,
Her dizziness done, she's unco weel:
But gentlemen, and ladies warst,
Wi' ev'n down want o' wark are curst.
They loiter, lounging, lank, and lazy;
Tho' deal ha'et ails them, yet uneasy;
Their days insipid, dull, an' tasteless;
Their nights unquiet, lang and restless;
An' e'en their sports, their balls, an' races,
Their galloping thro' public places.
There's sic parade, sic pomp, an' art,
The joy can scarcely reach the heart.
The men cast out i'.i. party matches.
Then sowther a' in deep debouches;
Ae night they're mad wi' drink an' wh-rings.
Next day their life is past enduring.
The ladies arm-in-arm in clusters,
As great and gracious a' as sisters;
But hear their absent thoughts o' ether.
They're a' run decoy an' jades thereafter.
Whyles o'er the wee bit cup an' plateie,
They sip the scandal potion pretty;
Or lee-lang nights, wi' crabbit leuks
Pore owre the devil's pictur'd beuks;
Stake on a chance a farmer's stackyard,
An' cheat like ony unhang'd blackguard.

There's some exception, man an' woman;
But this is gentry's life in common.

By this, the sun was out o' sight,
An' darker gloaming brought the night.
The bum-clock humm'd wi' lazy drone;
The kye stood rowlin' i' the loan:
When up they got, and shook their hags,
Rejoic'd they were na men but dogs;
An' each took aff his several way,
Resolv'd to meet some ither day.

THE BRIGS OF AYR.

A POEM.

Inscribed to J. B*, Esq. Agr.

The simple Bard, rough at the rustic plough,
Learning his tuneful trade from ev'ry bough;
The chanting linnet, or the mellow thrush,
Hailing the setting sun, sweet, in the green thorn bush;
The soaring lark, the perching red-breast shrill,
Or deep-ton'd plovers, gray, wild-whistling o'er the hill
Shall he, nurt in the peasant's lowly shed,
To handy independence bravely bred,
By early Poverty to hardship steel'd,
And train'd to arms in stern Misfortune's field;
Shall he be guilty of their hireling crimes,
The servile, mercenary Swiss of rhymes?
Or labour hard the paeneaic close,
With all the venal soul of dedicating prose?
No! though his artless strains he rudely sings,
And throws his hand uncouthly o'er the strings
He gleans with all the spirit of the Bard,
Fame, honest fame, his great, his dear reward!
Still, if some patron's gen'rous care he trace,
Skill'd in the secret to bestow with grace;
When B*, befriens his humble name,
And hands the rustic stranger up to fame,
With heart-felt throes his grateful bosom swells,
The god-like bliss, to give, alone excels.

*Twas when the stacks get on their winter-hep,
And thack and rape secure the toil-worn crap;
Potato-bings are snugged up free skaith
Of coming Winter's biting, frosty breath;
The bees, rejoicing o'er their summer toils,
Unnumbered buds an' flowers' delicious spoils,
Seal'd up with frugal care in massive waxen piles,
Are doom'd by man, that tyrant o'er the weak,
The death o' devils smoor'd wi' brimstone reek;
The thundering guns are heard on ev'ry side,
The wounded coveys, reeling, scatter wide;
The feather'd field-mates, bound by nature's tie,
Sires, mothers, children, in one carnage lie:
(What warm, poetic heart, but hyly bleeds,
And execrates man's savage, ruthless deeds!,
Nae mair the flow'r in field or meadow springs;
Nae mair the grove with niry concert rings,
Except perhaps the Robin's whistling glee,
Proud o' the height o' some bit half-lang tree;
The hoary morns precede the sunny days,
Mild, calm, serene, wide spreads the noon-tide blaze,
While thick the gossamour waves wan't in the rays
'Twas in that season, when a simple Bard,
Unknown and poor, simplicity's reward;
As night, within the ancient burgh of Ayr,
By whim inspir'd, or haply press'd wi' care:
He left his bed, and took his wayward route,
And down by Simpson's wheel'd the left about:
To witness what I after shall narrate;
Or whether, rapt in meditation high,
He wander'd out he knew not where nor why:
The drowsy Dungeon-clock had numbered two,
And Wallace Tow'r had sworn the fact was true:
The tid's sworn Firth, with sullen-sounding roar,
Through the still night dashed horse along the shore:
All else was hush'd as nature's closed e'e;
The silent moon shone high o'er tow'r and tree:
The chilly frost, beneath the silver beam,
Crept, gently-crusting, o'er the glittering stream—
When lo!' on either hand the list'ning Bard,
The clanging sigh of whistling wings he heard;
Two dusky forms dart thro' the midnight air,
Swift as the Gos'l drives on the wheeling hare;
Ane o' th' Auld Brig his airy shape uprears,
Theither flutters o'er the rising piers:
Our warlock rhymer instantly desir'd
The Sprites that owre the Brigs of Ay' preside.
(That bards are second-sighted is nae joke,
And ken the ling o' the spiritual folk;
Fays, Spunkies, Kelpies, a', they can explain them,
And ev'n the vera deils they brawly ken them.)
Auld Brig appear'd o' ancient Pictish race,
The vera wrinkles Gothic in his face:
He seemed as he wi' Time had warst'd lang,
Yet touchly dour, he bade an unco bau.
Auld Brig was huskit in a braw new coat,
That he, at Lo'non, frae ane Adams, got:
In's hand five taper staves as smooth's a bead,
Wi' virs an' whirligigums at the head.

Auld Ayr is just one lengthen'd, tumbling sea;
Then down ye'll hard—deil nor ye never rise!

That Architecture's noble art is lost!

NEW BRIG.

Fine Architecture! treath, I needs must say't o'! The L.—d be thankit that we've the gate o'! Gaunt, ghastly, ghast-appearing edifices,
Hanging with threat'ning jut, like precipices;
O'er-arching, monstrously, gloom-inspiring coves,
Supporting roofs fantastic, stony groves;
Windows and doors, in nameless sculpture drest,
With order, symmetry, or taste, unblest;
Forms like some bedlam-statuary's dream,
The craz'd creations of misguided whim;
Forms might be worship'd on the hended knee,
And still the second dread command be free,
Their likeness is not found on earth, in air, or sea.

Mansions that would disgrace the building taste
Of any mason reptile, bird or beast;
Fit only for a doited Monkish race,
Or frosty maids, forsworn the dear embrace,
Or Cuifs of latter times, who held the notion
That sullen gloom was sterling, true devotion;
Fancies that our guid Burgh denies protection,
And soon may they expire, unbless'd with resurrection!

AULD BRIG.

O ye, my dear-remember'd, ancient yealings,
Were ye but here to share my wounded feelings!
Ye worthy Proceedings, an' mony a Ballie,
Wha in the paths of righteousness did toil ay;
Ye dainty Deacons, and ye dour Conveneris,
To whom our moderns are but causey-cleaners;
Ye godly Councils whom hae bless'd this town;
Ye godly Brethren of the sacred gown,
Wha meekly gae your hordies to the smelters;
And (what would now be strange) ye godly writers;
A' ye dour folk I've borne aboon the brow,
Were ye but here, what would ye say or do?

How would your spirits groan in deep vexation,
To see each melancholy alteration;
And agonizing, curse the time and place
When ye begat the base, degenerate race!
Nae longer Keyleud Men, their country’s glory,
In plain braid Scots hold forth a plain braid story;
Nae longer thrifty Citizens, an’ douce,
Meet owe a pint, or in the Council-house;
But stained, corky-headed, graceless entry;
The herryment and ruin of the country;
Men, three-parts made by Tailors and by Barbers,
What waste your wheel-haunted gear on d—d new Brig and Harbours!

NEW BRIG.

Now haud you there! for faith ye’ve said enough,
And muckle mair than ye can make to through,
As for your Priesthood, I shall say but little,
Corbies and Clergy are a shot right kittle;
But under favour o’ your longer beard,
Abase o’ magistrates might weel be spur’d:
To liken them to your mild world squad,
I must needs say, comparisons are odd.
In Ayr, Wag-wits nae mair can ha’ a hande
To mouth ‘a Citizen,’ a term o’ scandal:
Nae mair the Council waddles down the street,
In all the pomp of ignorant conceit;
Men who grew wise priggin over hops an’ raisins,
Or gather’d liberal views in Bonds and Seisins.
If happily Knowledge, on a random tramp,
Had shorr’d them with a glimmer of his lamp,
And would to Common-sense, for once betray’d them,
Plain, dull Stupidity stept kindly in to aid them.

What farther distemper might be said on,
What bloody wars, if sprites had blood to shed,
No man can tell; but all before their sight,
A fairy train appear’d in order bright:
Adown the glittering stream they feintly danced;
Bright to the moon their various dresses gannced;
They footed o’er the wat’ry glass so neat,
The infant ice scarce bent beneath their feet;
While arts of minstrelsy among them gane,
And soul-enobling lards heroic ditties sung.

Or when they struck old Scotia's melting airs,
The lover's raptur'd joys or bleeding cares;
How would his Highland love been nobler side,
And ev'n his matchless hand with finer touch inspir'd
No guess could tell what instrument appear'd,
But all the soul of Music's self was heard;
Harmonious concert ring in every part,
While simple melody pour'd moving on the heart.

The Genius of the Stream in front appears,
A venerable chief advance'd in years;
His hoary head with water-like's crown'd,
His manly leg with garter tangle bound.
Next came the loveliest pair in all the ring,
Sweet female Beauty hand in hand with Spring:
Then crown'd with flour'y blos. came Rural Jo;
And Summer, with its tertid-bening eye;
All-cheering Plenty, with her flowing horn,
Led yellow Autumn wreath'd with nodding corn;
Then Winter's hair-bench'd locks did hoary show
By Hospitality with cloudless brow.
Next follow'd Courage with his martial stride,
From where the Fret wild woody coverts hide;
Benevolence, with mild, benignant air,
A female form,* came from the towers of Stair;
Learning and worth in equal measures trode
From simple Cotter, their leg-bow'd abode;
Last, white-rob'd Peace, crown'd with a hazel wreath,
To rust; Agriculture did bequeath
The broken look instruments of Death;
At sight of whom our Sprites forgot their kindling wrath.

THE VISION.

DUAN FIRST.*

The sun had clos'd the winter day,
The curlers quit their roaring play,

* The Poet here alludes to a Mrs. Stewart, who was then in possession of Stair. She afterwards removed to Afton-lodge on the banks of the Afton, a stream which she subsequently celebrated in a song entitled, 'Afton Water.'—Ed.
An' hunger'd maun in ta'en her way
To kail-yards green,
While faithless snaws ilk step betray
Where she has been.

The thrasher's weary flingin-tree
The lee-lang day had tired me;
And when the day had clos'd his e'e,
Far i' the west,
Ben i' the spence, right pensivelie,
I gaed to rest.

There, lanely, by the ingle-cheek,
I sat and ey'd the spewing reek;
That fill'd, wi' hoast-provoking sneek,
The auld clay biggin;
An' heard the restless rattons squeak
About the riggin.

All in this mottie, misty clime,
I backward mus'd on wasted time,
How I had spent my youth' firs',
An' done nae-thing,
But stringin blethers up in rhyme,
For fools to sing.

Had I to guid advice but harkit,
I might, by this, laird a market,
Or strutted in a bank an' clarkit
My cash account:
While here, half mad, half fed, half sarki
Is a' th' amount.

I started, muttering, blockhead! coof!
And heav'd on high my waukit loof,
To swear by a' you starrit roof,
Or some rash aith,
That I henceforth would be a rhyme proof
Till my last breath—

When click! the string the sneek did draw!
And jee! the door gaed to the wa',
An' by my ingle-love I saw,
Now bleezin bright,
A tight, outlandish Hizzie, braw,
Come full in sight.

Ye need nae doubt, I held my whisht;
The infant aith, half-form'd was crusht;
I glow'rd as eerie's I'd been dushit,
In some wild glen;
When sweet, like modest Worth, she blush'd,
And stepped ben.

Green, slender, leaf-clad holly-boughs
Were twisted, graceful, round her brows,
I took her for some Scottish muse,
By that same token;
An' come to stop those reckless vows,
Would soon been broken.

A "hair-brain'd sentimental trace,"
Was strongly marked in her face;
A wildly-witty, rustic grace
Shone full upon her;
Her eye, ev'n turn'd on empty space,
Beam'd keen with Honour.

Down flow'd her robe, a Tartan sheen,
Till half a leg was scrimply seen;
And such a leg! my bonie Jean
Could only peer it;
Sae straight, sae taper, tight and clean,
Nane else came near it.

Her Mantle large, of greenish hue,
My gazing wonder chiefly drew;
Deep lights and shades, bold-mingling, threw
A lustre grand;
And seem'd, to my astonish'd view,
A well known land.

Here, rivers in the sea were lost;
There, mountains to the skies were toss'd;
Here, tumbling billows mark'd the coast,
With surging foam;
There distant shine Art's lofty boast,
The lordly dome.

Here Dean pour'd down his far-fetch'd floods,
There, well-fed Irvine stately thuds;
Auld hermit Ayre saw thro' his woods,
On to the shore;
And many a lesser torrent scuds,
With seeming roar.

Low, in a sandy valley spread,
An ancient Borough rear'd her head;
Still, as in Scottish story read,
She boasts a Race,
To ev'ry nobler virtue bred,
And polish'd grace.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

By stately tow'r or palace fair,
Or ruins pendant in the air,
Bold stems of heroes, here and there,
I could discern;
Some seem'd to muse, some seem'd to dare,
With features stern.

My heart did glowing transport feel,
To see a Race* heroic wheel,
And brandish round the deep-dy'd steel
In sturdy blows;
While back-recoiling seem'd to reel
Their Southron foes.

His Country's Saviour, mark him well;
Bold Richardton's hero swell.
The chief on Sark, who glorious fell,
In high command;
And He whom ruthless Fates expel
His native land.

There, where a scept're'd Pictish shade
Stalk'd round its ashes lowly laid,
I mark'd a martial race, portray'd
In colours strong;
Bold, soldier-featur'd, undismay'd
They strode along.

Tho' many a wild romantic grove,
Near many a hermit-fancy'd cove,
(Fit haunts for Friendship or for Love)
In musing mood,
An aged Judge, I saw him rove,
Dispensing good.

* The Wallaces.
† William Wallace.
‡ Adam Wallace, of Richardton, cousin to the immortal preserver of Scottish Independence.
§ Wallace, laird of Cragie, who was second in command, under Douglas, earl of Ormond, at the famous battle on the banks of Sark, fought anno 1443. That glorious victory was principally owing to the judicious conduct and intrepid valour of the gallant laird of Cragie, who died of his wounds after the action.
|| Coitus, king of the Picts, from whom the district of Kyle is said to take its name, lies buried, as tradition says, near the family-seat of the Montgomerics of Coit's field, where his burial-place is still shown.

G
With deep-struck reverential awe
The learned Sire and Son I saw,
To Nature's God and Nature's law
They gave their lore,
This all its source and end to draw,
That, to adore.

Brydone's brave ward! I well could spy,
Beneath old Scotia's smiling eye,
Who call'd on Fame, low standing by
To hand him on,
Where many a Patriot-name on high,
And hero shone.

DUAN SECOND.

With musing-deep, astonish'd stare;
I viewed the heav'ly-seeming Fair;
A whispering throb did witness bear,
Of kindred sweet,
When, with an elder sister's air,
She did me greet.

All hail! my own inspir'd Bard!
In me thy native muse regard!
Nor longer mourn thy fate is hard!
Thus poorly low!
I come to give thee such reward
As we bestow.

"Know the great Genius of this land
Has many a light aerial band,
Who all beneath his high command,
Harmoniously,
As arts or arms they understand,
Their labours ply.

"They Scotia's race among them share;
Some fire the Soldier on to dare;
Some rouse the Patriot up to bare
Corruption's heart;
Some teach the Bard, a darling care,
The tuneful art.

* Catrine, the seat of the late doctor, and present professor
Stewart.
† Colonel Fullarton.
"Mong swelling floods of reeking gore,
They ardent, kindling spirits pour;
Or, mid the venal senate roar,
They, sightless, stand,
To mend the honest Patriot-lore,
And grace the land.

"And when the bard, or hoary Sage;
Charm or instruct the future age,
They bind the wild poetic rage
In energy,
Or point the inconclusive page
Full on the eye.

"Hence Fullarton, the brave and young;
Hence Dempster's zeal-inspired tongue;
Hence sweet harmonious Beattie sung
His 'Minstrel lays';
Or tore, with noble ardour stung,
The Sceptic's bays.

"To lower orders are assign'd
The humbler ranks of human-kind.
The rustic Bard, the lab'ring Hind,
The Artisan;
All choose, as various they're inclin'd,
The various men.

"When yellow waves the heavy grain,
The threat'ning storm some strongly rein,
Some teach to meliorate the plain
With tillage-skill;
And some instruct the shepherd train
Blithe o'er the hill.

"Some hint the lover's harmless wile;
Some grace the maiden's artless smile;
Some soothe the lab' rer's weary toil,
For humble gains,
And make his cottage-scenes beguile
His cares and pains.

"Some, bounded to a district-space,
Explore at large man's infant race,
To mark the embryotic trace
Of rustic Bard;
And careful note each op'ining grace,
A guide and guard.

"Of these am I—Coila my name;
And this district as mine I claim,
POEMS.

Where once the Campbells, chiefs of fame,
Held ruling pow'r;
I mark'd thy embryo tuneful flame,
Thy natal hour.

"With future hope, I oft would gaze,
Fond, on thy little early ways,
Thy rudely caroll'd, chiming phrase,
In uncouth rhymes;
Fir'd at the simple artless lays
Of other times.

"I saw thee seek the sounding shore,
Delighted with the dashing roar;
Or when the North his fiercey store
Drove thro' the sky,
I saw grim Nature's visage soar,
Struck thy young eye.

"Or when the deep green-mantled earth
Warm cherish'd ev'ry flow'rt's birth,
And joy and music pouring forth
In ev'ry grove,
I saw thee eye the gen'ral mirth
With boundless love.

"When ripen'd fields, and azure skies,
Call'd forth the reapers' rustling noise,
I saw thee leave their ev'ning joys,
And lonely s'alk,
To vent thy bosom's swelling rise
In pensive walk.

"When youthful love, warm-blushing strong
Keen-shivering shot thy nerves along,
Those accents, grateful to thy tongue,
'Th' adored Name,
I taught thee how to pour in song,
To sooth thy flame.

"I saw thy pulses maddening play,
Wild send thee pleasure's devious way,
Misted by fancy's meteor ray,
By passion driven;
But yet the light that led astray
Was light from heaven.

"I taught thy manners-painting strains,
The loves, the ways of simple swains,
Till now, o'er all my wide domains
Thy fame extends:
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

And some, the pride of Coila's plains,
Become thy friends.

"Thou canst not learn, nor can I show,
To paint with Thompson's landscape glow,
Or wake the bosom-melting throe,
With Shenstone's art,
Or pour with Gray, the moving flow
Warm on the heart.

"Yet all beneath the unrivalled rose,
The lowly daisy sweetly blows;
Tho' large the forest's monarch throws
His army shade,
Yet green the juicy hawthorn grows,
Adown the glade.

"Then never murmur nor repine;
Strive in thy humble sphere to shine;
And trust me, not Potosi's mine,
Nor king's regard,
Can give a bliss o'ermatching thine,
A rustic Bard.

"To give my counsels all in one,
Thy tuneful flame still careful fan;
Preserve the Dignity of Man,
With soul erect;
And trust, the Universal Plan
Will all protect.

"And wear thou this!"—she solemn said,
And bound the Holly round my head:
The polish'd leaves, and berries red,
Did rustling play;
And, like a passing thought, she fled
In light away.

THE COTTER'S SATURDAY NIGHT.

INSCRIBED TO R. A*, ESQ.

Let not ambition mock their useful toil,
Their homely joys, and deating obscure;
Nor grandeur hear, with a disdainful smile,
The short, but simple annals of the poor.
POEMS,

I.

My lov'd, my honour'd, much respected friend!
No mercenary Bard his homage pays;
With honest pride, I scorn each selfish end,
My dearest need, a friend's esteem and praise;

To you I sing, in simple Scottish lays,
The lowly train in life's sequester'd scene;
The native feelings strong, the guileless ways;
What A* in a cottage would have been;
Ah! tho' his worth unknown, far happier there, I ween.

II.

November chill blaws loud wi' angry sigh,
The short'ning winter-day is near a close;
The miry beasts retreating frae the plough;
The black'ning trains o' craws to their reposè;
The toil-worn Cotter frae his labour goes,
This night his weekly mool is at an end,
Collects his spades, his mattocks, and his hosè,
Hoping the morn in ease and rest to spend,
And weary o'er the moor his course does homeward bend

III

At length his lonely cot appears in view,
Beneath the shelter of an aged tree;
Th' expectant wee-things, toddlin, stuchar thro'
To meet their Dad, wi' flit'cker in noise an' glee
His wee bit ingle, blinkin bonily,
His clean hearth-stane, his thirstie rife's smile,
The lisping infant prattling on his knee,
Dons at' his weary carking cares beguile,
An' makes him quite forget his labour and his toil.

IV.

Belyve the elder bairns come drappin in,
At service out, among the farmers roon';
Some ca' the plough, some herd, some tennie rin
A cannie errand to a neighbor town;
Their eldest hope, their Jenny, woman grown,
In youthin' bloom, love sparkling in her e'e,
Comes hame, perhaps, to show a braw new gown,
Or deposits her salt-won pennie-pee,
To help her parents dear, if they in hardship be.

V.

Wi' joy unfeign'd brothers and sisters meet,
An' each for other's welfare kindly spiers;
The social hours, swift-wing'd, unnoticed fleet;
Each tells the uncos that he sees or hears;
The parents, partial, eye their hopeful years;

Anticipation forward points the view,
The mother wi' her needle an' her sheers,
Gars an' class look amist as weel's the new;
The Father, mixes a' wi' admonition due.

VI.

Their master's an' their mistress's command,
The youngsters a' are warned to obey;
'An' mind their labours wi' an eydent hand,
An' ne'er, tho' out o' sight, to jauk or play:
An' O! be sure to fear the Lord alway!
An' mind your duty, duly, morn an' night!
Lest in temptation's path ye ganq astray,
Implore his counsel and assisting might:
They never sought in vain, that sought the Lord aright!

VII.

But hark! a rap comes gently to the door;
Jenny, wha kens the meaning o' the same,
Tells how a neebor lad came o'er the moor,
To do some errands, and convey her name.
The wily mother sees the conscious flame
Sparkle in Jenny's e'e, and flush her cheek;
With heart-struck anxious care, inquires his name,
While Jenny haffins is afraid to speak;
Weel pleas'd the mother hears, it's nae wild, worthless rake.

VIII.

Wi' kindly welcome Jenny brings him ben;
A straipan youth; he takes the mother's eye,
Bliithe Jenny sees the visit's no il la'en;
The father cracks of horses, ploughs, and kye.
The youngster's artless heart o'erflows wi' joy,
But blate an' laithfu', scarce can weel behave;
The mother, wi' a woman's wiles, can spy
What makes the youth sae bashful an' sae grave;
Weel pleas'd to think her bairn's respected like the lave.

IX.

O happy love! where love like this is found;
O heart-felt raptures! bliss beyond compare!
I've paced much this weary, mortal round,
And sage experience bids me this declare—

"If Heaven a draught of heavenly pleasure spare,
One cordial in this melancholy vale,
'Tis when a youthful, loving, modest pair,
In other's arms breathe out the tender tale,
Beneath the milk-white thorn that scents the ev'ning gale."
POEMS,

X.

Is there, in human form, that bears a heart—
A wretch! a villain! lost to love and truth!

That can, with studied, sly, ensnaring art,
Betray sweet Jenny's unsuspecting youth?

Curse on his perjur'd arts! dissembling smooth!
Are honour, virtue, conscience, all exil'd?

Is there no pity, no relenting ruth,
Points to the parents fondling o'er their child?

'Then paints the ruin'd maid, and their distraction wild!

XI.

But now the supper crowns their simple board!
The handsome parri'tch, chief o' Scotia's food;
The soup their only hookie does afford,
That 'yont the haggis smugly shows her end:
The dainty brings forth in complimentary mood,
To grace the lad, her wearied heart's sole fell,
An' aft he's press'd, an' aft he ca's it good;
The frugal wife garrulous wi' tell,
How 'thus a townmond maid, sin' but was i' the bell.

XII.

The cheerful supper done, wi' serious face,
They, round the table, form a circle wide;
The sire turns o'er, wi' patriarchal grace,
The big Ha'-Bible, once his father's pride;
His bonnet res'ently is laid aside,
His tyrant hawfis worn in thin an' bare;
Those strains that once did sweet in Zion glide,
He wales a portion with judicious care;
And "Let us worship God!" he says with solemn air.

XIII.

They chant their artless notes in simple guise,
They tune their hearts, by far the noblest aim;
Perhaps Dunslee's wild watchful measure's rise,
Or plaintive Martyes, worthy of the name;
Or noble Elgin heats the heavy'ard flame,
The sweetest far of Scotia's holy lays:
Compard with these, Italian trills are tame;
The tickled ears no heart-felt raptures raise,
Nae unison hae they with our Creator's praise.

XIV.

The priest-like father reads the sacred page,
How Abram was the friend of God on high;
Or, Moses had eternal warfare wage
With Amalek's ungracious progeny;
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Or, how the royal Bard did groaning lie
Beneath the stroke of Heaven's avenging ire,
Or, Job's pathetic plaint, and wailing cry;
Or, rapt Isaiah's wild seraphic fire;
Or other holy seers that tune the sacred lyre.

XV.
Perhaps the Christian volume is the theme,
How guiltless blood for guilty man was shed;
How He, who bore in heav'n the second name,
Had not on earth wherein to lay his head:
How His first followers and servants sped;
The precepts sage they wrote to many a land:
How he, who lone in Patmos banished,
Saw in the sun a mighty angel stand;
And heard great Babylon's doom pronounced by Heaven's command.

XVI.
Then kneeling down, to heaven's eternal King,
The saint, the father, and the husband prays:
Hope "springs exulting on triumphant wing,"
That thus they all shall meet in future days:
There, ever bask in uncreated rays,
No more to sigh, or shed the bitter tear,
Together hymning their Creator's praise,
In such society, yet still more dear;
While circling time moves round in an eternal sphere.

XVII.
Compar'd with this, how poor Religion's pride,
In all the pomp of method, and of art,
When men display to congregations wide,
Devotion's ev'ry grace except the heart
The Pope's incend'd, the pageant will desert,
The pompous strain, the sacerdotal stole;
But haply, in some cottage far apart,
May hear, well pleas'd, the language of the soul
And in his book of life the inmates poor enrol.

XVIII.
Then homeward all take off their several way;
The youngling cottagers retire to rest;
The parent-pair their secret homage pay,
And proffer up to Heaven the warm request,
That He who stilleth the raven's clam'rous nest,

* Pope's Windsor Forest.
POEMS,

And decks the sky fair in flow'ry pride,
Would, in the way his wisdom sees the best,
For them and for their little ones provide,
But chiefly in their hearts with grace divine preside.

XIX.
From scenes like these old Scotia's grandeur springs,
That makes her lov'd at home, rever'd abroad;
Princes and lords are but the breath of kings,
"An honest man's the noblest work of God;"
And certes in fair virtue's heav'ly road,
The cottage leaves the palace far behind;
What is a lordling's pomp? a cumbrous load,
Disguising of the wretch of human-kind.
Studied in arts of hell, in wickedness refin'd!

XX.
O Scotia! my dear, my native soil!
For whom my warmest wish to heaven is sent,
Long may the hardy sons of rustic toil,
Be blest with health, and peace, and sweet content.
And, O! may heaven their simple lives prevent
From luxury's contagion, weak and vile!
Then, howe'er crowns and coronets be rent,
A virtuous populace may rise the while,
And stand a wall of fire around their much-lov'd Isle.

XXI.
O Thou! who pour'd the patriotic tide
That stream'd thro' Wallace's undaunted heart;
Who dared to nobly stem tyrannic pride,
Or nobly die, the second glorious part,
(The patriot's God, peculiarly thou art,
His friend, inspirer, guardian, and reward!)
O never, never Scotia's realm desert;
But still the patriot and the patriot bared,
In bright succession rise, her ornament and guard!

VERSES

WRITTEN IN FRIAR'S-CAREE HERMITAGE, ON NITH SIDE

Thou whom chance may hither lead,
Be thou clad in russet weed,
Be thou decked in silken stole,
Grave these counsels on thy soul—
SHADES OF EVENING.
Life is but a day at most,
Sprung from night, in darkness lost;
Hope not sunshine ev'ry hour,
Fear not clouds will always low'r.

As youth and love, with sprightly dance,
Beneath thy morning star advance,
Pleasure with her siren air,
May delude the thoughtless pair;
Let prudence bless enjoyment's cup,
Then raptur'd sip, and sip it up.

As thy day grows warm and high,
Life's meridian flaming nigh,
Dost thou spurn the humble vale?
Life's proud summits wouldst thou scale?
Check thy climbing step, elate,
Evils lurk in felon wait;
Dangers, eagle-pinion'd, bold,
Soar around each cliffy hold,
While cheerful peace, with linnet song,
Chants the lowly dells among.

As the shades of evening close,
Beck'ning thee to long repose;
As life itself becomes disease,
Seek the chimney-neck of ease;
There ruminate with sober thought,
On all thou'rt seen, and heard, and wrought,
And teach the sportive younmakers round,
Laws of experience, sage and sound.
Say, Man's true, genuine, estimate,
The grand criterion of his fate,
Is not, art thou high or low?
Did thy fortune ebb or flow?
Did many talents gild the span?
Or frugal nature grudge thee one?
Tell them, and press it on their mind,
As thou thyself must shortly find,
The smile or frown of awful heav'n,
To virtue or to vice is giv'n.
Say, to be just, and kind, and wise,
There solid self-enjoyment lies;
That foolish, selfish, faithless ways,
Lead to the wretched, vile, and base.

Thus resign'd and quiet, creep
To the bed of lasting sleep;
Sleep, whence thou shalt ne'er awake,
Night, where dawn shall never break,
POEMS,
"Till future life, future no more,"
To light and joy the good restore,
To light and joy unknown before!

Stranger, go! Heav'n be thy guide!
Quod the Beadsman of Nith-side.

A PRAYER,
UNDER THE PRESSURE OF VIOLENT ANGUISH

O thou great Being! what thou art
Surpasses me to know;
Yet sure I am, that known to Thee
Are all thy works below.

Thy creature here before Thee stands,
All wretched and distrest;
Yet sure those ills that wring my soul
Obey thy high behest.

Sure Thou, Almighty, canst not act
From cruelty or wrath!
O, free my weary eyes from tears,
Or, close them fast in death!

But if I must afflicted be,
To suit some wise design;
Then man my soul with firm resolves
To bear and not repine!

A PRAYER,
IN THE PROSPECT OF DEATH.

I.
O thou, unknown, Almighty Cause
Of all my hope and fear!
In whose dread presence, ere an hour,
Perhaps I must appear!

II.
If I have wander'd in those paths
Of life I ought to shun:
As something, loudly in my breast,
Demonstrates I have done;
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

III.
Thou know'st that Thou hast formed me
With passions wild and strong;
And listening to their witching voice
Has often led me wrong.

IV.
Where human weakness has come short,
Or frailty swept aside,
Do Thou, All good! for such Thou art,
In shades of darkness hide.

V
Where with intention I have err'd,
No plea I have,
But, Thou art good; and goodness still
Delighteth to forgive.

STANDAS
ON THE SAME OCCASION

I.
Why am I loath to leave this earthy scene?
Have I so found it full of pleasing charms?
Some drops of joy with draughts of ill between;
Some gleams of sunshine and renewing storms;
Is it departing gangs my soul alarms?
Or death's unlovely, dreary, dark abode?
For guilt, for guilt, my terrors are in arms;
I tremble to approach an angry God,
And justly smart beneath his sin-avenging rod.

II.
Fain would I say, "Forgive my foul offence!"
Fain promise never more to disobey:
But, should my Author heath again dispense,
Again I might desert fair virtue's way:
Again in folly's path might go astray;
Again exalt the brute and sink the man;
Then how should I for heavenly mercy pray,
Who act so counter heavenly mercy's plan?
Who sin so oft have mourn'd, yet to temptation ran?

III.
O Thou, great Governor of all below
If I may dare a lifted eye to Thee
POEMS,

Thy nod can make the tempest cease to blow,
Or still the tumult of the raging sea;
With that controlling pow'r assist ev'n me,
These headlong, furious passions to confine;
For all unifit I feel my powers to be,
To rule their torrent in th' allowed line;
O, aid me with thy help, Omnipotence Divine!

VERSES,

LEFT BY THE AUTHOR, AT A REVEREND FRIEND'S HOUSE; IN THE ROOM WHERE HE SLEPT.

I.

O thou, dread Pow'r, who reign'st above;
I know thou wilt me hear:
When for this scene of peace and love,
I make my pray'r sincere.

II.

The hoary sire—the mortal stroke,
Long, long, be pleas'd to spare!
To bless his little filial flock,
And show what good men are.

III.

She, who her lovely offspring eyes
With tender hopes and fears,
O bless her with a mother's joys,
But spare a mother's tears!

IV.

Their hope, their stay, their darling youth;
In manhood's dawning blush;
Bless him, thou God of love and truth,
Up to a parent's wish!

V.

The beauteous, seraph sister-band,
With earnest tears I pray,
Thou knowest the snares on ev'ry hand,
Guide Thou their steps alway!

VI.

When soon or late they reach that coast,
O'er life's rough ocean driv'n,
May they rejoice, no wand'rer lost,
A family in heav'n
A GRACE BEFORE DINNER.

O thou, who kindly dost provide
For every creature's want!
We bless thee, God of Nature wide,
For all thy goodness lent:
And if it please thee, heavenly Guide,
May never worse be sent;
But whether granted or denied,
Lord bless us with content!

Amen.

THE FIRST PSALM.

The man in life, wherever plac'd,
Hath happiness in store,
Who walks not in the wicked's way,
Nor learns their guilty lore!
Nor from the seat of scornful pride
Casts forth his eyes abroad,
But with humility and awe
Still walks before his God.
That man shall flourish like the trees
Which by the streamlets grow;
The fruitful top is spread on high,
And firm the root below.
But he whose blossom buds in guilt,
Shall to the ground be cast,
And like the rootless stubble, tost
Before the sweeping blast.
For why? That God, the good adore,
Hath giv'n them peace and rest,
But hath decreed that wicked men
Shall never be truly blest.

THE FIRST SIX VERSES OF THE NINETIETH PSALM

O thou, the first, the greatest Friend
Of all the human race!
Whose strong right hand has ever been
Their stay and dwelling place!
Before the mountain heav'd their heads
Beneath thy forming hand,
Before this ponderous globe itself
Arose at thy command;
That Pow'r which rais'd and still uphold
This universal frame,
From countless, unbeginning time,
Was ever still the same.

Those mighty periods of years
Which seem to us so vast,
Appear no more before thy sight
Than yesterday that's past.

Thou gav'st the word—Thy creature, man,
Is to existence brought;
Again thou sayest, "Ye sons of men,
Return ye into nought!"

Thou layest them, with all their cares,
In everlasting sleep;
As with a flood Thou tak'st them off
With overwhelming sweep.

They flourish like the morning flow'r,
In beauty's pride array'd;
But long ere night, cut down, it lies
All wither'd and decay'd.

EPISTLE TO A YOUNG FRIEND.

I.

I lang hae thought, my youthful friend,
A something to have sent you,
Tho' it should serve no other end
Than just a kind memento;
But how the subject-theme may gang,
Let time and chance determine;
Perhaps it may turn out a song,
Perhaps turn out a sermon.

II.

Ye'll try the world soon, my lad,
And Andrew dear, believe me,
Ye'll find mankind an unco squad,
And nuckle they may grieve ye!
For care and trouble set your thought,
Ev'n when your end's attained;
And a' your views may come to nought,
When ev'ry nerve is strained.

III.
I'll no say men are villains a';
The real, harden'd wicked,
Wha hae nae check but human law,
Are to a few restrick'd—
But och! mankind are unco weak,
An' little to be trusted;
If self the wavering balance shake
It's rarely right adjusted!

IV.
Yet they wha fa' in fortune's strife,
Their fate we should na censure,
For still th' important end of life,
They equally may answer;
A man may hae an honest heart,
Tho' poortith hourly stare him;
A man may tak a neebor's part,
Yet hae na cash to spare him.

V.
Ay free, aff han', your story tell,
When wi' a bosom crony;
But still keep something to yoursel,
Ye'll scarcely tell to ony.
Conceal yoursel as weel's ye can,
Frai critical dissection;
But keek thro' ev'ry other man,
Wi' sharpen'd sly inspection.

VI.
The sacred lowe o' weel-placed love,
Luxuriantly indulge it;
But never tempt th' illicit rose,
Tho' naething should divulge it;
I waive the quantum o' the sin,
The hazard o' concealing;
But och! it hardens a' within,
And petrifies the feeling!

VII.
To catch dame Fortune's golden smile,
Assiduous wait upon her;
And gather gear by ev'ry wile
That's justified by honour—
Not for to hide it in a hedge,
Nor for a train-attendant,
But for the glorious privilege
Of being independent.

VIII.
The fear o' hell's a hangman's whip,
To haud the wretch in order—
But where ye feel your honour grip,
Let that ay be your border;
It's slightest touches, instant pause—
Debar a' side pretences;
And resolutely keep its laws,
Uncaring consequences.

IX.
The great Creator to revere,
Must sure become the creature;
But still the preaching caut forbear,
And ev'n the rigid feature;
Yet ne'er with wits profane to range,
Be complaisance extended;
An atheist's laugh's a poor exchange
For Deity offended!

X.
When ranting round in pleasure's ring,
Religion may be blinded;
Or, if she gie a random sing,
It may be little minded;
But when on life we're tempest driv'n
A conscience but a canker—
A correspondence fix'd wi' Heav'n
Is sure a nobler anchor!

XI.
Adieu, dear, amiable youth!
Your heart can ne'er be wanting;
May prudence, fortitude, and truth,
Erect your brow undaunting!
In ploughman phrase, "Gad send you speed,"
Still daily to grow wiser;
And may you better reck the reds
Than ever did th' adviser!

May, 1786.
Book II.

Pathetic, Elegiac, and Descriptive

Man was made to mourn

A Dirge.

I.
When chill November's surly blast
Made fields and forests bare,
One ev'ning, as I wander'd forth
Along the banks of Snyr,
I spy'd a man, whose aged step
Seem'd weary, worn with care;
His face was furrow'd o'er with years,
And hoary was his hair.

II.
Young stranger, whither wand'rest thou?
(Degan the rev'rend sage.)
Does thirst of wealth thy step constrain,
Or youthful pleasure's rage?
Or haply, prest with cares and woes,
Too soon thou hast begun
To wander forth, with me, to mourn.
The miseries of man!

III.
The sun that overhangs yon moors,
Out-spreading far and wide,
Where hundreds labour to support
A haughty lording's pride;
I've seen yon weary winter sun
Twice forty times return;
And ev'ry time has added proofs,
That man was made to mourn.

IV.
O man! while in thy early years,
How prodigal of time!
Mispending all thy precious hours,
Thy glorious youthful prime!
POEMS.

Alternate follies take the sway;
Licentious passions burn;
Which tenfold force gives Nature's law
That man was made to mourn.

V.
Look not alone on youthful prime
Or manhood's active might,
Man then is useful to his kind,
Supported in his right;
But see him on the edge of life,
With cares and sorrows worn,
Then age and want, oh! ill matched pair!
Show man was made to mourn.

VI.
A few seem favourites of Fate,
In Pleasure's lap carest;
Yet, think not all the rich and great
Are likewise truly blest.
But oh! what crowds in every land,
Are wretched and forlorn;
Thro' weary life this lesson learn,
That man was made to mourn.

VII.
Many and sharp the num'rous ills
Inwoven with our frame!
More pointed still we make ourselves
Regret, remorse, and shame!
And man, whose heav'n-erected face
The smiles of love adorn,
Man's inhumanity to man
Makes countless thousands mourn.

VIII.
See yonder poor, o'erlabour'd wight,
So abject, mean and vile,
Who begs a brother of the earth,
To give him leave to toil;
And see his lordly fellow-worm
The poor petition spurn,
Unmindful, tho' a weeping wife
And helpless offspring mourn.

IX.
If I'm design'd you lordling's slave—
By Nature's law design'd;
Why was an independent wish
E'er planted in my mind?
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

If not, why am I subject to
His cruelty, or scorn?
Or why has man the will and pow'?
To make his fellow mourn?

X.
Yet, let not this too much, my son
Disturb thy youthful breast;
This partial view of human kind
Is surely not the last!
The poor, oppressed, honest man,
Had never, sure, been born,
Had there not been some recompense
To comfort those that mourn.

XI.
O death! the poor man's dearest friend!
The kindest and the best!
Welcome the hour my aged limbs
Are laid with thee at rest!
The great, the wealthy, fear thy blow
From pomp and pleasure torn;
But, oh—a blest relief to those
That weary-laden mourn!

A WINTER NIGHT.
 Poor naked wretches, wheresoe'er you are,
 That hide the pelting of this piteous storm!
 How shall your houseless heads, and unfed sides,
 Your loop'd and window'd raggedness, defend you
 From seasons such as these!—Shakespeare

When biting Boreas fell and doure,
Sharp shivers thro' the leafless bow'r;
When Phoebus gies a short-liv'd glow'r
Far south the lift,
Dim-dark'ning thro' the flaky show'r,
Or whirlin drift!

Ae night the storm the steeples rock'd,
P or Labour sweet in sleep was locked,
While burns, wi' snowy wreaths up-chocked,
Wild-eddying swirl,
Or thro' the mining outlet bocked,
Down headlong hurl.
List'ning, the doors an' winnocks rattle,
I thought me on the ourie cattle,
Or silly sheep, wha bide this brattle
O' winter war,
And thro' the drift, deep-taing sprattle,
Beneath a scar.
Ilk happling bird, wee helpless thing,
That, in the merry months o' spring,
Delighted me to hear thee sing,
What comes o' thee?
Where wilt thou cow'r thy chitt'ring wing,
An' close thy e'eu?
Ev'n you on murd'ring errands toil'd,
Lone, from your savage homes exil'd,
The blood-stained roost, and sheep-cote spoil'd,
My heart forgets,
While pitiess the tempest wild,
Sore on you beats.
Now Phaebè, in her midnight reign,
Dark muffled, view'd the dreary plain,
Still crowding thoughts, a pensive train,
Rose in my soul,
When on my ear this plaintive strain.
"Blow, blow, ye winds, with heavier gust!
And freeze, thou bitter-biting frost!
Descend, ye chilly, smothering snows!
Not all your rage, as now united, show
More hard unkindness, unrelenting,
Vengeful malice, unrepenting,
Than heaven-illumin'd man on brother man bestow!
"See stern oppression's iron grip,
Or mad Ambition's gory hand,
Sending, like blood-bounds from the slip,
Wo, want, and murder o'er a land.
"Ev'n in the peaceful rural vale,
Truth, weeping, tells the mournful tale,
How pamper'd luxury, flatt'ry by her side,
The parasite empoisoning her ear.
With all the servile wretches, in the rear,
Look o'er proud property extended wide,
And eyes the simple rustic kind,
Whose toil upholds the chitt'ring show,
A creature of another kind,
Some coarser substance, unrefin'd,
Plac'd for her lordly use thus far, thus vile, below.
"Where, where is love's fond, tender throe,
With lordly honour's lofty brow,
The pow'rs you proudly own?
Is there, beneath love's noble name,
Can harbour, dark, the selfish aim,
To bless himself alone!
"Mark maiden-innocence a prey
To love pretending snares,
This boasted honour turns away,
Shunning soft pity's rising sway,
Regardless of the tears, and unavailing prayers!
Perhaps, this hour, in mis'ry's squalid nest,
She strains your infant to her joyless breast,
And with a mother's tears shrieks at the rocking blast!
"O ye! who, sunk in beds of down,
Feel not a want but what yourselves create,
Think for a moment on his wretched fate,
Whom friends and fortune quite disown!
Ill satisfied keen nature's clam'rous call,
Stretched on his straw, he lays himself to sleep,
While thro' the ragged roof and chinky wall,
Chill o'er his slumbers piles the drifty heap!—
Think on the dungeon's grim confine,
Where guilt and poor misfortune pine!
Guilt, erring man, relenting view
But shall thy legal rage pursue
The wretch already crushed low
By cruel fortune's undeserved blow!
Affliction's sons are brothers in distress,
A brother to relieve, how exquisite the bliss!"
I heard nae mair, for Chanticleer
Shook off the pouthery swan,
And hail'd the morning with a cheer,
A cottage rousing caw.
But deep this truth impress'd my mind—
Thro' all his works abroad,
The heart, benevolent and kind,
The most resembles GOD.

A DIRGE.

The wintry west extends his blast,
And hail and rain does blaw;
Or, the stormy north sends driving forth
The blinding sleet and snow:
POEMS,

While tumbling brown, the burn comes down,
And roars frae bank to brae;
And bird and beast in covert rest,
And pass the heartless day.

II.

"The sweeping blast, the sky o'ercast,"*
The joyless winter-day,
Let others fear, to me more dear
Than all the pride of May!
The tempest's howl, it soothes my soul,
My griefs it seems to join,
The leafless trees my fancy please,
Their fate resembles mine!

III.

Thou Pow'r Supreme, whose mighty scheme
These woes of mine fulfil,
Here, firm, I rest, they must be best,
Because they are thy will!
Then all I want (O do thou grant
This one request of mine!)
Since to enjoy thou dost deny,
Assist me to resign.

DESPONDENCY,
AN ODE.

I.

Oppress'd with grief, oppress'd with care,
A burden more than I can bear,
I sit me down and sigh;
O life, thou art a galling load,
A long, a rough, a weary road,
To wretches such as I!
Dim backward as I cast my view,
What sick'ning scenes appear!
What sorrows yet may pierce me thro'!
Too justly I may fear!
Still caring, despairing,
Must be my bitter doom;
My woes here shall close ne'er,
But with the closing tomb!

II.

Happy, ye sons of busy life,
Who, equal to the bustling strife,
No other view regard!
Ev'n when the wished end's deny'd,
Yet while the busy means are ply'd,
They bring their own reward:
Whilst I, a hope-abandon'd wight,
Unfitted with an aim,
Meet ev'ry sad returning night,
And joyless mourn the same,
You, bustling, and justling
Forget each grief and pain;
I, listless, yet restless,
Find every prospect vain.

III.

How blest the Solitary's lot,
Who, all forgetting, all-forgot,
Within his humble cell,
The cavern wild with tangling roots,
Sits o'er his newly-gather'd fruits,
Beside his crystal well!
Or, haply to his ev'ning thought,
By unfrequented stream,
The ways of men are distant brought,
A faint collected dream;
While praising, and raising
His thoughts to heav'n on high,
As wand'ring, mean'd'ring,
He views the solemn sky.

IV.

Then I, no lonely hermit plac'd
Where never human footstep trac'd,
Less fit to play the part;
The lucky moment to improve,
And just to stop and just to move,
With self-respecting art:
But ah! those pleasures, loves and joys,
Which I too keenly taste,
The Solitary can despise,
Can want, and yet be blest!
He needs not, he needs not,
Or human love or hate,
Whilst I here, must cry here,
At perfidy ingrate!
POEMS,

V.

Oh! enviable, early days,
When dancing thoughtless pleasure's maze,
To care, to guilt unknown!

How ill exchang'd for riper times,
To feel the follies, or the crimes,
Of others, or my own!

Ye tiny elves that guiltless sport,
Like linnets in the bush,
Ye little know the ills ye court,
When manhood is your wish!

The losses, the crosses,
That active man engage!
The fears all, the tears all,
The dim declining age!

TO RUIN.

I.

All hail! inexorable lord!
At whose destruction-breathing word
The mightiest empires fall!
Thy cruel, wo-delighted train,
The ministers of grief and pain,
A sullen welcome, all!

With stern, resolv'd, despairing eye,
I see each aimed dart;
For one has cut my dearest tie,
And quivers in my heart.

Then low'ring and pouring,
The storm no more I dread;
Tho' thick'ning and black'ning
Round my devoted head.

II.

And thou, grim pow'r, by life abhor'd,
While life a pleasure can afford,
Oh! hear a wretch's pray'r!
No more I shrink appall'd, afraid,
I court, I beg thy friendly aid,
To close this scene of care!

When shall my soul, in silent peace,
Resign life's joyless day:
My weary heart its throbbings cease,
Cold mould'ring in the clay?

No fear more, no tear more,
To strain my lifeless face;
Enclasped, and grasped
Within thy cold embrace!

LAMENT OF MARY, QUEEN OF SCOTS
ON THE APPROACH OF SPRING.

Now Nature hangs her mantle green
On every blooming tree,
And spreads her sheets o' daisies white
Out o'er the grassy lea;
Now Phœbus cheers the crystal streams,
And glads the azure skies;
But nought can glad the weary wight
That fast in dungeon lies.

Now lav'rocks wake the merry morn,
Aloft on dewy wing;
The merle, in his noontide bow'r,
Makes woodland echoes ring;
The mavis mild, wi' many a note,
Sings drowsy day to rest:
In love and freedom they rejoice,
Wi' care nor thrall oppress.

Now blooms the lily by the bank,
The primrose down the brae;
The hawthorn's budding in the glen,
And milk-white is the lea;
The meanest hind in fair Scotland
May rove the sweets amang;
But I, the Queen of a' Scotland,
Mast lie in prison strang.

I was the Queen o' bonie France,
Where happy I have been;
Fu' lightly raise I in the morn,
As birthe lay down at e'en:
And I'm the Sov'reign of Scotland
And monte a traitor there;
Yet here I lie in foreign lands,
And never ending care.

But as for thee, thou false woman,
My sister and my foe,
Gru'n Vengeance, yet, shall whet a sword
'That thou' thy soul shall gae;
The weeping blood in woman's breast
Was never known to thee;
Nor th' balm that dews on wounds of wo
Frae woman's pitying e'e.

My son! my son! may kinder stars
Upon thy fortune shine;
And may those pleasures gild thy reign,
That never wd'd blink on mine!

God keep thee frae thy mother's faces,
Or turn their hearts to thee;
And where thou meet'st thy mother's friend,
Remember him for me!

O! soon, to me, may summer-suns
Nae mair light up the morn!
Nae mair, to me, the autumn winds
Wave o'er the yellow corn!

And in the narrow house of 't death
Let winter round me rave!
And the next flowers that deck the spring,
Bloom on my peaceful grave!

THE LAMENT,

ECASONED BY THE UNFORTUNATE ISSUE OF A FRIEND'S AMOUR.

Alas! how oft does Goodness wound itself
And sweet Affection prove the spring of wo

I.

O thou pale orb, that silent shines
While care-untroubled mortals sleep
Thou seeest a wretch that duly pines,
And wanders here to wail and weep
With wo nightly vigils keep,
Beneath thy wan unwarming beam;
And mourn, lamentation deep,
How life and love are all a dream.

II

I joyless view thy rays adorn
The faintly-marked distant hill:
I joyless view thy trembling horn,
Reflected in the gurgling rill:
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

My fondly-flattering heart, be still!
Thou busy pow'r, Remembrance, cease
Ah! must the agonizing thrill
For ever bar returning peace!

III.
No idly-feign'd poetic pains,
My sad love-lorn lamentings claim;
No shepherd's pipe—Arcadian strains;
No fabled tortures, quaint and tame;
The plighted faith—the mutual flame—
The oft attested Pow'rs above;
The promis'd Father's tender name;
These were the pledges of my love!

IV.
Encircled in her clasping arms,
How have the raptur'd moments flown;
How have I wished for fortune's charms,
For her dear sake, and her's alone!
And must I think it! is she gone,
My secret heart's exulting boast?
And does she heedless hear my groan?
And is she ever, ever lost?

V.
Oh! can she bear so base a heart,
So lost to honour, lost to truth,
As from the fondest lover part,
The plighted husband of her youth:
Alas! life's path may be unsmooth!
Her way may lie thro' rough distress;
Then, who her pangs and pains will sooth,
Her sorrows share, and make them less!

VI.
Ye winged hours that o'er us past,
Enraptur'd more, the more enjoy'd,
Your dear remembrance in my breast,
My fondly-treasur'd thoughts employ'd
That breast, how dreary now, and void,
For her too scanty once of room!
Ev'n ev'ry ray of hope destroy'd,
And not a wish to gild the gloom!

VII.
The morn that warns th' approaching day
Awakes me up to toil and wo—
I see the hours in long array,
That I must suffer, lingering, slow.
Full many a pang, and many a throe,
Keen recollection's drear train
Must wring my soul, ere Phoebus, low,
Shall kiss the distant western main.

VIII.
And when my nightly couch I try,
Sore harassed out with care and grief,
My toil-beat nerves, and tear-worn eye,
Keep watchings with the mighty thief—
Or if I slumber, Fancy, call,
Reigns haggard wild, in sore affright;
Ev'n day, all-bitter, brings relief,
From such a horror-breathing night.

IX.
O! then bright queen, who o'er th' expanse
Now highest reign'st, with boundless sway!
Oft has thy semi-marking glance
Observ'd us, fondly-wound ring, stray!
The time, unheed'd, sped away,
While love's luxurious pulse beat high,
Beneath thy silver-gleaming ray,
To mark the mutual kindling eye.

X.
Oh! scenes in strong remembrance set!
Scenes, never, never, to return!
Scenes, if in slumber I forget,
Again I feel, again I burn;
From ev'ry joy and pleasure torn,
Life's weary vale I'll wander thro';
And hopeless, comfortless, I'll mourn
A faithless woman's broken vow.

LAMENT

OF A MOTHER FOR THE DEATH OF HER SON.

Tune—"Finlayston House."

Fate gave the word, the arrow sped,
And pierc'd my darling's heart;
And with him all the joys are fled
Life can to me impart.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

By cruel hands the gapsling drops,
In dust dishonour'd laid:
So fell the pride of all my hopes,
My age's future shade.
The mother linnet in the brack,
Bewails her rash'd young—
So I, for my lost darling's sake,
Lament the five-day long.

Death, oft I've fear'd thy fatal blow,
Now, fond, I bare my breast,
O, do thou kindly lay me low
With him I love, at rest?

J A M E N T
FOR JAMES, EARL OF GLENCAIRN.

The wind blew hollow frae the hills,
By fits the sun's departing beam
Look'd on the fading yellow woods;
That wav'd o'er Lugar's winding stream;
Beneath a craigy steep, a hard,
Laden with years and aecile pain,
In loud lament bewail'd his lord,
Whom death had all untimely ta'en.

He bent him to an ancient aik,
Whose trunk was mould'ring down with years;
His locks were bled'ed white wit' time,
His hoary cheek was wet wit' tears!
And as he touched his trembling harp,
And as he tun'd his doleful sang,
The winds, lamenting thro' their caves,
To Echo bore the notes alang.

"Ye scatter'd birds that sliently sing,
The reliques of the vernal quire!"
Ye woods that shed on a' the winds
The honours of the aged year!
A few short months, and glad and gay,
Again ye'll charm the ear and eye;
But necht in all revolving time
Can gladness bring again to me.

"I am a bending aged tree,
That long has stood the wind and rain—"
But now has some a cruel blast,
And my last had of earth is gan;
Nae leaf o' mine shall greet the spring,
Nae summer sun exalt my bloom;
But I maun lie before the storm,
And others plant them in my room.

"I've seen sae monie changeful' years,
On earth I am a stranger grown;
I wander in the ways of men,
Alike unknowing and unknown:
Unheard, unpitied, unreliev'd,
I bear alane my lade o' care,
For silent, low, on beds of dust,
Lie a' that would my sorrows share.

And last (the sum of a' my griefs!) My noble master lies in clay;
The flow'r amang our barons bold,
His country's pride, his country's stay;
In weary being now I pine,
For a' the life of life is dead,
And hope has left my aged ken,
On forward wing for ever fled.

"Awake thy last sad voice, my harp! The voice of wo and wild despair!
Awake, resound thy latest lay,
Then sleep in silence evermair!
And thou, my last, best, only friend,
That fillest an untimely tomb,
Accept this tribute from the bard
Thou brought from fortune's mirkest gloom.

"In poverty's low barren vale,
Thick mists, obscure, involved me round;
Tho' off I turn'd the wistful eye,
Nae ray of fame was to be found:
Thou found'st me like the morning sun
That melts the fogs in limpid air—
The friendless bard and rustic song,
Became alike thy fostering care.

"O! why has worth so short a date? While villains ripen gray with time
Must thou, the noble, gen'rous, great,
Fall in bold manhood's hardy prime?
Why did I live to see that day?
A day to me so full of wo!
O! had I met the mortal shaft
Which laid my benefactor low!
"The bridegroom may forget the bride
Was made his wedded wife yestreen;
The monarch may forget the crown
That on his head an hour has been;
The mother may forget the child
That smiles so sweetly on her knee;
But I'll remember thee, Glencairn,
And a' that thou hast done for me

J LINES,
SENT TO SIR JOHN WHITEFORD, OF WHITEFORD, BART.

With the foregoing Poem.

Thou who thy honour as thy God rever'st,
Who, save thy mind's reproach, naught earthly fear'st.
To thee this votive offering I impart,
The tearful tribute of a broken heart.
The friend thou valued'st, I the patron lov'd;
His worth, his honour, all the world approv'd.
We'll mourn till we too go as he has gone,
And tread the dreary path to that dark world unknown

THICKET'S LAMENT

Thickest night o'erhangs my dwelling;
Howling tempests o'er me rave!
Turbid torrents, wintry swelling,
Still surround my lonely cave.

Crystal streamlets gently flowing,
Busy haunts of base mankind,
Western breezes softly blowing,
Suit not my distracted mind.

In the cause of right engaged,
Wrongs injurious to redress,
Honour's war we strongly waged,
But the Heavens denied success.

Ruin's wheel has driven o'er us,
Not a hope that dare attend,—
The wide world is all before us,
But a world without a friend!
THE CHEVALIER'S LAMENT.

The small birds rejoice in the green leaves returning;
The murmuring streamlet winds clear thro' the vale;
The hawthorn trees blow in the dews of the morning,
And wild-scattered cowslips bedeck the green date:

But what can give pleasure, or what can seem fair,
While the lingering moments are number'd by care?
No flowers gayly springing, nor birds sweetly singing,
Can sooth the sad bosom of joyless despair.

The deed that I dur'd, could it merit their malice,
A king and a father to place on his throne?
His right are these hills, and his right are these vallies,
Where the wild beasts find shelter, but I can find none

But 'tis not my sufferings, thus wretched, forlorn,
My brave, gallant friends, 'tis your ruin I mourn;
Your deeds prov'd so loyal in hot bloody trial,
Alas! can I make you no sweeter return?

THE AUTHOR'S FAREWELL TO HIS NATIVE COUNTRY.

Tune—"Roslin Castle."

I.

The gloomy night is gathering fast,
Loud roars the wild, inconstant blast,
Your murky cloud is fraught with rain,
I see it driving o'er the plain;
The hunter now has left the moor,
The scatter'd coveys meet secure,
While here I wander, prest with care.
Along the lonely banks of Ayr.

II.

The Autumn mourning her rip'ning corn
By early Winter's ravage torn,
Across her placid azure sky,
She sees the scowling tempest fly:
Chill runs my blood to hear it rave,
I think upon the stormy wave,
Where many a danger I must dare,
Far from the bonie banks of Ayr.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

III.
'Tis not the surging billows' roar,
'Tis not that fatal, deadly shore;
Though death in ev'ry shape appear,
The wretched have no more to fear:
But round my heart the ties are bound,
That heart transfierc'd with many a wound
These bleed afresh, those ties I tear
To leave the bonie banks of Ayr.

IV.
Farewell, old Coila's hills and dales,
Her heathy moors and winding vales
The scenes where wretched fancy roves,
Pursuing past, unhappy loves!
Farewell, my friends! farewell, my foes!
My peace with these, my love with those—
The bursting tears my heart declare,
Farewell the bonie banks of Ayr.

FAREWELL TO AYRSHIRE.

Scenes of wo and scenes of pleasure,
Scenes that former thoughts renew,
Scenes of wo and scenes of pleasure,
Now a sad and last adieu!

Bonie Doon, sae sweet and gloamin,
Fare thee weel before I gang!
Bonie Doon, whare, early roaming,
First I weav'd the rustic sang!

Bowers, adieu, whare Love, decoying,
First inthralld this heart o' mine,
The there the safest sweets enjoying,
Sweets that Mem'ry ne'er shall tyne!

Friends, so near my bosom ever,
Ye hae render'd moments dear;
But, alas! when forc'd to sever,
Then the stroke, O how severe!

Friends! that parting tear, reserve it,
Tho' 'tis doubly dear to me!
Could I think I did deserve it,
How much happier would I be!

THE FAREWELL TO THE BRETHREN OF ST JAMES'S LODGE, TARBOLTON.

Tune—"Good night, and joy be with you all!"

I.
Adieu! a heart-warm fond adieu!
Dear brothers of the mystic yea!
Ye favour'd, ye enlighten'd & w,
Companions of my social joy!
Tho' I to foreign lands must die,
Pursuing fortune's studied bar,
With quaking heart, and numbing eye,
I'll mind you still, tho' far away.

II.
Oft have I met your social hand,
And spent the cheerful, festive night:
Oft, honour'd with supreme command,
Presided o'er the sons of light:
And by that hieroglyphic bright,
Which none but craftsmen ever saw!
Strong memory on my heart shall write
Those happy scenes when far away.

III.
May freedom, harmony, and love,
Unite you in the grand design,
Beneath the Omniscient Eye above,
The glorious Architect divine!
That you may keep the unwrung line,
Still rising by the plummet's line,
Till order bright completely shine,
Shall be my prayer when far away.

IV.
And you, farewell! whose merits claim,
Justly, that highest badge to wear!
Heavy bless your honour'd, noble name
To Masonry and Scotia dear!

FAREWELL TO ELIZA.

Tune—"Gildroy."

I.
From thee, Eliza, I must go,
And from my native shore;
The cruel fates between us throw
A boundless ocean's roar:
But boundless oceans, roaring wide,
Between my love and me,
They never, never can divide
My heart and soul from thee;

II.
Farewell, farewell, Eliza dear,
The maid that I adore!
A booming voice is in mine ear,
We part to meet no more.
But the last throb that leaves my heart,
While death stands victor by,
That throb, Eliza, is thy part,
And thine that latest sigh!

HIGHLAND MARY.

Tune—"Katharine Ogie."

Yg banks, and braes, and streams around
The castle o' Montgomery,
Green be your woods, and fair your flowers
Your waters never drumlie!
There simmer first unfaul'd her robes,
And there the lans'nest tarry;
For there I took the last farewell
O' my sweet highland Mary.

How sweetly bloom'd the gay green birk,
How rich the hawthorn's blossom;
As underneath their fragrant shade,
I clasp'd her to my bosom.
The golden hours on angel wings,
Flew o'er me and my dearie;
For dear to me, as light and life,
Was my sweet Highland Mary.

With many a vow, and lock'd embrace,
Our parting was full tender;
And, pledging oft to meet again,
We tore ourself's asunder.

But oh! fear death's untimely frost
That nipt my flower so early!
Now green's the sod, and could's the clay
That wraps my Highland Mary!

O pale, pale now, those rosy lips,
I afix'd kiss'd she fondly!
And closed, for ay, the sparkling glance,
That dwelt on me so kindly!

And mopering now in silent dust,
That heart that once me dearly!
But still within my bosom's core,
Shall live my Highland Mary.

TO MARY IN HEAVEN.

Those lingering star, with less'ning ray,
That lov'd to greet the early morn,
Again thou art'st in the day
My Mary from my soul was torn.

O Mary! dear departed shade!
Where is thy place of blissful rest?
Seek thou thy lover lowly laid!
Heart'st thou the grounds that rend his breast?

That sacred hour can I forget,
Can I forget the lallow'd grove,
Where by the winding Ayr we met,
To live one day of parting love!

Thereby will not efface,
Those records dear of transports past;
Thy image at our last embrace!
Ah! little thought we 'twas our last!

Ayr gurgling kiss'd his pebbled shore,
O'er-hung with wild woods, thick'n'd green;
The fragrant bough, and hawthorn hour,
Twin'd amorous round the raptur'd scenes.
The flowers sprang wanton to be prest,
The birds sang love on every spray,
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Till too, too soon, the glowing west,
Proclaim'd the speed of winged day.

Still o'er these scenes my mem'ry wakes,
And fondly broods with miser care!

Time but the impression deeper makes,
As streams their channels deeper wear.

My Mary! dear departed shade!
Where is thy blissful place of rest?

Seest thou thy lover lowly laid?
Hear'st thou the groans that rend his breast?

ELEGY ON THE LATE MISS BURNET
OF MONBODDO.

Life ne'er exulted in so rich a prize,
As Burnet, lovely, from her native skies;
Nor envious Death so triumph'd in a blow,
As that which laid the accomplished Burnet low.

Thy form and mind, sweet maid, can I forget?
In richest o'er the brightest jewel set!
In thee, high Heaven above was most shown,
As by his noblest work the Godhead best is known.

In vain ye flaunt in summer's pride, ye groves;
Thou crystal streamlet with thy flowery shore;
Ye woodland choir that chant your idle loves,
Ye cease to charm—Eliza is no more!

Ye heathy wastes, immix'd with reedy fens:
Ye mossy streams, with sedge and rushes stor'd,
Ye rugged cliffs, o'erhanging dreary glens,
To you I fly—ye with my soul accord.

Princes, whose cumb'rous pride was all their worth,
Shall venal lays their porous exit hail?
And thou, sweet excellence! forsake our earth,
And not a muse in honest grief bewail!

We saw thee shine in youth and beauty's pride,
And virtue's light, that beams beyond the spheres.
But like the sun eclips'd at morning tide,
Thou left'st us darkling in a world of tears.

The parent's heart that nestled fond in thee,
That heart how sunk, a prey to grief and care;
So decked the woodbine sweet yon aged tree,
So from it ravish'd, leaves it bleak and bare.

VERSES

ON READING, IN A NEWSPAPER, THE DEATH OF JOHN M'LEOD, ESQ. BROTHE2 TO A YOUNG LADY, A PARTICULAR FRIEND
OF THE AUTHOR.

Sap thy title, then thy praise,
And cureful thy arms:
Dript tears the brother of her love
From Isabella's arms.

Sweetly deck'd with pearly dew
The morning rose may blow;
But soon successive noontide blasts
Might lay its beauties low.

Fare on Isabella's morn
The sun propitious shild'd;
But, long ere moon, succeeding clouds
Succeeding hopes beguil'd.

Fare off wanes the bosom chords
That Nature's most string;
So Isabella's heart was found,
And so that heart was wrung.

Beast Omnipotence, alone,
Can heal one wound he gave;
Can point the tranquil grief-worn eyes
To scenes beyond the grave.

Virtue's blossoms there shall blow,
And fear no with'ring blast:
There Isabella's spotless worth
Shall happy be at last.

SONNET

ON THE DEATH OF ROBERT RIDDLE, ESQ. OF GLEN RIDDLE,
APRIL, 1794.

No more, ye watchers of the wood, no more,
Nor pour your desuet, grating on my soul;
Thou young-voiced Spirit, gay in thy verdant stole,
More welcome were to me than Winter's wildest roar.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

How can ye charm, ye flow'rs, with e'er your dyes?
Ye blow upon the sod that wraps my friend:
How can I to the tuneful strain attend?
That strain flows round the untimely tomb where Riddell lies

Yes, pour, ye warblers, pour the notes of war,
And soothe the Virtue's weeping on this bier:
The Men of Worth, and has not left his peer,
Is in his "narrow house," for ever darkly low.
Thee, Spring, again: with joy shall others greet;
Me, mem'ry of my loss will only meet.

VERSES
ON THE DEATH OF SIR JAMES HUNTER BLAIR.

The lamp of day, with ill-presaging glare,
Dim, cloudy, sunk beneath the western wave;
The inconstant blast how'd thro' the darkening air,
And hollow whistled in the rocky cave.

Lone as I wander'd by each cliff and dell,
Once the bow'd haunts of Scotia's royal train;
Or mus'd where limpid streams, once bathow'd well,
Or mould'ring ruins mark the sacred lane;

The increasing blast roar'd round the beetling rocks,
The clouds, swift-wing'd, flew o'er the starry sky,
The groaning trees untimely shed their locks,
And shooting meteors caught the startled eye.

The pale moon rose in the livid east,
And 'mong the cliffs discies'd a stately form,
In weeds of wo, that frantic beat her breast,
And mix'd her wallings with the raving storm.

Wild to my heart the filial pulses glow,
'Twas Caledonia's trophied shield I view'd:
Her form majestic droop'd in pensive wo,
The light'ning of her eye in tears imbued.

Revers'd that spear, redoubtable in war,
Reclin'd that banner, erst in fields unfurl'd,
That like a deathful meteor gleam'd afar,
And brav'd the mighty monarchs of the world:

* The King's Park, at Holyrood-house.
* St. Anthony's Well.  † St. Anthony's Chapel.
POEMS,

"My patriot Son fills an untimely grave!
With accents wild and lifted arms she cried—
Low lies the hand that oft was stretch'd to save
Low lies the heart that swell'd with honest pride!

A weeping country joins a widow's tear,
The helpless poor mix with the orphan's cry;
The drooping arts surround their patron's bier,
And grateful science heaves the heartfelt sigh.

"I saw my sons resume their ancient fire;
I saw fair Freedom's blossoms richly blow;
But ah! how hope is born but to expire!
Relentless fate has laid this guardian low.

"My patriot falls, but shall he lie unsung,
While empty greatness savs a worthless name?
No; every muse shall join her tuneful tongue,
And future ages hear his growing fame.

"And I will join a mother's tender cares,
Thro' future times to make his virtues last,
That distant years may boast of other Blair's;"
She said, and vanish'd with the sweeping blast.

ADDRESS
TO THE SHADE OF THOMSON, ON CROWNING HIS BUST AT EDNAM, S accusation, WITH SAYS.

While virgin Spring, by Eden's flood,
Unfolds her tender mantle green,
Or pranks the sod in frolic mood,
Or tunes Æolian strains between;

While Summer with a matron grace
Retreats to Dryburgh's cooling shade,
Yet oft, delighted, stops to trace
The progress of the spiky blade;

While Autumn, benefactor kind,
By Tweed erects his aged head,
And sees, with self approving mind,
Each creature on his bounty fed;

While maniac Winter rages o'er
The hills whence classic Yarrow flows,
Rousing the turbid torrent's roar,
Or sweeping, wild, a waste of snows:
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

So long, sweet poet of the year,
    Shall bloom full wreath thou well hast won,
While Scotia, with ev'ning tear,
    Proclaims that Thomson was her son.

I. EPITAPH

FOR THE AUTHOR'S FATHER.

O ye, whose cheek the tear of pity seem'd,
    Draw near with pious reverence, and attend,
Here lie the loving he bend's devoted ashes,
The tender father, and the generous friend.

The pitting heart that felt for human woe;
The dauntless heart that fear'd no human pride;
The friend of man, to vice abhor'd a soul,
  "For ev'n his failings found in virtu's side."

II. EPITAPH

FOR R. A., ESQ.

Know thou, O stranger to the fame
    Of this much lov'd, much honour'd name;
(For none that knew him need he tell)
    A warmer heart Death n'er made cold.

III. EPITAPH

ON A FRIEND

As honest man here lies at rest,
    As e'er God with his image bless'd;
The friend of man, the friend of truth;
The friend of age, and guide of youth;
    Few hearts, like his, with virtue warm'd;
Few heads with knowledge so inform'd;
If there's another world, he lives in bliss;
    If there is none, he made the best of this.

G. L. v.
POEMS,

A BARD'S EPITAPH.

Is there a whim-inspired fool,
Owre fast for thought, owre hot for rule,
Owre blate to seek, owre proud to snoot,
Let him draw near;
And owre this grassy heap sing dool,
And drop a tear.

Is there a Bard of rustic song,
Wha, noteless, steals the crowds among,
That weekly this area throng,
O, pass not by!
But with a flatter-feeling strong,
Here heave a sigh

Is there a man whose judgment clear,
Can others teach the course to steer,
Yet runs, himself. life's mad career,
Wild as the wave;
Here pause—and thro' the starting tear,
Survey this grave.

The poor inhabitant below
Was quick to learn and wise to know,
And keenly felt the friendly glow,
And softer flame,
But thoughtless follies laid him low,
And stain'd his name!

Reader, attend—whether thy soul
Soars fancy's flights beyond the pole,
Or darkly grubs this earthy hole,
In low pursuit;
Know, prudent, cautious, self-control,
Is wisdom's root.

VERSES

ON THE BIRTH OF A POSTHUMOUS CHILD,

_Born in peculiar circumstances of Family Distress_

_Sweet Flow'ret, pledge o' nookle love,_
_And ward o' monie a prav'v,_
_What heart o' stane wad thou na move,_
_Sae helpless, sweet, and fair!_
November hirples o'er the lea,
Chill on thy lovely form;
And gane, alas! the sheltering tree,
Should shield thee frae the storm.

May He who gives the rain to pour,
And wings the blast to blow,
Protect thee frae the driving show'r,
The bitter frost and snow!

May He, the friend of wo and want,
Who heals life's various ounds,
Protect and guard the mother-plant,
And heal her cruel wounds.

But late she flourished, rooted fast,
Fair on the summer morn;
Now, feebly bends she in the blast,
Unshelter'd and forlorn.

Blest be thy bloom, thou lovely gem,
Unscath'd by ruffian hand;
And from thee many a parent stem
Arise to deck our land.

ON SENSIBILITY.

TO MY DEAR AND MUCH HONoured FRIEND, MRS DUNLOP
OF DUNLOP.

Sensibility, how charming,
Thou, my friend, canst truly tell;
But distress with horrors arming,
Thou hast also known too well.

Fairest flower, behold the lily,
Blooming in the sunny ray;
Let the blast sweep o'er the valley,
See it prostrate on the clay.

Hear the wood-lark charm the forest,
Telling o'er his little joys;
Hapless bird! a prey the surest,
To each pirate of the skies.

Dearly bought the hidden treasure,
Finer feelings can bestow;
Chords that vibrate sweetest pleasure,
Thrill the deepest notes of we.
POEMS,

VERSES,

IN SEENING A WOUNDED HARE LIMP BY ME, WHICH A FELLOW HAD JUST SHOT AT.

INHUMAN man! curse on thy barb'rous art,
And blasted be thy murder-aiming eye:
May never pity soothe thee with a sigh,
Nor ever pleasure glad thy cruel heart!

Go, live, poor wanderer of the wood and field,
The bitter little that of life remains;
No more the thickening brakes and verdant plains
To thee shall home, or food, or pastime yield.

Seek, mangled wretch, some place of wonted rest,
No more of rest, but now thy dying bed!
The sheltering rushes whistling o'er thy head,
The cold earth with thy bloody bosom prest.

Oft as by winding Nith, I, musing, wait
The sober eve, or hail the cheerful dawn,
I'll miss thee sporting o'er the dewy lawn,
And curse the ruffian's aim, and mourn thy hapless fate.

LINES,

ON SCARING SOME WATER-FOWL IN LOCH TURIT, A WILD SCENE AMONG THE HILLS OF OUGHTERTYRE.

Why, ye tenants of the lake,
For me your wat'ry haunt forsake?
Tell me, fellow creatures, why
At my presence thus you fly?
Why disturb your social joys,
Parent, filial, kindred ties?
Common friend to you and me,
Nature's gifts to all are free;
Peaceful keep your dimpling wave,
Busy feed, or wanton lave;
Or, beneath the sheltering rock,
Bide the surging billow's shock.

Conscious, blushing for our race,
Soon, too soon, your tears I trace;
Man, your proud usurping foe,
Would be lord of all below;
Plumes himself in Freedom's pride,
Tyrant stern to all beside.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

The eagle from the clifffy brow,
Marking you his prey below,
In his breast no pity dwells,
Strong necessity compels;
But man, to whom alone is giv'n
A ray direct from pitying Heav'n,
Glories in his heart humane,—
And creatures for his pleasure slain.

In these savage, liquid plains,
Only known to wand'ring swains,
Where the mossy rivulet strays,
Far from human haunts and ways,
All on Nature you depend,
And life's poor season peaceful spend.

Or, if man's superior might,
Dare invade your native right,
On the lofty ether borne,
Man with all his pow'rs you scorn;
Swiftly seek, on clanging wings,
Other lakes and other springs;
And the foe you cannot brave,
Scorn at least to be his slave.

SONNET,

WRITTEN ON THE 25TH OF JANUARY, 1793, THE BIRTHDAY
OF THE AUTHOR, ON HEARING A THRUSH IN A MORNING
WALK.

Sing on, sweet thrush, upon the leafless bough;
Sing on, sweet bird, I listen to thy strain;
See aged Winter, mid his surly reign,
At thy blithe carol clears his furrow'd brow;

So in lone Poverty's dominion drear,
Sits meek Content, with light, unanxious heart,
Welcomes the rapid moments, bids them part,
Nor asks if they bring aught to hope or fear.

I thank thee, Author of this opening day,
Thou whose bright sun now gilds you orient skies!
Riches denied, thy boon was purer joys,
What wealth could never give nor take away!

Yet come, thou child of poverty and care;
The mite high Heav'n bestow'd, that mite with thee I'll share.
TO A MOUSE,
ON TURNING HER UP IN HER NEST, WITH THE PLOUGH.
NOVEMBER, 1785.

WEE, sleekit, cow'rin, tim'rous beastie!
O, what a panic's in thy breastie!
Thou need nae start awa sae hasty,
Wi' bickerin brattle!
I wad be laith to rin an' chase thee,
Wi' murd'ring pattle!

I'm truly sorrow man's dominion
Has broken Nature's social union,
An' justifies that ill opinion,
Which makes thee startle
At me, thy poor earth-born companion,
An' fellow-mortal!

I doubt na, whyles but thou may thieve?
What then? poor beastie, thou maun live!
A daimen-icker in a thrave
's a sma' request:
I'll get a blessin wi' the lave,
And never miss't!

Thy wee bit housie, too, in ruin!
Its silly wa's the win's are strewin;
An' naething, now, to big a new ane,
O' foggage green;
An' bleak December win's ensuin,
Baith snell and keen!

Thou saw the fields laid bare an' waste,
An' weary winter comin' fast,
An cozie here, beneath the blast,
Thou thought to dwell,
Till, crash! the cruel coultar past
Out thro' thy cell.

That wee bit heap o' leaves an' stibble,
Has cost thee monie a weary nibble!
Now thou'st turn'd out, for a' thy trouble.
But house or hald,
To thole the winter's sctey dribble,
An' cranreuch cauld!

But, Mousie, thou art no thy lane,
In proving foresight may be vain:
The best laid scheme o' mice an' men,
Gang a-gley.
An' lea'e us nought but grief and pain
For promis'd joy.
Still thou art blest, compar’d wi’ me!
The present only toucheth thee;
But, och! I backward cast my e’e,
On prospects drear!
An’ forward, tho’ I canna see,
I guess an’ fear.

TO A MOUNTAIN DAISY,

ON TURNING ONE DOWN WITH THE PLOUGH, IN APRIL, 1788

WEE, modest, crimson-tipped flow’r,
Thou’st met me in an evil hour;
For I maun crush among the stoure
Thy slender stem;
To spare thee now is past my pow’r,
Thou bonie gem.

Alas! it’s no thy neebor sweet,
The bonie Lark, companion meet,
Bending thee ‘mang the dewy weet,
Wi’ spreckled breast,
When upward-springing, blithe, to greet
The purpling East.

Cauld blew the bitter-biting North
Upon thy early, humble birth;
Yet cheerfully thou glinted forth
Amid the storm,
Scarce rear’d above the parent-earth
Thy tender form.

The flaunting flow’rs our gardens yield,
High shelt’ring woods and wa’s maun shield;
But thou beneath the random bield
O’ clod or stane,
Adorns the hizzie stibble-field,
Unseen, alone.

There, in thy scanty mantle clad,
Thy heartie bosom sunward spread
Thou lift’s thy unassuming head
In humble guise;
But now the share uppears thy bed,
And low thou lies!

Such is the fate of artless Maid;
Sweet flow’ret of the rural shade

Vol. I.
POEMS,

By love's simplicity betray'd,
And guileless trust,
Till she, like thee, all soil'd, is laid
Low in the dust.

Such is the fate of simple Bard,
On life's rough ocean luckless starr'd;
Unskilful he to note the card
Of prudent love,
Till billows rage, and gales blow hard,
And whelm him o'er.

Such fate to suffering worth is giv'n,
Who long with wants and woes has striv'n,
By human pride or cunning driv'n,
To mis'sy's brink,
Till wrench'd of ev'ry stay but Heav'n,
He, ruin'd, sink!

Ev'n thou who mourn'd the Daisy's fate,
That fate is thine—no distant date;
Stern Ruin's plough-share drives, elate,
Full on thy bloom,
Till crush'd beneath the furrow's weight,
Shall be thy doom.

THE HUMBLE PETITION OF BRUAR WATER,*

TO THE NOBLE DUKE OF ATHOLE.

My lord, I know your noble ear
Wo ne'er assails in vain:
Emboldened thus, I beg you'll hear
Your humble slave complain,
How saucy Phoebus' scorchiing beams,
In flaming summer-pride,
Dry-withering, waste my foamy streams
And drink my crystal tide.

The lightly jumping glowin' trouts,
That thro' my waters play,
If, in their random, wanton spouts,
They near the margin stray;

* Bruar Falls, in Athole, are exceedingly picturesque and beautiful: but their effect is much impaired by the want of trees and shrubs.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

If, hapless chance, they linger lang,
I'm scorcliiug up so shallow,
They're left the whiting stanes amang,
In gasping death to wallow.

Last day I grat wi' spite and teen,
As Poet B came by,
That, to a Bard, I should be seen
Wi' half my channel dry;
A panegyric rhyme, I ween,
Ev'n as I was, he shor'd me;
But had I in my glory been,
He, kneeling, wad ador'd me.

Here, foaming down the shelvy rocks,
In twisting strength I rin;
There, high my boiling torrent smokes,
Wild-roaring o'er a linn;
Enjoying large each spring and well
As nature gave them me,
I am, altho' I say't myself,
Worth gawn a mile to see.

Would then my noble master please
To grant my highest wishes,
He'll shade my banks wi' tow'ring trees,
And bonie spreading bushes;
Delighted doubly then, my lord,
You'll wander on my banks,
And listen monie a grateful bird
Return you tuneful thanks.

The sober lav'rock, warbling wild,
Shall to the skies aspire;
The gowdspink music's gayest child,
Shall sweetly join the choir;
The blackbird strong, the lintwhite clear,
The mavis mild and mellow;
The robin pensive autumn cheer,
In all her looks of yellow:

This too, a covert shall ensure,
To shield them from the storm;
And coward nauk'in sleep secure,
Low in her grassy form;
Here shall the shepherd make his seat,
To weave his crown of flow'rs;
Or find a shel'tring, safe retreat,
From prone descending show'rs.
And here, by sweet endearing stealth,
Shall meet the loving pair,
Despising worlds with all their wealth
As empty, idle care.
The flow'rs shall vie in all their charms,
The hour of heav'n to grace,
And birks extend their fragrant arms,
To screen the dear embrace.

Here haply too, at vernal dawn,
Some musing Bard may stray,
And eye the smoking, dewy lawn,
And misty mountain, gray;
Or, by the reaper's nightly beam,
Mild cheep'ring thro' the trees,
Rave to my darkly-dashing stream,
Hoarse-swell'ning on the breeze.

Let lofty firs, and ashes cool,
My lovely banks o'erspread,
And view, deep-bending in the pool,
Their shadows' wat'ry bed;
Let fragrant birks in woodbines drest
My craggy cliffs adorn;
And, for the little songster's nest,
The close embow'ring thorn.

So may old Scotia's darling hope,
Your little angel band,
Spring, like their father's, up to prop
Their honour'd native land.
So may thro' Albion's farthest ken,
To social flowing glasses,
The grace be—"Athole's honest men,
"And Athole's bonie lasses!"

LINES

WRITTEN WITH A PENCIL, OVER THE CHIMNEY-PIECE, IN THE PARLOUR OF THE INN AT KENMORE, TAYMOUTH

Admiring Nature in her wildest grace,
These northern scenes with weary feet I trace;
O'er many a winding dale and painful steep,
The abodes of covey'd grouse and timid sheep,
My savage journey, curious, I pursue,
Till fam'd Breadalbane opens to my view —
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

The meeting cliffs each deep-sunk glen divides,
The woods, wild scatter'd, clothe their ample sides;
The unstretching lake, embosom'd 'mong the hills,
The eye with wonder and amazement fills;
The Tay, meand'ring sweet, in infant pride,
The palace rising on his verdant side;
The lawns wood-fring'd in Nature's native taste;
The hillocks dropt in Nature's careless haste;
The arches striding o'er the new-born stream;
The village, glittering in the noon-tide beam—

Poetic ardours in my bosom swell,
Lone, wand'ring by the hermit's mossy cell:
The sweeping theatre of hanging woods;
Th' incessant roar of headlong tumbling floods—

Here Poesy might wake her heav'n-taught lyre,
And look thro' Nature with creative fire;
Here, to the wrongs of Fate half reconcil'd,
Misfortune's lighten'd steps might wander wild;
And Disappointment, in these lonely bounds,
Find balm to sooth her bitter, rankling wounds;
Here heart-struck Grief might heav'n-ward stretch her scan
And injur'd Worli forget and pardon man.

LINES

WRITTEN WITH A PENCIL, STANDING BY THE FALL OF FYERS, NEAR LOCH-NESS.

Among the heathy hills and ragged woods
The roaring Fyers pours his mossy floods;
Till full he dashes on the rocky mounds,
Where, through a shapeless breach, his stream resounds
As high in air the bursting torrents flow,
As deep recoiling surges it am below,
Prone down the rock the whitening sheet descends,
And viewless Echo's ear, astonish'd, reads.
Dim seen, through rising mists and ceaseless show'rs
The hoary cavern, wide-surrounding, low'rs.
Still thro' the gap the struggling river toils,
And still, below, the horrid caldron boils—

FAMILIAR AND EPISTOLARY

TO MISS L.—-

WITH BEATTIE'S POEMS AS A NEW-YEAR'S GIFT, JANUARY 1, 1787.

Again the silent wheels of time
Their annual round have drew'n,
And you, tho' scarce in maiden prime,
Are so much nearer heav'n.

No gifts have I from Indian coasts
The infant year to hail;
I send you more than India boasts
In Eden's simple tale.

Our sex with guile and faithless love
Is charm'd, perhaps too true;
But may, dear maid, each lover prove
An Ethera still to you.

TO MISS CRUICKSHANKS,
A VERY YOUNG LADY,

Written on the blank leaf of a Book, presented to her by the Author.

BRACTEONS rose bud, young and gay,
Blooming on thy early May,
Never may'st thou, lovely flow'r,
Chilly shrunk in empty show'r!
Never Boreas' heavy path,
Never Eurus' pestilous breath,
Never baleful stellis lights,
Taint thee with untimely blights.
POEMS, CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Never, never reptile thief
Lot on thy virgin leaf!
Nor even Sol too fiercely view
Thy bosom blushing still with dew!

May'st thou long, sweet crimson gem,
Richly deck thy native stem;
Till some evening, sober, calm,
Dropping dews, and breathing balm,
While all around the woodland rings,
And ev'ry bird thy requiem sings;
Thou amid the dirgeful sound,
Shed thy dying honours round,
And resign to parent earth
The loveliest form she e'er gave birth.

VERSEs
ON A YOUNG LADY,

Residing on the banks of the small river Devon, in Clack-mannanshire, but whose infant years were spent in Ayrshire.

How pleasant the banks of the clear-winding Devon,
With green spreading bushes, and flow'rs blooming fair;
But the boniest flower on the banks of the Devon
Was once a sweet bud on the braes of the Ayr.

Mild be the sun on this sweet blush'ning flower,
In the gay, rosy morn, as it bathes in the dew!
And gentle the fall of the soft vernal shower,
That steals on the evening each leaf to renew.

O spare the dear blossom, ye orient breezes,
With chill hoary wing, as ye usher the dawn!
And far be thou distant, thou reptile that seizes
The verdure and pride of the garden and lawn.

Let Bourbon exult in his gay gilded lilies,
And England triumphant display her proud rose;
A finer than either adorns the green vallies
Where Devon, sweet Devon, meandering flows.
POEMS,

VERSES

TO A YOUNG LADY, WITH A PRESENT OF SONGS.

Here, where the Scottish muse immortal lives,
In sacred strains and tuneful numbers join'd
Accept the gift; tho' humble he who gives,
Rich is the tribute of the grateful mind.

So may no ruffian-feeling in thy breast
Discordant jar thy bosom-chords among;
But peace attune thy gentle soul to rest,
Or love ecstatic wake his seraph song;

Or pity's notes, in luxury of tears,
As modest want the tale of wo reveals;
While conscious virtue all the strain endears
And heav'n-born piety her sanction seals.

VERSES,

WRITTEN ON THE BLANK LEAF OF A COPY OF HIS POEMS,
PRESENTED TO A LADY, WHOM HE HAD OFTEN CELEBRATED UNDER THE NAME OF CHLORIS.

'Tis Friendship's pledge, my young fair friend,
Nor thou the gift refuse,
Nor with unwilling ear attend
The moralizing muse.

Since thou, in all thy youth and charms,
Must bid the world adieu,
'A world 'gainst peace in constant arms)
'To join the friendly few.

Since, thy gay morn of life o'ercast,
Chill came the tempest's lower;
And ne'er misfortune's eastern blast
Did nip a fairer flower.

Since life's gay scenes must charm no more,
Still much is left behind;
Still nobler wealth hast thou in store,
The comforts of the mind.

Thine is the self-approving glow,
On conscious honour's part;
And, dearest gift of Heaven below,
Thine friendship's truest heart.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

The joys refin'd of sense and taste,
With every Muse to rove:
And doubly were the Poet blest,
These joys could he improve.

VERSES,

Written on the blank leaf of a copy of his poems, presented to an old sweetheart, then married.

Once fondly lov'd, and still remember'd dear,
Sweet early object of my youthful vows,
Accept this mark of friendship, warm, sincere,
Friendship!—'tis all cold duty now allows:
And when you read the simple, artless rhymes,
One friendly sigh for him, he asks no more,
Who distant burns in flaming, torrid climes,
Or haply lies beneath the Atlantic roar.

TO A YOUNG LADY,

Kiss Jessy L——, Dumfries; with books which the Bard presented her.

Think be the volumes, Jessy fair,
And with them take the Poet's prayer;
That Fate may in her fairest page,
With ev'ry kindliest, best presage
Of future bliss, enrol thy name,
With native worth and spotless fame,
And wakeful caution, still aware
Of ill—but chief, man's felon snare;
All blameless joys on earth we find
And all the treasures of the mind—
These be thy guardian and reward,
So prays thy faithful friend, the bard.

TO J. S*

Friendship! mysterious cement of the soul
Sweet'ner of life, and solder of society!
I owe thee much.—

Dear S*, the elest, paucile thief,
That e'er attempted stealth or rief,
Ye surely hae some warlock-breef
Ov'er human hearts;
For ne'er a bosom yet wasrief
Against your airs.

For me, I swear by sun and moon,
And ev'ry star that blinks aboon,
Ye've cost me twenty pair o' shoon
Just gain to see you;
And ev'ry ether pair that's done,
Mair ta'en I'm wi' you.

That auld capricious carlin, Nature,
To mak' amends for scrimpit stature,
She's turn'd you aft' a human creature
On her first plan,
And in her freaks, on ev'ry feature,
She's wrote the Man.

Just now I've ta'en the fit o' rhyme,
My barmie noddle's working prime,
My fancie yerkite up sublime
Wi' hasty summon;
Hae ye a leisure-moment's time
To hear what's comin'?

Some rhyme, a nebor's name to lash;
Some rhyme (vain thought!) for needfu' cash;
Some rhyme to court the countra clash,
An' raise a din;
For me, an aim I never fash;
I rhyme for fun.

The star that rules my luckless lot,
Has fated me the russet coat,
And damn'd my fortune to the groat;
But in requit,
Has bless'd me wi' a random shot
O' countra wit.

This while my notion's ta'en a skleut,
To try my fate in guld black prent;
But still the mair I'm that way bent,
Something cries, "Hoolie!
I rede you, honest man, tak tent!
Ye'll shaw your folly.

"There's ither poets, much your betterers,
Far seen in Greek, deep men o' letters,
Hae thought they had insured their debtors
A' future ages;
Now moths deform in shapeless tatters
Their unknown pages."
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Then fareweel hopes o' laurel-boughs,
To garland my poetic brows!
Henceforth I'll rove where busy ploughs
Are whistling th'ang,
An' teach the lanky heights and howes
My rustic sang.

I'll wander on w' tentless heed,
How never-halting moments speed,
Till fate shall snap the brittle thread;
Then, all unknown,
I'll lay me with the inglorious dead,
Forgot and gone!

But why o' Death begin a tale?
Just now we're living, sound, and hale,
Then top and maintop crowd the sail,
Heave Care o'er-side!
And large, before Enjoyment's gale,
Let's tak the tide.

This life, sae far's I understand,
Is a' enchanted, fairy land,
Where Pleasure is the magic wand
That, wielded right,
Makes hours like minutes, hand in hand,
Dance by fu' light.

The magic wand then let us wield;
For, ance that five-an'-forty's speel'd,
See crazy, weary, joyless Eild,
W' wrinkled face,
Comes hostin, bripin owre the field,
W' creepin pace.

When ance Life's day draws near the gloamin,
Then fareweel vacant, careless roamin;
An' fareweel cheerful tankards foamin,
An' social noise;
An' fareweel dear, deluding woman,
The joy of joys!

O life! how pleasant in thy morning
Young Fancy's rays the hills adorning!
Cold-pausing Caution's lessons scorning,
We frisk away,
Like school-boys, at th' expected warning,
To joy and play.

We wander there, we wander here,
We eye the rose upon the brier,
Unmindful that the thorn is near,
Among the leaves;
And though the puny wound appear,
Short while it grieves.

Some, lucky, find a flow'ry spot,
For which they never toil'd nor swat;
They drink the sweet, and eat the fat,
But care or pain;
And, haply, eye the barren hut
With high disdain.

With steady aim, some Fortune chase;
Keen Hope does every sinew brace;
Thro' fair, thro' foul, they urge the race,
And seize the prey;
Then canic, in some cozic place,
They close the day.

And others, like your humble servant,
Poor wights! no rules nor roads observe;
To right or left eternal swervin',
They zig-zag on;
Till curst with age, obscure an' starvin',
They often groan.

Alas! what bitter toil an' straining—
But, truce with peevish, poor complaining!
Is Fortune's fickle June waning?
E'en let her gang!
Beneath what light she has remaining,
Let's sing our song.

My pen I here fling to the door,
And kneel, "Ye Powers!" and warm implore,
"Tho' I should wander Terra o'er,
In all her climes,
Grant me but this, I ask no more,
Ay rowth o' rhymes.

"Gie dreeping roasts to countria lairds,
Till icicles hing frae their beards;
Gie fine braw clas to fine Life-Guards,
And Maids o' Honour;
And yell an' whiskey gie to Cairds,
Until they scunner.

"A Title, Dempster merits it;
A garter gie to Willie Patt;
Gie Wealth to some be-leger'd cia,
In cent. per cent.;
But gie me real, sterling Wit,
And I'm content.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

"While ye are pleas'd to keep me hale,
I'll sit down o'er my scanty meal,
Be't water-brose or muslin-kail,
Wit' cheerful face,
As lang's the Muses dinna fall
'To say the grace."

An anxious e'e I never throws
Behint my lug, or by my nose;
I jouk beneath Misfortune's blows
As weel's I may;
Sworn foe to Serrow, Care, and Prose,
I rhyme away.

O ye douce folk, that live by rule,
Grave, tideless-bloody, calm, and cool,
Compar'd wit' you—O fool! fool! fool!
How much unlike!
Your hearts are just a standing pool,
Your lives, a dyke!

Nae hair-brain'd, sentimental trachs
In your unlettered nameless faces,
In ariose trills and graces
Ye never stray;
But, gravissimo, solemn basses
Ye hum away.

Ye are sae grave, nae doubt ye're wise;
Nae ferly tho' ye do despise
The hairum scairum, ram-stam boys,
I see you upward cast your eyes—
Ye ken the road.

Whilst I—but I shall hauk me there—
Wi' you I'll scarce gang ony where—
Then, Jamie, I shall say nae mair,
But quit my sang,
Content wi' you, to mak a pair,
Whare'er I gang.
POEMS,

EPISTLE TO DAVIE,
A BROTHER PORT.*

January——

I.

While winds true aff Ben-Lomond blaw
And bar the doors wi' driving snow,
And hing us owre theingle,
I sit me down to pass the time,
And spin a verse or twa o' rhyme,
In hamey westlin jingle.

While frosty winds blaw in the drift,
Ben to the chimla lug,
I grudge a wee the great folks' gift,
That live sae bien an' snug:
Their roomy fire side;
But hanker and canker,
To see their cursed pride.

II.

It's hardly in a body's pow'r
To keep at times frae being sour,
To see how things are shar'd;
How best o' chiel are whiles in want,
While coofs on countless thousands rant,
And ken na how to wair't:

But, Davie, lad, ne'er fash your head,
Tho' we hae little gear,
We're fit to win our daily bread,
As lang's we're hale and fier;
"Mair spier na, no fear na,"†
Auld age ne'er mind a feg,
The last o't, the warst o't,
Is only for to beg.

III.

To lie in kilns and barns at e'en,
When banes are craz'd and bluid is thin
Is, doubtless, great distress!
Yet then content could make us blest;
Ev'n then, sometimes we'd snatch a taste
Of truest happiness.

* David Sillar, one of the club at Tarbolton, and author of a volume of Poems in the Scottish dialect.
† Ramsay.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

The honest heart that's free frae a'
Intended fraud or guile,
However Fortune kick the ba',
Has ay some cause to smile;
And mind still, you'll find still,
A comfort this nae sma';
Nae mair then, we'll care then,
Nae farther can we fa'.

IV.

What tho', like commoners of air,
We wander out we know not where,
But either house or hail!
Yet nature's charms, the hills and woods,
The sweeping vales and foaming floods,
Are free alike to all.
In days when daisies deck the ground,
And blackbirds whistle clear,
With honest joy our hearts will bound,
To see the coming year:
On braes when we please, then,
We'll sit an' sowth a tune;
Syne rhyme till't, we'll time till't,
And sing't when we hae done.

V.

It's no in titles nor in rank
It's no in wealth like Lon'on bank,
To purchase peace and rest;
It's in makin' muckle mair;
It's no in books; it's no in lear,
To make us truly blest:
If happiness hae not her seat
And centre in the breast,
We may be wise, or rich, or great,
But never can be blest:
Nae treasures, nor pleasures,
Could make us happy lang;
The heart's ay the part ay,
That makes us right or wrang

VI.

Think ye, that sic as you and I,
Wha drudge and drive thro' wet and dry,
Wi' never-censing toil,
Think ye, are we less blest than they,
Wha scarcely tent us in their way,
As hardly worth their while?
POEMS,

Alas! how a'ft in haughty mood,
God's creatures they oppress!
Or else, neglecting a' that's guid,
They riot in excess!
Baith careless and fearless
Of either heav'n or hell!
Esteeming, and deeming
It's a' an idle tale!

VII.

Then let us cheerfu' acquiesce,
Nor make our scanty pleasures less,
By pining at our state;
And, even should misfortunes come,
I, here wha sit, hae met wi' some,
An' 's thankful for them yet.
They gie the wit of age to youth;
They let us ken oursel';
They make us see the naked truth,
The real guid and ill.
Tho' losses and crosses,
Be lessons right severe,
There's wit there, ye'll get there,
Ye'll find na other where.

VIII.

But tent me, Davie, a' heart!
'To say aught less wad wrang the cartes
And flatter'ry I detest,
This life has joys for you and I;
And joys that riches ne'er could buy;
And joys the very best.
There's a' the pleasures a' the heart,
The lover an' the frien';
Ye hae your Meg, your dearest part,
And I my darling Jean!
It warms me, it charms me,
To mention but her name:
It heats me, it beets me,
And sets me a' on flame!

IX.

O all ye Pow'rs who rule above!
O Thou whose very self art loved!
Thou know'st my words sincere!
The life-blood streaming thro' my heart
Of my more dear in mortal part
Is not more fondly dear:
When heart-corroding care and grief
Deprive my soul of rest,
Her dear idea brings relief
And solace to my breast.
Thou Being, All-seeing,
O hear my fervent pray'r,
Still take her, and make her
Thy most peculiar case.

All hail, ye tender feelings dear!
The smile of love, the friendly tear,
The sympathetic glow;
Long since, this world's thorny ways
Had numbered out my weary days,
Had it not been for you!
Fate still has blest me with a friend,
In every care and ill;
And of a more endearing band,
A tie more tender still.
It lightens, it brightens,
The tender side scene,
To meet with, and greet with,
My Davie or my Jean.

O, how that name inspires my style!
The words come skelpin rank and file,
Amaist before I ken!
The ready measure rins as fine,
As Phoebus and the famous Nine
Were glowin ower my pen.
My spaviet Pegasus will limp,
Till ance he's fairly het;
And then he'n hilch, and still, and jump,
An'rin an unco fit:
But lest then, the beast then,
Should rue this hasty ride,
I'll light now, and fight now,
His sweaty, wizen'd hine.

TO THE SAME.

ACED NEEDOR,
I'm three times doubly o'er your debtor,
For your auld-farram, frien'ly letter,
Tho' I maun say't, I doubt ye flatter,
Ye speak sae fair;

Vol. I.
POEMS,

For my pair, silly, rhymin' clatter,
Some less maun sair.

Hale be your heart, hale be your fiddle;
Lang may your elbuck jink an' diddle,
To cheer you thro' the weary widdle
O' warly cares,
Till bairns' bairns kindly cuddle
Your auld gray hairs.

But, Davie, lad, I'm red ye're glaikit;
I'm tauld the muse ye hae neglecikit,
An' gif its sae, ye sud be creek
Until ye fyke;
Sic hauns as you sud ne'er be faikit,
Be hain't wha like.

For me, I'm on Parnassus' brink,
Rivin the words tae gar them clink;
Whytes dacz't wi' love, whytes dacz't wi' drink
Wi' jads or masons;
An' wylies, but ay o'we late, I think
Braw sober lessons.

Of a' the thoughtless sons o' man,
Comment me to the Bardie clan;
Except it be some idle plan
O' rhymin' clink
The devil-haet, that I s.d ban,
They ever think.

Nae thought, nae view, nae scheme o' livin',
Nae cares tae gie us joy or grievin';
But just the pouchie put the nieve in,
An' while aught's there,
Then hiltie, skittle, we gae scrievin',
An' fash nae mair.

Looze me on rhyme! its ay a treasure,
My chief, amaist my only pleasure,
At hame, a-fiel', at wark or leisure,
The Muse, poor hizzie!
Tho' rough an' raploch be her measure,
She's seldom lazy.

Haud tae the Muse, my daintie Davie!
The wairl' may play you monie a shaw,
But for the Muse, she'll never leave ye,
Tho' e'er sae pair.
Na, even tho' lasspin wi' the spavie
Frae door to door.

EPISTLE TO J. LAPRAIK,

AN OLD SCOTTISH BARD.

April 1, 1785.

While briers an' woodbines budding green,
An' patricks scratchin loud at e'en,
An' morning pouseie whiddin seen,
Inspire my Muse,
This freedom in an unknown frien'
I pray excuse.

On fasteen-een we had a rockin,
To ca' the crack and weave our stockin
And there was muckle fun an' jokin
Ye need na doubt
At length we had a hearty jokin
At sang' about.

There was an' sang, amang the row
Aboon them a' it pleas'd me best,
That some kind husband had adrest
'To some sweet wife;
It thrill'd the heart-strings thro' the breast,
A' to the life.

I've scarce heard aught describe sae wee
What gen'rous, manly bosoms feel;
Thought I, "Can this be Pope, or Steele,
Or Beattie's wark?"
'They told me 'twas an odd kind chief
About Muirkirk.

It pat me figdin-fain to hear't,
And sae about him there I spier't,
Then a' that kent him round declar'd
He had ingine,
'That nane excell'd it, few ean near' t,
It was sae fine.

That set him to a pint of ale
An' either douce or merry tale,
Of rhymes an' sags he'd made himsel,
Or witty catches,
'Tween Inverness and Tiviotdale,
He had few matches.

Then up I gat, an' swore an aith,
Though I should pawn my pleugh and grain,
POEMS,

Or die a cadger-pownie's death,
At some dyke-back,
A pint an' gill I'd gie them baith
To hear your crack.

But first an' foremost, I should tell,
Amaist as soon as I could spell,
I to the crambo-jingle fell,
Tho' rude an' rough,
Yet crooning to a body's sel,
Does weil enough.

I am nae Poet, in a sense,
But just a Rhymer, like, by chance,
An' hae to learning nae pretence.
Yet what tha matter?
Whene'er my Muse does on me glance,
I jingle at her.

Your critic-folk may cek their nose,
And say, "How can you e'er propose,
You wha ken hardly verse frae prose,
To mak a sung?"
But, by your leaves, my learned foes,
Ye're may be wrang.

What's a' your jargon o' your schools,
Your Latin names for horns an' stools,
If honest nature made you fools,
What sairs your grammars?
Ye'd better taen up spades and shools,
Or knappin-hammers.

A seet o' dull, conceited hashes,
Confuse their brains in college classes!
They gang in stirsks, and come out races,
Plain truth to speak:
An' syne they think to climb Parnassus
By dint o' Greek!

Gie me ae spark o' nature's fire,
That's a' the learning I desire;
Then tho' I drudge thro' dub an' mire
At pleugh or cart,
My Muse, tho' hamely in attire,
May touch the heart.

O for a spunk o' Allan's glee,
Or Fergusson's, the baud and slee,
Or bright Lapraik's, my friend to be,
If I can hit it!
That would be lear enough for me.
If I could get it!
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Now, sir, if ye hae friends now,
Tho' real friends, I b'lieve are few;
Yet, if your catalogue be fou,
I se no insist,
But gif ye want a friend that's true,
I'm on your list.

I winna blaw about mysel;
As ill I like my faults to tell;
But friends and folk that wish me well,
They sometimes roose me,
Tho' I maun own, as monie still
As far abuse me.

There's ae wee fault they whyles lay to me
I like the lasses—Gude forgive me!
For monie a plack they wheedle frae me
At dance or fair;
May be some ither thing they gie me,
They weel can spare.

But Mauchline race, or Mauchline fair,
I should be proud to meet you there,
We'se gie ae night's discharge to care,
If we forgather,
An' hae a swap o' rhymin'-ware
Wi' ane anither.

The four-gill chap, we'se gar him clatter,
An' kirsen him wi' reckin water;
Syne we'll sit down an' tak our whitter
To cheer our heart;
An' faith, we'se be acquainted better
Before we part.

Awa, ye selfish, warly race,
Wha think that havins, sense an' grace,
Ev'n love an' friendship should give place
To catch-the-plack!
I dinna like to see your face,
Nor hear your crack.

But ye whom social pleasure charms,
Whose hearts the tide of kindness warms
Who hold your being on the terms,
"Each aid the others!"
Come to my bowl, come to my arms,
My friends, my brothers!

But, to conclude my lang epistle,
As my auld pen's worn to the gristle;
POEMS,

Twa lines frae you wad gar me fissle,
Who am, most fervent,
While I can either sing or whistle,
Your friend and servant.

TO THE SAME.

April 21, 1785.

While new-ca’d kye rout at the stake
An’ pownies reck in plough or braik,
This hour on e’enin’s edge I take,
To own I’m debtor
To honest-hearted, auid Lapraik,
For his kind letter.

Forjesket sair, with weary legs,
Rattlin the corn out-owre the rigs,
Or dealing thro’ amang the naigs
Their ten-hours bite,
My awkart Muse sair pleasa and begs,
I would na write.

The tapless ramble’d hizzie,
She’s saft at best, and something lazy,
Quo’ she, “Ye ken we’ve been sae busy,
This mouth an’ mair,
That trough my head is grown right dizzle,
And something sair.”

Her dowff excuses pat me mad:
“Conscience,” says, I, “ye thowless jad!
I’ll write, an’ that a hearty blaud,
That vera night;
So dinna ye affront your trade,
But rhyme it right.

“Shall bauld Lapraik, the king o’ hearts,
Tho’ mankind were a pack of cartes,
Roose you sae weel for your deserts,
In terms sae friendly,
Yet ye’ll neglect to show your parts,
And thank him kindly!”

Sae I gat paper in a blink,
An’ down gaed stumptie in the ink
Quoth I, “Before I sleep a wink,
I vow I’ll close it;
An’ if you winna mak it clink,
By Jove I’ll prose it!”
Sae I've begun to scrawl, but whether
In rhyme or prose, or baith thegither,
Or some hotch-potch that's rightfully neither
Let time mak proof;
But I shall scribble down some blether
Just clean aff-loof.

My worthy friend, ne'er grudge an' carp
Tho' fortune use you hard an' sharp;
Come, kittle up your moorland harp
'Wi' gleesome touch!.
Ne'er mind how Fortune waft an' warp;
She's but a b-tch.

She's glen me monie a jest an' fleg;
Sin' I could striddle owre a rig;
But by the L—d, tho' I should beg
'Wi' layart pow,
I'll laugh an' sing, an' shake my leg,
As langs I dow!

Now comes the sax-an'-twentieth simmer
I've seen the bud ope' the timmer,
Still persecuted by the limmer
Frae year to year;
But yet, despite the kittle kimmer
I, Rob, am here.

Do ye envy the city Gent,
Behind a kist to lie and skaint,
Or purse-proud, big wi' cent. per cent.,
And muckle wane,
In some bit burgh to represent
A Bailie's name!

Or, le't the paughty, feudal Thane,
'Wi' ruffled sark an' glancing cane,
Wha thinks himself nae sheep-shank bane,
But lordly stalks,
While caps and bennets aff are taen,
As by he walks?

"O Thou wha gies us each good gift,
Gle me o' wit an' sense a lif,
Then turn me, if Thou please, adrift,
Thro' Scotland wide;
'Wi' Cits nor Lairds I wadna shift,
In a' their pride!"

Were this the charter of our state,
"On pain of hell be rich an' great,"

CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.
POEMS,

Damnation then would be our fate,
Beyond remead;
But thanks to Heav'n! that's no the gate
We learn our creed:—

For thus the royal mandate ran,
When first the human race began—
"The social, friendly, honest man,
Whate'er he be,
'Tis he fulfils great Nature's plan,
An' none but he!"

O mandate glorious and divine!
The ragged followers of the Nine,
Poor thoughtless devils! yet may shine
In glorious light,
While sordid sons of Mammon's line
Are dark as night.

Tho' here they scrape, an' squeeze, an' growl,
Their worthless neivfu' of a soul
May in some future carcass howl,
The forest fright;
Or in some day-detesting owl
May shun the light.

Then may Lapraik and Burns arise,
To reach their native, kindred skies,
And sing their pleasures, hopes, an' joys,
In some mild sphere,
Still closer knit in friendship's ties,
Each passing year!

TO W. S*N.

OCHILTREE, MAY, 1785.

I get your letter, winsome Willie;
Wi' grateful heart I thank you brawlie
Tho' I maun say't, I wad be silly,
An' unco vain,
Should I believe, my coarin' billy,
Your flatt'rin strain.

But I se believe ye kindly meant it,
I sud be laith to think ye hinted
Ironic satire, sideline skindent
On my poor Musie;
Tho' in sic phraisin terms ye've penn'd it,
I scarce excuse ye.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

My senses wad be in a creel,
Should I but dare a hope to speel,
Wi' Allan, or wi' Gilbertfield,
The braes o' fame;
Or Fergusson, the writer-chiel,
A deathless name.

(O Fergusson! thy glorious parts
Ill suited law's dry, musty arts!
My curse upon your whinistane hearts,
Ye Ediburgh gentry!
The tithe o' what ye waste at cartes,
Wad stow'd his pantry!)

Yet when a tale comes i' my head,
Or lasses gie my heart a screech,
As whyles they're like to be my dead,
(O sad disease!)
I kittle up my rustic reed,
It gies my case.

Auld Coila now may fidge fu' fain,
She's gotten Poets o' her ain,
Chiels wha their chanters winna hain,
But tune their lays
Till echoes a' resound again
Her weel-sung praise.

Nae Poet thought her worth his while,
To set her name in measur'd style!
She lay like some unkenn'd-of isle
Beside New-Holland,
Or whare wild-meeting oceans boil
Besouth Magellan.

Ramsay an' famous Fergusson
Gled Forth an' Tay a lift aboon;
Yarrow an' Tweed, to monie a tune,
Owre Scotland rings;
While Irwin, Lugar, ayr an' Doon,
Nae body sings.

Th' Iliassus, Tiber, Thames an' Seine,
Glide sweet in monie a tunefu' line!
But, Willie, set your fit to mine,
An' cock your crest,
We'll gar our streams and burnics shine
Up wi' the best.

We'll sing auld Coila's plains an' fells,
Her moors red-brown wi' heather-bells,
POEMS,

Her banks an’ braes, her dens an’ dells,
Where glorious Wallace
Aft bure the gree, as story tells,
Frac Southron billies.

At Wallace’s name, what Scottish blood
But boils up in a spring-tide flood!
Oft have our fearless fathers strode
By Wallace’s side,
Still pressing onward, red-wat shod,
Or glorious dy’d.

O sweet are Coila’s haughs an’ woods,
When lintwhites chant among the buds,
And jirkin bares, in amorous whids,
Their loves enjoy,
While thro’ the braes the cushion croods
Wi’ wailfu’ cry!

Ev’n winter bleak has charms to me,
When winds rave through the naked tree;
Or frosts on hills of Ochiltree
Are hoary gray;
Or blinding drifts wild furious flee,
Dark’ning the day!

O Nature! a’ thy shews an’ forms
To feeling pensive hearts nae charms!
Whether the summer kindly warms,
Wi’ life an’ light,
Or winter howls, in gusty storms,
The lang, dark night!

The Muse, nae Poet ever fand her,
Till by himself he learn’d to wander,
Adown some trotting burn’s meander,
An’ no think lang!
O sweet, to stray an’ pensive ponder
A heart-felt sang!

The warly race may drudge an’ drive,
Hog-shouther, jundie, stretch an’ strive,
Let me fair Nature’s face descrive,
And I, wi’ pleasure,
Shall let the busy, grumbling hive
Bum owre their treasure.

Fareweel, “my rhyme-composing brither!”
We’ve been owre lang unkenn’d to ither:
Now let us lay our heads thegither,
In love fraternal:
May Envy wallop in a tether,
Black fiend, infernal!
While Highlandmen have tolls an’ taxes;
While moorlan’ herds like guid fat braxiea;
While terra firma, on her axis
Diurnal turns,
Count on a friend in faith an’ practice
In Robert Burns.

POSTSCRIPT.
My mem’ry’s no worth a preen;
I had amaist forgotten clean,
Ye bade me write you what they mean
By this new light,*
’Bout which our herds sae aft ha’e been
Maist like to fight.

In days when mankind were but callans
At Grammar, Logic, and sic talents,
They took nae pains their speech to balance,
Or rules to gie,
But spak their thoughts in plain, braid Lallians
Like you or me.

In thae auld times, they thought the moon,
Just like sark, or pair o’ shoor,
Wore by degrees, till her last roon,
Gaed past their viewin’,
An’ shortly after she was done,
They gat a new one.

This past for certain, undisputed:
It ne’er came in their heads to doubt it.
Till chiefl gat up an’ wad confute it,
An’ ca’d it wrang;
An’ muckle din there was about it,
Baith loud and lang.

Some herds, wecl learn’d upo’ the beuk,
Wad threp auld folk the thing misteuk?
For ’twas the auld moon turn’d a neuk,
An’ out o’ sight.
An’ backlins-comin, to the leuk,
She grew mair bright.

This was deny’d, it was affirm’d;
The herds an’ hissies were alarm’d;
The rev’rend gray-beards rav’d an’ storm’d,
That beardless laddies
Should think they better were inform’d
Than their auld daddies.

* New light, a cant phrase in the West of Scotland for those religious opinions which Dr. Taylor of Norwich defended so strenuously.
POEMS,

Frac less to mair it gaed to sticks;
Frac words an' aiths to blours an' nicks,
And monie a fallow gat his licks,
Wi' hearty crunt;
An' some, to learn them for their tricks,
Were hang'd an' brunt.

This game was play'd in monie lands,
An' auld light caddies pure sic hands,
That, faith, the youngsters took the sands
Wi' nimble shanks,
The lairds forbade, by strict commands,
Sic bluidy pranks.

But new-light herds gat sic a cowe,
Folk thought them run'd stick an' stowe,
Till now a'maists on ev'ry knowe,
Ye'll find ane plac'd;
An' some, their new-light fair avow,
Just quite barefac'd.

Nae doubt the auld-light flocks are bleathn;
Their zealous herds are vex'd an' sweatin;
Mysel, I've even seen them greetin
Wi' grin in spite,
To hear the moon she sadly fled on
By word an' write.

But shortly they will cowe the louns;
Some auld-light herds in neibor towns
Are mind't in things they ca' balloons,
'To tak a flight,
An' stay an month amang the moons,
An' see them right.

Guid observation they will gie them,
An' when the auld moon's gaim to lea'e them
The hindmost shaird, they'll fetch it wi' them
Just i' their pouch,
An' when the new-light billys see them,
I think they'll crouch!

Sae ye observe that a' this clatter
Is naething but a "moonshine matter;"
But tho' dull prose-folk Latin splatter
In logic tulzie,
I hope, we bardies ken some better
Than mind sic brulzie.

EPISTLE TO J. R**.
ENCLOSING SOME POEMS.

O rough, rude, ready-witted R**,
The wae o'cocks for fun and drinkin! There's monie godly folks are thinkin,
Your dreams* an' tricks Will send you, Korah-like, a sinkin,
Straight to auld Nick s. Ye hae sae monie cracks an' cants,
And in your wicked, drucken rants, Ye make a devil o' the saunts,
An' fill them fou; And then their failings, flaws, an' wants, Are a' seen thro'

Hypocrisy, in mercy spare it! That holy robe, O dinna tear it! Spar't for their sakes wha aften wear it, The lads in black;
But your curst wit, when it comes near it, Rives't aff their back.

Think, wicked sinner, wha ye're skaiting, It's just the blue-gown badge an' claithing O' saunts; tak that, ye lea'e them naething To ken them by, Frae ony unregenerate heathen Like you or I.

I've sent you here some rhyming ware, A' that I bargain'd for, an' mair; Sae, when ye hae an hour to spare, I will expect Your sang', ye'll sen't wi' cannie care And no neglect.

Tho' faith, sma' heart hae I to sing! My Muse dow scarcely spread her wing! I've play'd mysel a bonie spring, An' danc'd my fill! I'd better gae an' sair'd the king, At Bunker's Hill.

* A certain humorous dream of his was then making a noise in the country-side.
† A song he had promised the Author.
'Twas ae night, lately, in my fun,
I gaed a roving wi' the gun,
An' brought a partrick to the gru
A bonie hen,
An', as the twilight was begun,
Thought nane wad ken

The poor, wee thing was little hurt,
I straikit it a wee for sport,
Ne'er thinkin' they wad fash me for't,
But dell-ma'-care!
Somebody tells the poacher-court
The hale affair.

Some anld-us'd hands had taen a note
That sic a hen had got a shot;
I was suspected for the plot;
I scorn'd to lie,
So gat the whissie o' my great,
An' pay't the fee

But, by my gun, o' guns the wale,
An' by my pouther an' my hail,
An' by my hen, an' by her tail,
I vow an' swear!
The game shall pay o' er moor an' dale
For this,niest year.

As soon's the clockin-time is by,
An' the wee pouts begin to cry,
I'se hae sportin' by an by,
For my gowd guinea,
Tho' I should herd the buckskin kye
For't in Virginia.

'Twas neither broken wing nor limb,
But twa-three draps about the wame
Scarce thro' the feathers;
An' baith a yellow George to claim,
An' tho'le their bithers!

It pits me ay as mad's a hare;
So I can rhyme nor write nae mair!
But pennyworths again is fair,
When time's expedient.
Meanwhile, I am, respected sir,
Your most obedient
Wow, but your letter made me vauntie!
And are ye hale, and weel, and cantie?
I kenn’d it still your wee bit jauntie
Wad bring ye to:
Lord send ye ay as weel’s I want ye,
And then ye’ll do.

The ill-thief blaw the Heron* south!
And never drink be near his drouth!
He tald mysel by word o’ mouth,
He’d tak my letter;
I lippen’d to the chiel in trouth
And bade nae better.

* But aiblins honest Master Heron
Had at the time some dainty fair one,
To ware his theologic care on,
And holy study,
And tir’d o’ sauls to waste his lear on,
E’en tried the body.

But what d’ye think, my trusty fier,
I’m turn’d a gaucer—peace be here!
Parnassan queens, I fear, I fear
Ye’ll now disdain me,
And then my fifty pounds a-year
Will little gain me.

Ye glaikit, gleesome, daintie damies
Wha by Castalia’s wimplin streamies,
Lowp, sing, and lave your pretty linchies
Ye ken, ye ken,
That strang necessity supreme is ‘Mang sons o’ men.

I hae a wife an’ twa wee laddies,
They maun hae brose and brats o’ duddies.
Ye ken yoursels my heart right proud is,
I need na vaunt,
But I’ll aned besoms—throw saugh woodies,
Before they want.

* Mr. Heron, author of a History of Scotland, ans various other works
POEMS,

Lord help me thro' this warld o' care!
I'm weary sick o't late and air!
Not but I hae a richer share:
Than mony others;
But why should ae man better fare,
And a' men brothers?

Come, Firm Resolve, take thou the van,
Thou stalk o' carl-hump in man!
And let us mind, faint heart ne'er wan
A lady fair;
Wha does the utmost that he can,
Will whyles do mair.

But to conclude my silly rhyme,
(I'm scant o' verse, and scant o' time,)
To make a happy fire-side clime
'To weans and wife,
That's the true pathos and sublime
Of human life.

My compliments to sister Beckie;
And eke the same to honest Lucky,
I wat she is a dainty chuckie,
As c'er tread clay!
An' gratefully, my guid auld cockie,
I'm yours for ay.

ROBERT BURNS

TO COLONEL DE PEYSTER

DUMFRICKS, 1796.

My honour'd Colonel, deep I feel
Your interest in the Poet's weal;
Ah! now sma' heart hae I to speel
The steep Parnassus,
Surrounded thus by bolus pill,
And potion glasses.

O what a canty warld were it,
Would pain, and care, and sickness spare it;
And fortune favour worth and merit,
As they deserve:
(And aye a rowth, roast-beef and claret;
Syne wha wad starve?)
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Dame Life, tho' fiction out may trick her
And in paste gems and slippery deck her:
Oh! flickering, feeble, and unsicker
I've found her still,
Ay wavering like the willow wicker,
'Tween good and ill.

Then that curst carmagnole, and Satan,
Watches, like baudrians by a rattan,
Our sinful saul to get a claut on
Wi' felon ire;
Syne, whip! his tail ye'll ne'er cast saut on,
He's aff like fire.

Ah! Nick! ah Nick! it is na fair,
First showing us the tempting ware,
Bright wines and bonie lasses rare,
To put us daft;
Syne weave, unseen, thy spider snare,
O' hell's damned waft.

Poor man the flie, aft bizzics by,
And aft as chance he comes thee nigh,
Thy auld damn'd elbow yeeks wi' joy,
And hellish pleasure;
Already in thy fancy's eye,
Thy sicker treasure.

Soon heels o'er gowdie! in he gangs,
And like a sheep-head on a tangs,
They grinning laugh enjoy his pangs
And murdering wrestle,
As dangling in the wind, he hangs,
A gibbet's tassel.

But lest you think I am uncivil,
To plague you with this draunting drivel
Abjuring a' intentions evil,
I quat my pen:
The Lord preserve us frae the devil!
Amen! Amen!

Wha wanting thee might beg or steal;
VOL. I.
POEMS.

Alake, alake, the meikle deil
Wi' a' his witches
Are at it, skelpin' jig and reel,
In my poor pouches.

I modestly, fu' fain wad hint it,
That one pound one, I sairly want it;
If wi' the hizzie down ye sent it,
It would be kind;
And while my heart wi' life-blood dunted,
I'd bear't in mind.

So may the auld year gang out moaning
To see the new come laden, groaning,
Wi' double plenty o'er the loaning
To thee and thine;
Domestic peace and comforts crowning
The hale design.

POSTSCRIPT.

Ye've heard this while how I've been licket,
And by fell death was nearly nicked;
Grim loun! he gat me by the fecket,
And sair me sheuk;
But by good luck, I lap a wicket,
And turn'd a neuk.

But by that health, I've got a share o't,
And by that life, I'm promis'd mair o't,
My hale and weel I'll take a care o't,
A tentier way;
Then fareweel, folly, hide and hair o't,
or ance and aye.

LETTER

TO J——S T——T GL—NC—R.

Auld comrade dear and brither sinner,
How's a' the folk about Gl—nc—r?
How do you this blae eastlin wind,
That's like to blaw a body blind!
For me, my faculties are frozen,
My dearest member nearly dozen'd:
I've sent you here my Jolanie Simson,
Twa sage philosophers to glimpse on;
Smith, wi' his sympathetic feeling,
...t Reid to common sense appealing,
Philosophers have fought an' wrangled,
And meikle Greek an' Latin mangled,
Till wi' their logic jargon tird,
An' in the depth of science mir'd,
To common sense they now appeal,
What wives and waiters see an' feel;
But hark ye, friend, I charge you strictly,
Peruse them an' return them quickly;
For now I'm grown sae cursed dune,
I pray an' ponder but the house,
My shins, my lane, I there sit toasting,
Perusing Bunyan, Brown, and Boston;
Till by an' by, if I hand on,
I'll grunt a real Gospel groan;
Already I begin to try it,
To cast my cen up like a pyct,
When by the gun she tumblies o'er,
Fluttering an' gasping in her gore:
Sae shortly you shall see me bright,
A burning an' a shining light.

My heart warm love to guid auld Glen,
The ace an' wale of honest men;
When bending down with auld gray hairs,
Beneath the load of years and cares,
May he who made him still support him,
An' views beyond the grave comfort him.
His worthy family far and near,
God bless them an' wi' grace and gear.

My auld school fellow, Preacher Willie,
The manly tar, my mason Billie,
An' Auchenbay, I wish him joy;
If he's a parent, lass or boy,
May he be dad, and Meg the mither,
Just five-an'forty years thither!
An' no forgetting webster Charlie,
I'm tauld he offers very fairly.
An' L—d remember singing Sannock,
Wi' hale breeks, saxpence an' a hannock
And next, my auld acquaintance, Nancy,
Since she is fitted to her fancy;
An' her kind stars ha'e airded till her
A guid chiel wi' a pickle siller.
My kindest, best respects I sent it,
To cousin Kate, an' sister Janet;
Tell them fâce me, wi' chieles be cautious,
For faith, they'll abhins fin' them fashions;
To grant a heart is fairly civil.
POEMS,

But to grant a maidenhead's the devil!
An' lastly, Jamie, for yourself,
May guardian angels tak a spell,
An steer you seven miles south o' hell:
But first, before you see heav'n's glory,
May ye get monie a merry story,
Monie a laugh and monie a drink,
An' ay enough o' needfu' clink.

Now fare ye weel, an' joy be wi' you,
For my sake this I beg it o' you,
Assist poor Simson a' ye can,
Ye'll fin' him just an honest man:
Sae I conclude and quit my chanter,
Your's, saint or sinner,

ROB THE RANTER.

TO THE GUIDWIFE OF WAUCHOPE-HOUSE
IN ANSWER TO AN EPISTLE WHICH SHE HAD SENT THE AUTHOR.

I.

Guidwife,
I mind it weel in early date,
When I was beardless, young, and blate,
And first could thresh the barn;
Or hand a yokin at the plough;
An' tho' for foughten sair enough,
Yet unco proud to learn:
When first amang the yellow corn
A man I reckon'd was,
And wi' the lave ilk merry morn,
Could rank my rig and lass,
Still shearing, and clearing
The tither stooked raw,
Wi' claivers, an' haivers,
Wearing the day awa.

II.

Ev'n then, a wish, I mind it's pow'r,
A wish that to my latest hour,
Shall strongly heave my breast,
That I for poor auld Scotland's sake
Some usefu' plan or book could make,
Or sing a sang at least.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

The rough burr-thistle, spreading wide
Among the bearded bear,
I turn'd the weeder-clips aside,
An' spar'd the symbol deer;
No nation, no station,
My envy e'er could raise,
A Scot still, but blot still,
I knew nae higher praise.

III.
But still the elements o' sang,
In formless jumble, right an' wrang,
Wild floated in my brain;
Till on that har'est I said before,
My partner in the merry core,
She rous'd the forming strain:
I see her yet, the sonsie quean,
That lighted up her jingle,
Her witching smile, her pauky e'en,
That gar't my heart-strings tingle;
I fired, inspired,
At every kindling keek,
But bashing, and dashing;
I feared ay to speak.

IV.
Hail to the set, ilk guid chiel says,
Wi' merry dance in winter-days,
An' we to share in common;
The gust o' joy, the balm o' wo,
The saul o' life, the heav'n below,
Is rapture-giving woman.
Ye surly sumps, who hate the name,
Be mindfu' o' your mither;
She, honest woman, may think shame
That ye're connected with her;
Ye're wae men, ye're nae men,
That slight the lovely dears;
To shame ye, disclaim ye,
Ilk honest birkie swears.

V.
For you, na bred to barn or byre,
Wha sweetly tune the Scottish lyre,
Thanks to you for your line.
The marled plaid ye kindly spare
By me should gratefully be ware
'Twad please me to the Nine.
I'd be mair vauntie o' my hap,
Douse hinging o'er my curple,
Than onie ermine ever lap,
Or proud imperial purple.
Fareweel then, lang hail then,
An' plenty be your fa':
May losses and crosses
Ne'er at your hallan ca'.

TO J. RANKEN;
ON HIS WRITING TO THE AUTHOR THAT A GIRL WAS WITH CHILD BY HIM.

I am a keeper of the law
In some sma' points, altho' not a';
Some people tell me gin I fa',
Ac way or ither,
The breaking of ae point, tho' sma',
Breaks a' thegither.

I hae been in for't ance or twice,
And winna say o'er far for thrice,
Yet never met with that surprise
That broke my rest,
But now a rumour's like to rise,
A whaup's i' the nest.

ADDRESS
TO AN ILLEGITIMATE CHILD.

Thou's welcome, wean, mishanter fa' me,
If aught of thee, or of thy mammy,
Shall ever danton me, or awe me,
My sweet wee lady,
Or if I blush when thou shalt ca' me
Tit-ta or daddy

Wee image of my bonie Betty,
I fatherly will kiss an' daut thee,
As dear an' near my heart I set thee
Wi' as gude will
As a' the priests had seen me get thee
That's out o' h-l.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

What tho' they ca' me fornicator,
An' tease my name in kintry-clatter;
The mair they tauk I'm kent the better,
E'en let them clash;
An auld wife's tongue's a feckless matter
To gie ane fash.

Sweet fruit o' monie a merry dint,
'My funny tcel is now a' tint,
Sin' thou came to the warl asklent,
Which fools may scoff at;
In my last plack thy part's be in't—
The better half o't.

An' if thou be what I wad hae thee,
An' tak the counsel I shall gie thee,
A lovin' father I'll be to thee,
If thou be spar'd
Thro' a' thy childish years I'll e'e thee,
'An' think't weel war'd.

Gude grant that thou may ay inherit
Thy mither's person, grace, an' merit,
An' thy poor worthless daddy's spirit,
Without his failins,
'Twill please me mair to hear an' see't,
Than stocket mailins.

TO A TAILOR,

IN ANSWER TO AN EPISTLE WHICH HE HAD SENT THE AUTHOR.

What ails ye now, ye lousie b—h,
To thresh my back at sic a pitch?
Loch man! hae mercy wi' your natch,
Your bodkin's bauld,
I did na suffer half sae much
Frac daddy Auld.

What tho' at times when I grow crouse,
I gle their wames a random pouse,
Is that enough for you to souse
Your servant sae?
Gae mind your seam, ye prick the louse,
An' jag the flae.
King David o' poetic brief,
Wrought 'mang the lasses sic mischief
As fill'd his after life wi' grief
An' bloody rants,
An' yet he's rank'd amang the chief
O lang syne saunts.

And, may be, Tam, for a' my cants,
My wicked rhymes, an' drucken rants,
I'll gie auld cloven Clooty's haunts
An unco slip yet,
An' snugly sit amang the saunts,
At Davie's hip yet.

But fegs, the session says I maun
Gae fa' upo' anither plan,
Than garren lasses cowp the cran
Clean heels owre body,
And sairly thole their mithers' ban
Afore the howdy.

This leads me on, to tell for sport
How I did with the session sort—
Auld Clinkum at the inner port
Cry'd three times, "Robin?"
Come hither, lad, an' answer for't,
Ye're blam'd for jobbin."

Wi' pinch I put a Sunday's face on,
An' snoov'd awa' before the session—
I made an open, fair confession,
I scorn'd to lie;
An' syne Mess John, beyond expression,
Fell foul o' me.

A fornicator loun he call'd me,
An' said my faut frae bliss expell'd me;
I own'd the tale was true he tell'd me,
"But what the matter,"
Quo' I, "I fear unless ye giel me,
I'll ne'er be better."

"Gelid you!" quo' he, "and whatfores no,
If that your right hand, leg or toe,
Should ever prove your sp'ritual foe,
You shou'd remember
T' cut it aff, and whatfores no
Your dearest member."

"Na, Na," quo' I, "I'm no for that,
Gelding's nae better than 'tis ca't.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

I'd rather suffer for my fault,
  A hearty flewwit
As sair owre hip as ye can craw't!
  Tho' I should rue it.

" Or gin ye like to end the bother
To please us a' I've just ae ither,
When next wi' yon lass I forgather
  Whate'er betide it,
I'll frankly gle her't a' thegither,
  An' let her guide it."

But, Sir, this pleas'd them warst ava,
An' therefore, Tam, when that I saw,
I said " Gude night," and cam ava',
  An' left the session;
I saw they were resolved a'
On my oppression.

TO MR. WILLIAM TYTLER.

WITH A PORTRAIT OF THE AUTHOR.

Revered defender of beauteous Stuart,
  Of Stuart, a name once respected,
A name, which to love was the mark of a true heart,
  But now 'tis desplised and neglected.

Tho' something like moisture conglobes in my eye,
  Let no one misdeem me disloyal;
A poor friendless wanderer may well claim a sigh,
  Still more, if that wand'r'er were royal.

My fathers that name have rever'd on a throne;
  My fathers have fallen to right it;
Those fathers would spurn their degenerate son,
  That name should be scoffingly slight it.

Still in prayers for K— G— I most heartily join,
  The Q—, and the rest of the gentry,
Be they wise, be they foolish, is nothing of mine;
  Their title's avow'd by my country.

But why of this epocha make such a fuss,

* * * * * * * * * * * *

* * * * * * * * * * *
But loyalty, true! we're on dangerous ground,
Who knows how the fashions may alter?
The doctrine to-day that is loyalty sound,
To-morrow may bring us a halter.

I send you a trifle, a head of a hard,
A trifle scarce worthy your care,
But accept it, good sir, as a mark of regard,
Sincere as a saint's dying prayer.

Now life's chilly evening dim shades on your eye,
And ushers the long dreary night;
But you, like the star that alway gilds the sky,
Your course to the latest is bright.

EPISTLE
TO R. GRAHAM, ESQ. OF FINTRA.

When Nature her great masterpiece design'd,
And fram'd her last, best work, the human mind,
Her eye intent on all the mazy plan,
She form'd of various parts the various man.

Then first she calls the useful many forth;
Plain, plodding industry, and sober worth;
Thence peasants, farmers, native sons of earth,
And merchandise, whole genus take their birth;
Each prudent cit a warm existence finds,
And all mechanics' many apron'd kinds.
Some other rarer sorts are wanted yet,
The 'ead and buoy are needful to the net;
The caput mortuum of gross desires
Makes a material for mere knights and squires;
The martial phosphorus is taught to flow,
She kneads the lumpish, philosophic dough,
Then marks th' unyielding mass with grave devices;
Law, physics, politics, and deep divinities;
Last she sublimes the Aurora of the poles,
The flashing elements of female souls.

The order'd system fair before her stood,
Nature, well pleas'd, pronounced it very good;
But ere she gave creating labour o'er,
Half jest, she tried one curious labour more
Some spumy, fiery, ignis futurus matter;
Such as the slightest breath of air might scatter;
With arch arterity and conscious glee
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

(Nature may have her whim as well as we,
Her Hogarth-art perhaps she meant to show it.)
She forms the thing, and christens it — a poet.
Creature, though oft the prey of care and sorrow,
When blest to-day unmindful of to-morrow,
A being form'd to amuse his graver friends,
Admir'd and prais'd — and there the homage ends;
A mortal quite unfit for fortune's strife,
Yet of the sport of all the ills of life;
Prone to enjoy each pleasure riches give,
Yet haply wanting wherewithal to live;
Longing to wipe each tear, to heal each groan,
Yet frequent all unheeded in his own.

But honest Nature is not quite a Turk,
She laugh'd at first, then felt for her poor work,
Pitying the profligate climber of mankind,
She cast about a standard-tree to find;
And, to support his helpless woodbine state,
Attach'd him to the generous, truly great,
A title, and the only one I claim,
To lay strong hold for help on bounteous Graham.

Pity the tuneful Muses' hapless train,
Weak, timid landmen on life's stormy main!
Their hearts no selfish, stern, absorbent stuff,
That neither gives — though humbly takes enough
The little fate allows, they share as soon,
Unlike sage, proverb'd Wisdom's hard-won boon.
The world were bless'd did bliss on them depend,
Ah! that "the friendly e'er should want a friend!"
Let prudence number o'er each sturdy son,
Who life and wisdom at one race begun,
Who feel by reason, and who give by rule,
(Instinct's a brute, and sentiment a fool!)
Who make poor will do wait upon I should —
We own they're prudent, but who feels they're good?
Ye wise ones, hence! ye hurt the social eye!
God's image rudely etch'd on base alloy!
But come ye who the godlike pleasure know,
Heaven's attribute distinguish'd — to bestow!
Whose arms of love would grasp the human race;
Come thou who giv'st with all a courtier's grace;
Friend of my life, true patron of my rhymes!
Prop of my dearest hope for future times.
Why shrinks my soul half-blushing, half-afraid,
Backward, abashed to ask thy friendly aid?
I know my need, I know thy giving hand,
I crave thy friendship at thy kind command;
But there are such who court the tuneful nine—
Heavens! should the branded character be mine,
Whose verse in manhood's pride sublimely flows,
Yet vilest reptiles in their begging prose,
Mark, how their lofty, independent spirit
Soars on the spurning wing of injured merit!
Seek not the proofs in private life to find!
Pity, the rest of words should be but wind!
So to heaven's gates the lark's shrill song ascends,
But grovelling on the earth the carol ends.
In all the clamorous cry of starving want,
They dun benevolence with shameful front;
Oblige them, patronise their tinsel lays,
They persecute you all your future days!
Ere my poor soul such deep damnation stain,
My horny fist assume the plough again;
The piebald jacket let me patch once more;
On eighteen pence a week I've liv'd before.
Though thanks to heaven, I dare even that last shift;
I trust, meantime, my boon is in thy gift;
That placed by thee upon the wished-for height,
Where, Man and Nature fairer in her sight,
My Muse may imp her wing for some sublimer flight.

TO THE SAME.

Late crippled of an arm, and now a leg,
About to beg a pass for leave to beg;
Dull, listless, teased, dejected and deprest,
(Nature is adverse to a cripple's rest.)
Will generous Graham list to his Poet's wall?
(It soothes poor Misery hearkening to her tale.)
And hear him curse the light he first surveyed,
And doubly curse the luckless, rhyming trade!

Of thy caprice maternal I complain.
The lion and the bull thy care have found,
One shakes the forest, and one spurns the ground;
Thou giv'st the ass his hide, the snail his shell,
Th' envenom'd wasp, victorious, guards his cell.
Thy minions, kings, defend, control, devour
In all th' omnipotence of rule and power.
Foxes and statesmen, subtle wiles insure;
The cit and polecat stink, and are secure.
Toads with their poison, doctors with their drug,
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

The priest and hedgehog in their robes are snug,
Ev'n silly woman has her warlike arts,
Her tongue and eyes, her dreaded spear and darts.

But oh! the bitter step-mother, and hard,
To thy poor fenceless, naked child—the Bard,
A thing unteachable in world's skill,
And half an idiot too, more helpless still.
No heels to bear him from the op'ning dun;
No claws to dig, his hated sight to shun;
No horns, but those by luckless Hymen worn,
And those, alas! not Amaelthea's horns:
No nerves olfact'ry, Mammon's trusty cur,
Clad in rich dulness, comfortable fur,
In naked feeling, and in aching pride,
He bears th' unbroken blast from ev'ry side;
Vampyre booksellers drain him to the heart,
And scorpion critics curseless venom dart.

Critics—appall'd I venture on the name,
Those cut-throat bandits in the paths of fame:
Bloody dissectors, worse than ten Monroes;
He hacks to teach, they mangle to expose.

His heart by causeless, wanton malice wrung,
By blockheads' daring into madness stung;
His well-won bays, than life itself more dear,
By miscreants torn, who ne'er one sprig must wear:
Foil'd, bleeding, tortur'd in the unequal strife,
The humble Poet flounders on thro' life,
Till fled each hope that once his bosom fir'd,
And fled each Muse that glorious once inspir'd,
Low sunk in squalid, unprotected age,
Dead, even resentment, for his injur'd page,
He heeds or feels no more the ruthless critic's rage!

So, by some hedge, the generous steed decens'd,
For half-starv'd snarling curs a dainty feast;
By toil and famine wore to skin and bone,
Lie senseless of each tuggin' bitch's son.

O Duiness! portion of the truly blest,
Calm shelter'd haven of eternal rest!
Thy sons ne'er madden in the fierce extremes
Of Fortune's polar frost, or torrid beams.
If mantling high she fills the golden cup,
With sober, selfish ease they sip it up:
Conscious the bounteous meed they well deserve,
They only wonder "some folks" do not starve.
The grave sage here thus easy picks his frog,
And the mallard a sad, worthless dog.
When disappointment snaps the clue of hope,
And thro' disastrous night they darkling grope,
With deaf endurance sluggishly they bear,
And just conclude that "fools are Fortune's care."
So, heavy, passive to the tempest's shocks,
Strong on the sign-post stands the stupid ox.

Not so the idle Muses, mad-cap train,
Not such the workings of their moon-struck brain;
In equanimity they never dwell,
By turns in soaring heav'n or vaulted hell.

I dread thee, Fate, relentless and severe,
With all a Poet's, Husband's, Father's fear!
Already one strong hold of hope is lost,
GLENCAIRN, the truly noble, lies in dust;
(Fled, like the sun eclips'd at noon appears,
And left us darkling in a world of tears;)
O! hear my ardent, grateful, selfish pray'r!
FINTRA, my other stay, long bless and spare!
Thro' a long life his hopes and wishes crown;
And bright in cloudless skies his sun go down!
May bliss domestic smooth his private path:
Give energy to life, and soothe his latest breath,
With many a filial tear circling the bed of death.

TO THE SAME,

ON RECEIVING A FAVOUR.

I CALL no goddess to inspire my strains,
A fabled Muse may suit a bard that feigns;
Friend of my life! my ardent spirit burns,
And all the tribute of my heart returns,
For boons accorded, goodness ever new,
The gift still dearer, as the giver you.

Thou orb of day, thou other paler light!
And all ye many sparkling stars of night;
If aught that giver from my mind efface;
If I that giver's bounty e'er disgrace;
Then roll to me, along your wandering spheres,
Only to number out a villain's years!
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

TO A GENTLEMAN

WHOM THE AUTHOR HAD OFFENDED.

The friend whom wild from wisdom's way
The fumes of wine infuriate send;
(Not moony madness more astray:)
Who but deplores that hapless friend?

Mine was the insensate frenzied part,
Ah why should I such scenescoltive?
Scenes so abhorrent to my heart!
'Tis thine to pity and forgive.

TO A GENTLEMAN

WHO HAD SENT HIM A NEWSPAPER, AND OFFERED TO CONTINUE IT FREE OF EXPENSE.

Kind Sir, I've read your paper through,
And faith, to me, 'twas really new!
How guess'd ye, Sir, what maist I wanted?
This monie a day I've grain'd and gaunted,
To ken what French mischief was brewin;
Or what the drumblie Dutch were doing;
That vile doup-skelper, Emperor Joseph,
If Venus yet had got his nose off;
Or how the collieshangie works
Atween the Russians and the Turks
Or if the Swede, before he halt,
Would play anither Charles the Twalt;
If Denmark, any body spak o't;
Or Poland, wha had now the tack o't;
How cut-throat Prussian blades were hingin,
How libbet Italy was singin;
If Spaniard, Portuguese, or Swiss,
Where sayin or takin aught amiss
Or how our merry lads at hame,
In Britain's court kept up the game,
How royal George, the Lord leuk o'er him
Was managing St. Stephen's quorum;
If sleekit Chatham Will was livin,
Or glaikit Charlie got his nieve in;
How daddie Burke the plea was cooKt
If Warren Hastings' neck was yeukin;
How cesses, stents, and fees were rax'd,
POEMS,

Or if bare a—ses yet were tax'd;
The news o' princes, dukes, and earls,
Pimps, sharpers, bawds, and opera-girls;
If that daft buckie, Geordie Ws,
Was threshin' still at hisse's tails,
Or if he has grown oughtins douser,
And no a perfect kintra cooser,
A' this and mair I never heard of;
And but for you I might despair'd of
So, grateful, back your news I send you,
And pray, a' guid things may attend you!

Ellisland, 1790.

SKETCH,

TO MRS. DUNLOP, ON A NEW YEAR'S DAY.

This day, Time winds the exhausted chain,
To run the twelvemonth's length again;
I see the auld bauld-pated fellow,
With ardent eyes, complexion sallow,
Adjust the unimpair'd machine,
To wheel the equal, dull routine.

The absent lover, minor heir,
In vain assail him with their prayer;
Deaf as my friend, he sees them press,
Nor makes the hour one moment less.
Will you (the Major's with the hounds,
The happy tenants share his rounds;
Colla's fair Rachel's care to-day,
And blooming Keith's engaged with Gray)
From housewife cares a minute borrow—
That grandchild's cap will do to-morrow—
And join with me a moralizing,
This day's propitious to be wise in.
First, what did yesternight deliver?
"Another year is gone for ever."
And what is this day's strong suggestion,
"The passing moment's all we rest on!"
Rest on—for what do we here?
Or why regard the passing year?
Will time, amus'd with proverb'd lore,
Add to our date one minute more?
A few days may—a few years must—
Repose us in the silent dust.
Then is it wise to damp our bliss?
Yes—all such reasonings are amiss:
The voice of nature loudly cries,
And many a message from the skies,
That something in us never dies:
That on this frail, uncertain state,
Hang matters of eternal weight;
That future life, in worlds unknown,
Must take its birth from this alone;
Whether as heavenly glory bright,
Or dark as misery's woful night.—
Since then, my honour'd, first of friends,
On this poor being all depends;
Let us the important now employ,
And live as those that never die.
Tho' you, with days and honours crown'd,
Witness that filial circle round,
(A sight life's sorrows to repulse,
A sight pale envy to convulse,)
Others now claim your chief regard;
Yourself, you wait your bright reward.

THE AULD FARMER'S

NEW YEAR MORNING SALUTATION TO HIS AULD MARE, MAGGIE.

(On giving her the accustomed rip of corn to hansel
in the New Year.

A GUID NEW YEAR I wish thee, Maggie!
Hae, there's a rip to thy auld baggie:
Thou' thou's howe-backit, now, an' knaggle,
I've seen the day
Thou could hae gaen like onie staggie
Out-owre the lay.

Thou' now thou's dowie, stiff, an' crazy,
An' thy auld hide's as white's a daisy,
I've seen thee dappl'd, sleek and glazie,
A bonie gray;
He should been tight that daur't to raise thee
Ance in a day.

Thou ance was i' the foremost rank,
A filly, buirdly, steve an' swank,
An' set weel down a shapeless shank,
As e'er tread yird,
An' could hae flown out-owre a stank,
Like onie bird.

Vol. I.
It's now some nine-an'-twenty year,
Sin' thou was my guid father's meere;
He gied me thee, o' tocher clear,
   An' fifty mark;
Tho' it was sma' 'twas weel-won gear,
   An' thou was stark.

When first I gaed to woo my Jenny,
Ye then was trottin wi' your minnie;
Though ye was trickie, sice, an' funnie,
   Ye ne'er was donsie;
But hamily, tawie, quiet, an' cannie,
   An' unco sonsie.

That day, ye pranced wi' muckle pride,
When ye bure hame my bonie bride;
An' sweet an' gracefu' she did ride,
   Wi' maiden air!
Kyle Stewart I could bragged wide,
   For sic a pair.

Though now ye dow but hoyte and hobble,
An' wimlike like a saumont cobble,
That day ye was a jinker noble,
   For heels an' win'!
An' ran them till they a' did wauble,
   Far, far behin'.

When thou an' I were young an' skelg,
An' stable meals at fair were dreigh,
How thou wad prance, an' snore, an' skreigh,
   An' tak the road!
Town's bodies ran, and stood abeigh,
   An' ca't thee mad.

When thou was corn't, an' I was mellow,
We took the road ay like a swallow;
At Brooses thou had ne'er a fellow,
   For pith an' speed;
But ev'ry tale thou pay't them hollow
   Where'er thou gacd.

The sma', droop-rumpl't, hunter-cattle,
Might aiblins waur't thee for a brattle;
But sax Scotch miles, thou try't their mettle
   An' gar't them whaizle:
Nae whip nor spur, but just a wattle
   O' saugh or hazel.

Thou was a noble fittie-lan',
As o'er in tug or tow was drawn!
Aft tho' an' I, in aught hours gaun,
On guid March-weather,
Hae turn'd sax rood beside our han'
For days thegither.

Thou never braindg't, an' fech't, an' fliskit,
But thy auld tail thou wad hae whiskit,
An' spread abreeth weel-fill'd brisket,
Wi' pith and pow'r,
Tid spritty knowes wad rair't and risket,
An snypet owre.

When frosts lay lang, an' snaws were deep,
An' threaten'd labour back to keep,
I gled thy cog a weep-bit heap
Aboon the timmer;
I kenn'd my Maggie wad na sleep
For that, or simmer.

In cart or car thou never restit;
The stoyest brae thou wad hae fac'd it:
Thou never lap, and sten't and breastit,
Then stood to blow;
But just thy step a wee thing hastit,
Thousnoov'tawa.

My plough is now thy bairn-time a';
Four gallant brutes as e'er did draw;
Forbye sax mae, I've sell't awa,
That thou hast hurst;
They drew me thretteen pund an' twa,
The very warst.

Monie a snair daurk we twa hae wrought,
An' wi' the weary warl' fought!
An' monie an anxious day, I thought
We wad be beat;
Yet here to crazy age we're brought,
Wi' something yet.

An' think na, my auld trusty servan',
That now perhaps thou's less deservin,
An' thy auld days may end in starvin,
For my last fou,
A heaspit stimpart, I'll reserve ane
Laid by for you.

We've worn to crazy vears thegither;
We'll toye about wi' ane anither;
Wi' tenile care I'll fit thy tether
To some hain'd rig,
Where ye may nobly rax ye:ether
Wi' sma' fatigue.
THE DEATH AND DYING WORDS OF POOR MAILIE,

THE AUTHOR'S ONLY PET YOWE.

An unco mournfu' Tale.

As Mailie an' her lambs thegither,
Where ae day nibbling on the tether,
Upon her clout she coost a hitch,
An' owre she wars'ld in the ditch;
There, groaning, dying, she did lie,
When Hughie* he came doythin by.

Wi' glowerin een, an' lifted han's,
Poor Hughie like a statue stan's;
He saw her days were near-hand ended,
But, wae's my heart! he could na mend it!
He gaped wide, but naething spak,
At length poor Mailie silence brak.

"O thou, whase lamentable face,
Appears to mourn my wofu' case!
My dying words attentive hear,
An' bear them to my master dear.

"Tell him, if e'er again he keep
As muckle gear as buy a sheep,
O, bid him never tie them mair
Wi' wicked strings o' hemp or hair!
But ca' them out to park or hill,
An' let them wander at their will;
So may his flock increase, an' grow
To scores o' lambs, an' packs o' wool!

"Tell him he was a master kin',
An' ay was guid to me and mine;
An' now my dying charge I gie him,
My helpless lambs I trust them wi' him.

"O, bid him save their harmless lives
Frae dogs, an' tods, an' butchers' knives!
But gie them guid cow-milk their fill,
Till they be fit to fend themsel;
An' tent them duly, e'en an' morn,
Wi' teats o' hay an' rips o' corn.

* A neighbour herd-sallan.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

"An' may they never learn the gaets
Of' thir vile wanresifu' pets!
To slink thro' slaps, an' reave, an' steal,
At stacks o' pease, or stocks o' kail.
So may they, like their great forbears,
For manie a year come thro' the shears;
So wives will gie them bits o' bread,
An' bairns gie them when they're dead.

"My poor toop-lamb, my son an' heir,
O, bid him breed him up wi' care!
An', if he live to be a beast,
To pit some havin's in his breast!
An' warn him what I winna name,
To stay content wi' yowes at hame;
An' no to rin an' wear his cloots,
Like thir menseless, graceless brutea.

"An' niest my yowie, silly thing.
Gude keep thee frae a tether-string,
O, may thou ne'er forgather up
Wi' any blastit, moorland toop;
But ah keep mind to moop an' mell
Wi' sheep o' credit like thysel!

"And now, my bairns, wi' my last breath,
I lea'e my blessin' wi' you baith;
An' when you think upo' your mither,
Mind to be kin' to ane anither.

"Now, honest Hughoc, dinna fail,
To tell my master a' my tale;
An' bid him burn this cursed tether,
An', for thy pains, thous'e get my blether."

This said, poor Mailie turn'd her head,
An' clos'd her een amang the dead.

POOR MAILIE'S ELEGY.

Lament in rhyme, lament in prose,
Wi' saut tears trickling down your nose!
Our bardie's fate is at a close,
Past a' remend;
The last sad cap-stane of his woes;
Poor Mailie's dead!

It's no the loss o' warl's gear,
That could sae bitter draw the tear,
Or mak our bardie, dowie, wear
The mourning weed;
He's lost a friend and neebor dear
In Mailie dead.
POEMS, CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Through a’ the toun she trotted by him,
A lang half mile she could descry him;
Wi’ kindly bleat, when she did spy him,
She ran wi’ speed;
A friend mair faithful ne’er cam nigh him,
Than Mailie dead.

I wat she was a sheep o’ sense,
An’ could behave hersel wi’ mense;
I’ll say’r she never brak a fence,
Thro’ thievish greed;
Our bardie, lanely, keeps the spence
Sin’ Mailie’s dead.

Or, if he wanders up the howe,
Her living image in her yowe,
Comes bleating to him, owre the knowe,
For bits o’ bread;
An’ down the briny pearls rowe,
For Mailie dead.

She was nae get o’ moorland tips,
Wi’ tawt’ed ke an’ hairy hips;
For her forbears were brought in ships
Frae yont the Tweed;
A bonier fleesh ne’er cross’d the clips
Than Mailie dead.

Was worth the man wha first did shape
That vile, wanchancie thing—a rape!
It maks guid fellows girn an gape,
Wi’ chockin bread;
An’ Robin’s bonnet wave wi’ crape,
For Mailie dead.

O, a’ ye bards on bonie Doon!
An’ who on Ayr your chanters tune!
Come join the melancholious croon
O’ Robin’s reed!
His heart will never get aboon!
His Mailie dead.

CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Book IV.

HUMOROUS, SATIRICAL, EPIGRAMMATICAL, AND MISCELLANEOUS.

TAM O'SHANTER.

A TALE.

Of Brownyis and of Bogulis full is this Buik.

GAWIN DOUGLAS.

When chapman billies leave the street,
And drouthy neebors, neebors meet,
As market days are wearing late,
An' folk begin to tak the gate;
While we set bousing at the nappy,
An' getting feu and unco happy;
We think na on the lang Scots miles,
The mosses, waters, slaps, and styles,
That lie between us and our hame,
Whare sits our sulky, sullen dame,
Gath'ring her brows like gath'ring storm,
Nursing her wrath to keep it warm.

This truth 'fand honest Tam O'Shanter,
As he, frae Ayr, ae night did canter,
(Auld Ayr wham ne'er a town surpasses,
For honest men and bonie lasses.)
POEMS,

O Tam! hadst thou but been sae wise,
As taen thy ain wife Kate's advice!
She tauld thee weel thou was a skellum,
A blethering, blustering, drunken bielhum;
That frae November till October,
Ae market day thou was na sober;
That lika melder, wi' the miller,
Thou sat as lang as thou had siller;
That ev'ry naig was ca'd a shoe on
The smith and thee gat roaring fou on;
That at the L—d's house, ev'n on Sunday,
Thou drank wi' Kirton Jean ti' Monday.
She prophesy'd, that, late or soon,
Thou would be found deep drown'd in Doon
Or catch'd wi' warlocks in the mirk,
By Alloway's auld haunted kirk.

Ah, gentle dames! it gars me greet,
To think how monie counsels sweet,
How monie lensthen'd sage advices,
The husband frae the wife despises!

But to our tale: Ae market night,
Tam had got planted unco richt;
Fast by an ingle, bleezing finely,
Wi' reaming swats, that drank divinely
And at his elbow, souter Johnny,
His ancient, trusty, drouther cron'ry,
Tam lo'ed him like a vera brither;
They had been fou for weeks thegither.
The night drave on wi' songs and clatter
And ay the ale was growing better;
The landlady and Tam grew gracious,
Wi' favours, secret, sweet, and precious:
The souter tauld his queerest stories;
The landlord's laugh was ready chorus:
The storm without might rair and rustle,
Tam did na mind the storm a whistle.

Care, mad to see a man sae happy,
E'en drown'd himsell among the nappy;
As bees flee hame wi' lades' o' treasure,
The minutes wing'd their way wi' pleasure;
Kings may be blest, but Tam was glorious,
O'er a' the ils o' life victorious.

But pleasures are like poppies spread,
You seize the flower, its bloom is shed;
Or, like the snow falls in the river,
A moment white—then melts for ever;
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH

Or like the borealis race,
That flit ere you can point their place;
Or like the rainbow's lovely form
Evanishing amid the storm.—
Nae man can tether time or tide;
The hour approaches Tam maun ride;
That dreary hour he mounts his beast in;
And sic a night he takes the road in,
As ne'er poor sinner was abroad in.

The wind blew as 'twad blawn its last;
The rattling show'rs rose on the blast;
The speedy gleams the darkness swallow'd;
Loud, deep, and lang, the thunder bellow'd:
That night, a child might understand,
The Deil had business on his hand.

Weel mounted on his gray mare, Meg,
A better never lifted leg,
Tam skelpit on thro' dub and mire,
Despising wind, and rain, and fire;
Whyles holding fast his guid blue bonnet;
Whyles crooning o'er some auld Scots sonnet:
Whyles glow'ring round wi' prudent cares,
Lest bogles catch him unawares;
Kirk-Alloway was drawing nigh,
Whare ghaisits and houlets nightly cry.

By this time he was cross the ford,
Whare in the snaw the chapman smoor'd:
And past the birkis and melkle stane,
Whare drunken Charlie brak's neck bane;
An thro' the whins, and by the cairn,
Whare hunters fand the murder'd bairn;
And near the thorn, aboon the well,
Whare Mungo's mither hanged hersel.—
Before him Doon pours all its floods,
The doubling storm roars thro' the woods;
The lightnings flash from pole to pole,
Near and more near the thunders roll;
When, glimmering thro' the groaning trees,
Kirk-Alloway seem'd in a breeze:
Thro' ilka bore the beams were glancing,
And loud resounded mirth and dancing.

Inspiring bold John Barleycorn!
What dangers thou canst make us scorn!
Wi' tippenny, we fear nae evil;
Wi' usquabae, we'll face the devil!
POEMS,

The swats sae ream'd in Tammie's noodle,
Fair play, he car'd na Deils a boddle.
But Maggie stood right sair astonish'd,
Till, by the heel and hand admonish'd,
She ventur'd forward on the light;
And vow I Tarn saw an unco sight!
Warlocks and witches in a dance;
Nae cotillion brent new frae France,
But hornpipes, jigs, strathspeys, and reels,
Put life and mettle in their heels.

A winnock-bunker in the east,
There sat auld Nick, in shape o' beast;
A towzie tyke, black, grim, and large,
To gie them music was his charge:
He screw'd the pipes, and gart them skir!
Till roof and rafters a' did dirl.

Coffins stood round like open presses,
That shaw'd the dead in their last dresses!
And by some devilish cantrip slight,
Each in its cauld hand held a light,
By which, heroic Tarn was able
To note upon the haly table,
A murderer's banes in gibbet airs;
Twa span lang, wee, unchristen'd bairns;
A thief, new cutted frae a rape,
Wh' his last gasp his gab did gape;
Five tomahawks, wh' bluid red-rusted;
Five scimitars, wh' murder crusted;
A garter, which a babe had strangled;
A knife, a father's throat had mangled,
Whom his ain son o' life bereft.

The gray hairs yet stack to the heft;
Three lawyers' tongues turn'd inside out,
Wh' lies seam'd like a beggar's clout;
And priests' hearts, rotten, black as muck,
Lay, stinking, vile, in every neuk.
Wh' mair o' horrible and awfu',
Which ev'n to name wad be unlawful.'

As Tammie glow'rd, amaz'd, and curious,
The mirth and fun grew fast and furious:
The piper loud and louder blew;
The dancers quick and quicker flew;
They reel'd, they set, they cross'd, they cleekit,
Till ilka carlin swat and reekit,
And coost her duddies to the wark,
And linket at it in her sark:

Now Tarn, O Tarn! had they been quears
A' plump and strapping in 'their teens;
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Their sarks, instead o' creeshie flannen,
Known snaw-white seventeen hunder linen!
These breeks o' mine, my only pair,
That ance were plush, o' guid blue hair,
I wad hae gi'en them aff my hurdies,
For ae blink o' the bonie burdies!

But wither'd beldams, auld and droll,
Rigwoodie bags wad spean a foal,
Lowping an' flinging on a crummock,
I wonder didna turn thy stomach.

But 'Tam kenz'd what was what fu' brawlie,
There was ae winsome wench and wailie,
(That night enlisted in the core
Lang after kenz'd on Carrick shore!
For monie a beast to dead she shot,
And perish'd monie a bonie boat,
And shook baith meikle corn and bear,
And kept the country-side in fear,)!
Her cutty-sark o' Paisley harn,
That while a lassie she had worn
In longitude tho' sorely scanty,
It was her best, and she was vauntie.—
Ah! little kenz'd thy reverend grannie,
That sark she coft for her wee Nannie,
Wit' twa pund Scots ('twas a' her riches)
Wad ever grac'd a dance o' witches!

But here my muse her wing maun cow'r;
Sic flights are far beyond her pow'r;
To sing how Nannie lap and flang,
(A souple jad she was and strang)
And how 'Tam stood, like one bewitch'd,
And thought his very een enrich'd;
Even Satan glower'd, and fiddg'd fu' fain,
And hotch'd, and blew wit' might and main,
Till first ae caper, syne another,
'Tam tint his reason a' thegither,
And roars out, "Weel done, Cutty-sark!"
And in an instant a' was dark;
And scarcely had he Maggie rallied,
When out the hellish legion sallied.

As bees bizz out wit' angry fyke,
When plundering herds assail their byke;
As open plassie's mortal foes,
When, pop! she starts before their nose;
As eager runs the market-crowd,
When, "Catch the thief!" resounds aloud;
POEMS,

So Maggie runs, the witches follow,
Wi' monie an eerine skreech and hollow.

Ah, Tam! ah, Tam! thon'll get thy fairin!
In hell they'll roast thee like a hERRIN!
In vain thy Kate awaits thy comin!
Kate soon will be a woefu' woman!
Now, do thy speedy utmost, Meg,
And win the key-stane* of the brig;
There at them thou thy tail may toss,
A running stream they dare na cross.
But ere the key-stane she could make,
The hent a tail she had to shake!
For Nannie, far before the rest,
Hard upon noble Maggie preste;
And flew at Tam wi' furious glee;
But little wist she Maggie's mettle—
Ae spring brought all her master hate,
But left behind her ain gray cat:
The carlin caught her by the rump,
And left poor Maggie scarce a stump.

Now, wha this tale o' truth shal reap,
Ilk man and mother's son, take heed;
Where'er to drink you are inclin'd,
Or cutty-sarks run in your mind,
Think, ye may buy the joys o'er dear,
Remember Tam O'Shanter's mare.

[The following poem will, by many readers, be well enough understood; but for the sake of those who are unacquainted with the manners and traditions of the country where the scene is cast, notes are added, to give some account of the principal charms and spells of that night, so big with prophecy to the peasantry in the west of Scotland. The passion of prying into futurity makes a striking part of the history of human nature in its rude state, in all ages and nations; and it may be some entertainment to a philosophic mind, if any such should honour the author with a perusal, to see the remains of it among the more unenlightened in our own.]

* It is a well known fact, that witches, or any evil spirits, have no power to follow a poor wight any further than the middle of the next running stream. It may be proper likewise to mention to the benighted traveller, that when he falls in with hagles, whatever danger may be in his going forward, there is much more hazard in turning back.

HALLOWEEN.*

Yes! let the rich deride, the proud disdain,
The simple pleasures of the lowly train;
To me more dear, congenial to my heart,
One native charm than all the gloss of art.

GOLDSMIT I

I.

Upon that night, when fairies light,
On Cassilis Downans' dance,
Or o' er the lays in splendid blaze,
On sprightly coursers prance;
Or for Colean the rout is ta'en,
Beneath the moon's pale beams;
There, up the Cove, to stray an' rove
Amang the rocks an' streams
To sport that night.

II.

Among the bonie winding banks,
Where Doon rins, winplin, clear,
Where Brack's ance ru'd the martial ranks,
And shook the Carrick spear,
Some merry, friendly, country folks,
Together did convene,
To burn their nits, an' pou their stocks,
An' haud their Halloween
Fu' bythe that night.

III.

The lasses feast, an' cleanly neat,
Mair braw than when they're fine;
Their faces blythe, fu' sweetly kythe,
Hearts leal, an' warm, an' kin':

* Is thought to be a night when witches, devils, and other mischief-making beings, are all abroad on their baneful midnight errands; particularly those aerial people, the fairies, are said on that night to hold a grand anniversary.

† Certain little, romantic, rocky, green hills, in the neighbourhood of the ancient seat of the earls of Cassilis.

‡ A noted cavern near Colean-house, called the Cove of Colean; which, as well as Cassilis Downans, is famed in country story for being a favourite haunt of fairies.

§ The famous family of that name, the ancestors of Robert, the great deliverer of his country, were earls of Carrick.
POEMS,
The lads sae trig, wi' wooer-babs,
Wiel knotted on their garten,
Some unco blate, and some wi' gabs,
Gor lasses' hearts gang startin
Wylies fast that night.

IV.
Then first and foremost, thro' the kail,
Their stocks* maun a' be sought ance;
They steek their een, an' grip an' wale,
For muckle anes an' straight anes;
Poor hav'rel Will fell aff the drift,
An' wander'd thro' the bow-kail,
An' pow't, for want o' better shift,
A runt was like a sow-tail,
Sae bow't that night.

V.
Then, straight, or crooked, yird or nane,
They roar an' cry a' thro'ther;
The vera wee things, todlin, rin
Wi' stocks out-owre their shouter;
An' gil the custock's sweet or sour,
Wi' joctelegs they taste them;
Sync cozily, aboo' the door,
'Wi' cannie care, they've plac'd them
To lie that night.

VI.
The lasses staw frae 'mang them a'
To pou their stalks o' corn;

* The first ceremony of Halloween, is, pulling each a stock, or plant of kail. They must go out, hand in hand, with eyes shut, and pull the first they meet with. Its being big or little, straight or crooked, is prophetic of the size and shape of the grand object of all their spells—the husband or wife. If any yird, or earth, stick to the root, that is wucher, or fortune; and the taste of the custock, that is, the heart of the stem, is indicative of the natural temper and disposition. Lastly, the stems, or to give them their ordinary appellation, the runts, are placed somewhere above the hand of the door: and the Christian names of the people whom chance brings into the house, are, according to the priority of placing the runts, the names is, question.
† They go to the barn-yard, and pull each, at three several times, a stalk of oats. If the third stalk wants the tap pickle, that is, the grain at the top of the stalk, the party in question will come to the marriage-bed any thing but a maid.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

But Rab slips out, an' jinks about,
Behint the muckle thorn:
He grippet Nelly hawd an' fast,
Loud skirl'il a' the lasses;
But her tap-pickle maist was lost,
When kindlin in the fause-house*
Wi' him that night.

VII.
The auld gudwife's wee hoordet nits†
Are round an' round divided,
An' monie lads' an' lasses' fates,
Are there that night decided:
Some kindle, contlie, side by side,
An' burn thegither trimly;
Some start awa wi' saucy pride,
And jump out-owrr' the chimlie
Fu' high that night.

VIII.
Jean slips in twa wi' tendie e'e;
Wha 'twas she wadna tell;
But this is Jock, and this is me,
She says in to housel:
He bleuz' d owre her, an' she owre him,
As they wad never mair part!
Till luft! he started up the lum,
An' Jean had e'en a sair heat
To see't that light.

IX.
Poor Willie, wi' his bow-kail-runt,
Was brunt wi' prinsie Mall e;
An' Mallie, nae doubt, took the drunt,
To be compar'd to Willie;
Mall's nit lap out wi' prideful fling,
An' her ah! fit it brunt it;

* When the corn is in a doubtful state, by being too green or wet, the stack-builder, by means of old timber, &c., makes a large apartment in his stack, with an opening in the side which is fairest exposed to the wind; this he calls a fause-house.
† Burning the nuts is a famous charm. They name the lad and lass to each particular nut, as they lay them in the fire, and accordingly as they burn quietly together, or start from beside one another, the course and issue of the courtship will be.
POEMS.

While Willie lap, and swoor by jing,
'Twas just the way he wanted
To be that night

X.
Nell had the cause-house in her min',
She pits hersel an' Rob in;
In loving breeze they sweetly join,
Till white in aec they're sobbin':
Nell's heart was dancin at the view,
She whisper'd Rob to lenk for't:
Rob, stowins, prie'd her home mou,
Fu' cozie in the neuk for',
Unseen that night.

But Merran sat behint their backs,
Her thoughts on Andrew Bell;
She len'tes them gashin at their cracks,
And slips out by hersel:
She thro' the yard the nearest take,
An' to the kiln she goes then,
An' darklin's gruitit for the banks,
And in the blue-clue* throws then,
Right fear't that night.

XII.
An' ay she win't, an' ay she swat,
I war she made nae jankin;
Th' something held within the pat,
Guid L—d, but she was quakin!
But whether 'twas the Bell himself,
Or whether 'twas a hank'en,
Or whether it was Andrew Bell,
She did na wait on ta'kin
To spier that night.

XIII.
Wee Jenny to her gran'mie says,
"Will ye go wi' me, gran'mie?"

* Whoever would, with success, try this spell, must strictly observe these directions: Steal out, all alone, to the kiln, and darklin, throw into the pot a clue of blue yarn; wind it in a new clue off the old one; and towards the latter end, something will hold the thread; demand, Wha hauds? i. e. Who holds? An answer will be returned from the kiln pot, by naming the christian and surname of your future spouse.

She fu'll her pipe wi' sick a lust,
In wrath she was sae vap'rin,
She noic't na, an aizle brunt
Her braw new worsen apron
Out thro' that night.

XIV.
Ye little skelpie limmer's face!
How daur you try sic sportin,
As seek the foul thief onie place,
For him to spae your fortune?
Nae doubt but ye may get a sight,
Great cause ye have to fear it;
For monie a ane has gotten a fright,
An' lived an' died delereet
On sic a night

"Ae hairst afore the Sherra-moor,
I mind't as weel's yestreen,
I was a gylpey then, I'm sure
I was nae past fifteen;

An' stuff was unco green;
An' ay a rantin kim we gat,
An' just on Halloween
It fell that night.

* Take a candle, and go alone to a looking-glass; eat an apple before it, and some traditions say, you should comb your hair all the time; the face of your conjugal companion to be, will be seen in the glass as if peeping over your shoulder.
† Steal out, unperceived, and sow a handful of hemp-seed; harrowing it with anything you can conveniently draw after you. Repeat now and then, "Hemp-seed, I saw thee, hemp seed, I saw thee; and him (or her) that is to be my true love, come after me and you shall." Look over your left shoulder, and you will see the appearance of the person invoked, in the attitude of pulling hemp. Some traditions say "Come

An' he made unco light o't;
But monie a day was by himsel,
He was sae sairly frightened

XVII.
Then up gat fetchin Jamie Fleck,
An' he sware by his conscience,
That he could saw hemp-seed a peck,
For it was a' but nonsense:
The anid guidman raught down the peck,
An' out a handin' gied him;
Syne bad him slip frae 'mang the folk,
Some time when na aue see'd him,
An' try't that night.

He marches thro' amang the stacks,
Tho' he was something sturtin';
The graip he for a harrow taks,
An' haurds at his curpin';
An' ev'ry now an' then, he says,
"Hemp-seed, I saw thee,
An' her that is to be my lass.
Come after me, and draw thee
As fast this night."

XIX.
He whistl'd up Lord Lennox's march,
To keep his courage cheery;
Although his hair began to arch,
He was sae fley'd an' eerie;
Till presently he hears a squeak,
An' then a grane an' gruntle:
He by his shouther gae a keek,
An' tumb'd wi' a wintle
Out-owre that night.

XX.
He roar'd a horrid murder-shout,
In dreadfu' desperation!
An' young and auld came rinnin' out,
An' hear the sad narration:
He swoor 'twas hitchin Jean M'Craw,

After me, and show thee,' that is, show thyself: in which case it simply appears. Others omit the harrowing, and say,
"Come after me, and harrow thee."

Meg fain wad to the barn hae gaen
To winn three wechts o' naething;*
But for to meet the Deil her lane,
She pat but little faith in:
She gies the herd a pickle nits,
An' twa red cheekit apples,
To watch, while for the barn she sets,
In hopes to see Tam Kipples
That vera night.

XXII.
She turns the key wi' camnie throw,
And owre the threshold ventures;
But first on Sawnie gies a ca';
Syne bauldly in she enters;
A ratton rath'd up the wa',
An' she cry'd, L—d, preserve her!
An' ran thro' midden-hole an' a',
An' pray'd wi' zeal an' fervor,
Fu' fast that night.

They hoy't out Will, wi' sair advice:
They hecht him some fine braw ane;
It chanc'd the stack he fuddom'd thrice,†
Was timber-propt for thrawin:

* This charm must likewise be performed, unperceived, and alone. You go to the barn, and open both doors, taking them off the hinges, if possible; for there is danger that the being, about to appear, may shut the doors, and do you some mischief. Then take that instrument used in winnowing the corn, which, in our country dialect, we call a wecht; and go through all the attitudes of letting down corn against the wind. Repeat it three times; and the third time an apparition will pass through the barn, in at the windy door, and out at the other, having both the figure in question, and the appearance or retinue, marking the employment or station in life.

† Take an opportunity of going, unnoticed, to a bear-stack, and fathom it three times round. The last fathom of the last time, you will catch in your arms the appearance of your future conjugal yoke-fellow.
POEMS,

He takes a swirlie, and moss oak,
For some black, grousome carlin;
An' loot a whinze, an' drew a stroke,
Till skain in blypes came haurlin

A wanton widow Leezie was,
As canty as a kitten;
But Och! that night, amang the shaws,
She got a fearfu' settlin';
She thio' the whins, an' by the c'irm,

Where three lairds' lands met at a burn,*
'To dip her left sink-sleeve in,
Was bent that night.

Whyles owre a linn the burnie plays,
As thro' the glen it winpl't;
Whyles round a rocky scar it strays;
Whyles in a weil it dimpl't;
Whyles glitter'd to the nightly rays,
Wi' bickering, dancing dazzle;
Whyles cookit underneath the braes,
Below the spreading hazel,
Unseen that night.

XXVI.

Amang the brachens, on the brae,
Between her an' the moon,
The Deil, or else an outlier quey,
Gat up an' gae a croon:
Poor Leezie's heart maist lap the hool;
Near lav'rock-height she jumpit,
But mist a fit, an' in the pool
Out owre the lugs she plumpit,
Wi' a plung of that night.

* You go out, one or more, for this is a social spell, to a south-running spring or runlet, where "three lairds' lands meet," and dip your left shirt sleeve. Go to bed in sight of a fire, and hang your wet sleeve before it to dry. In awa:
and sometime near midnight an apparition, having the exact
sleeve, as if to dry the other side of it.

Because he gat the toom dish thrice,
He heav'd them on the fire

RECITATIVO.

When lyart leaves bestrow the yird,
Or wavering like the Bauckie-buid,†
Behold cauld Boreas' blast;
When hail stanes drive wi' bitter skye,

* Take three dishes: put clean water in one, foul water in another, leave the third empty: blindfold a person, and lead him to the hearth where the dishes are ranged; he (or she) dips the left hand; if by chance in the clean water, the future husband or wife will come to the bar of maternity i.e. maid: if in the foul, a widow; if in the empty dish, it foretells, with equal certainty, no marriage at all. It is repeated three times, and every time the arrangement of the dishes is altered.

† Sourens, wit butter instead of milk to them, is always the Halloween supper.

Wi' usquebae an' blankets warm—
She blanket on her sodger;
An' ay he gives the tozle drab
The tither skelpin kiss,
While she held up her greedy gab
Just like an amigos dish.
Iik smack still did crack still,
Just like a cadger's whip,
Then staggering and swaggering
He roar'd this ditty up—

Tune—"Soldier's Joy."

I.
I am a son of Mars, who have been in many wars,
And show my cuts and scars wherever I come:
This here was for a wench, and that other in a trench,
When welcoming the French at the sound of the drum.
Lali de daudle, &c.

II.
My prenticeship I past where my leader breath'd his last,
When the bloody die was cast on the heights of Abram;
I served out my trade when the gallant game was play'd,
And the Moro low was laid at the sound of the drum.
Lali de daudle, &c.

III.
I lastly was with Curtis, among the floating batt'ries,
And there I left for witness an arm and a limb;
Yet let my country need me, with Elliot to head me,
I'd clatter on my stumps at the sound of a drum.
Lali de daudle, &c.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

IV.

And now, tho' I must beg with a wooden arm and leg,
And many a tatter'd rag hanging over my bum,
I'm as happy with my wallet, my bottle and my callet,
As when I us'd in scarlet to follow a drum.

Lal de daudle, &c.

V.

What tho' with hoary locks, I must stand the winter shocks,
Beneath the woods and rocks oftentimes for a home,
When the 't'other bag I sell, and the 't'other bottle tell,
I could meet a troop of hell at the sound of the drum.

Lal de daudle, &c.

RECIPIATIVO.

He ended; and the kebars sheuk
Aboon the chorus rear;
While frighted rattons backward leek,
And seek the heenmost bore;
A fairy fiddler frane the neuk,
He skir'd out encore!
But up arose the martial chuck,
And laid the loid uproar.

AIR.

Tune—"Soldier Laddie."

I.

I once was a maid, tho' I cannot tell when,
And still my delight is in proper young men:
Some one of a troop of dragoons was my daddie,
No wonder I'm fond of a sodger laddie.

Sing, Lal de lai, &c.

II.

The first of my loves was a swaggering blade,
To rattle the thundering drum was his trade:
His leg was so tight, and his cheek was so ruddy,
Transported I was with my sodger laddie.

Sing, Lal de lai, &c.

III.

But the godly old chaplain left him in the lurch,
The sword I forsook for the sake of the church;
He ventured the soul, and I risked the body,
'Twas then I prov'd false to my sodger laddie.

Sing, Lal de lai, &c.
POEMS,

IV.

Full soon I grew sick of my sanctified cot,
The regiment at large for a husband I got;
From the gilded spouton to the life I was ready,
I ask no more but a sodger laddie.

Sing, Lal de lal, &c.

V.

But the peace it reduc'd me to beg in despair,
Till I met my auld boy at Cunningham fair;
His rags regimental they flutter'd so gaudy,
My heart it rejoiced at my sodger laddie.

Sing, Lal de lal, &c.

VI.

And now I have liv'd—I know not how long,
And still I can join in a cup or a song;
But whilst with both hands I can hold the glass steady,
Here's to thee, my hero, my sodger laddie.

Sing, Lal de lal &c.

Tune—"O an' ye were dead, gudeman."

I.

A highland lad my love was born,
The Lalland laws he held in scorn;
But he still was faithful to his clan,
My gallant braw John Highlandman.

CHORUS.

Sing, hev my braw John Highlandman!
Sing, ho my braw John Highlandman!
There's not a lad in a' the lan'
Was match for my John Highlandman.

III.
We ranged a' from Tweed to Spey,
An' tri'd like lords and ladies gay;
For a Lalland face he feared none,
My gallant braw John Highlandman.
    Sing, hey, & c.

IV.
They banish'd him beyond the sea,
But ere the bud was on the tree,
Adown my cheeks the pearls ran,
Embracing my John Highlandman.
    Sing, hey, &c.

V.
But, oh! they catch'd him at the last,
And bound him in a dungeon fast;
My curse upon them every one,
They've hang'd my braw John Highlandman.
    Sing, hey, & c.

VI.
And now a widow, I must mourn
The pleasures that will never return;
No comfort but a hearty can,
When I think on John Highlandman.

Wi' hand on hannel, an' upward e'e,
He croon'd his gau'n, one, two, three,
Then in an Arioso key,

Set off wi' Alpavita glee,

As weel as poor gut-scraper;
He taks the fiddler by the beard,
And draws a rusty rapier.

My bonie lass, I work in brass,
A tinker is my station;
I've travelled round all Christian ground
In this my occupation.

In many a noble squadron;
But vain they search'd, when aft I march'd
To go and clout the caudron.

And by that dear Kilbaigie,*
If e'er ye want, or meet wi' scant,
May I n'er meet my craigie.

And by that stowp, &c.

RECITATIVO.

RECITATIVO.

So sung the bard—and Nansie's wa's
Shook wi' a thunder of applause,
Re-echo'd from each mouth:
They toon'd their pocks, an' pawn'd their duds,
They scarcely left to co'er their fuds
To quench their lowan drouth.

Then owre again, the jovial thrang
The poet did request,
To low'se his pack, an' wale a sang,
A ballad o' the best:
He, rising, rejoicing,
Between his twa Deborahs,
Looks round him, an' found them
Impatient for the chorus.

DEATH AND DR. HORNBOOK,
A TRUE STORY.

Some books are lies frace end to end,
And some great lies were never penn'd:
Ev'n ministers, they han been kenn'd,
In holy rapture,
A rousing whild, at times to vend,
And na'it wi' Scripture.

But this that I am gaun to tell,
Which lately on a night befell,
Is just as true's the Deil's in h'Il
Or Dublin city;
That e'er he nearer comes oursel
's a muckle pity.

The Clachan yill had made me canty,
I was nae fou, but just had plenty;
I stach'd whyles, but yet took tent ay
To free the ditches;
An' hillocks, stanes, an' bushes, kenn'd ay
Frae ghaiscts an' witches.

The rising Moon began to glow'r
The distant Cumnock hills out-owre;
To count her horns, wi' a' my pow'r,
I set mysel;
But whether she had three or four,
I cou'd na tell.

I was come round about the hill,
And todlin down on Willie's mill,
Setting my staff wi' a' my skill,
'To keep me sicker;
Tho' leeward whyles against my will,
I took a bicker.

I there wi' something did forgather,
That put me in an eerie swither;
An awfu' scythe, out-owre ae shouter,
Clear dangting hang;
A three-tae'd leister on the ithr
Lay, large an' lang.

Its stature seem'd lang Scotch ells twa,
The queerest shape that e'er I saw,
For fient a wame it had ava!
And then, its shanks,
They were as thin, as sharp, an' sma'
As cheeks o' branks!
"Guld-e'en," quo I; "Friend! hae ye been mawin
When ither folk are busy savin?"*
It seem'd to mak a kind o' stan',
But naething spak;
At length, says I, "Friend, whare ye gaun?
Will ye go back?"

It spak right Howe—"My name is Death,
But be na fley'd."—Quo' I, "Guld faith!
Ye're may be com to stap my breath;
But tent me, billie;
I red ye wcel, tak care o' skaitil,
See, there's a guil.

"Gudeman," quo' he, "put up your whittle,
I'm no design'd to try its mettle;
But if I did, I wad be kittle
To be mislear'd,
I wad na mind it, no that spittle
Out-owrie my beard."

"Weel, weel!" says I, "a bargain be't;
Come, gie's your hand, an' sae we're gree't;
We'll ease our shanks, an' tak a seat,
Come, gie's your news;
This whyle† ye hae been monie a gate,
At innie a house."

"Ay, ay!" quo' he, an' shook his head,
"It's e'en a lang, lang time indeed
Sin' I began to nick the tread,
An' choke the breath;
Folk maun do something for their braid,
An' sae maun Death.

"Sax thousand years are near hand fled
Sin' I was to the butchinc hird,
An' monie a scheme in vair's been laid,
To stap or scar me;
Till an Hornbook's at'en up the trade,
An' faith, he'll waur me.

"See, here's a scythe, and there's a dart,
They hae pierc'd monie a gallant heart;
But Doctor Hornbook, wi' his art,
And cursed skill,
Has made them baith no worth a f—t,

But did nae mair.

"Hornbook was by, wi' ready art,
And had sae fortified the part,
That when I looked to my dart,
It was sae blunt,
Flent haet o't wad hae pierc'd the heart

"I drew my scythe in sic a fury,
I near hand cowpit wi' my hurry,
But yet the baud Apothecary
Withstood the shock;

Some ill-brewn drink had hov'd her name
She trusts hereel, to hide the shame,

To hide it there.

"That's just a swatch! 'Hornbook's way
Thus goes he on from day to day,
Thus does he poison, kill, t' n' slay;
Yet stops me o' my lawfu' prey,
Wi' his d-mn'd dirt.

Tho' dinna ye be speaking o't:

But just as he began to tell,
The auld kirk-hammer strak the bell
Some wee short hour ayont the twal,
Which rais'd us baith;
I took the way that pleas'd mysel,
And sae did Death.

A DREAM.

Thoughts, words, and deeds, the statute blames with reason:
But surely dreams were ne'er indicted treason.

[On reading, in the public papers, the Laureat's Ode, with the other parade of June 4, 1786, the author was no sooner dropt asleep than he imagined himself transported to the birth-day levee; and in his dreaming fancy made the following address.]

I.

Guide morning to your Majesty!
May heav'n augment your blisses,
On every new birth-day ye see,
An humble poet wishes!
My hardship here, at your levee,
On sic a day as this is,
Is sure an uncouth sight to see,
Amang thae birth-day dresses
Sae fine the day.
POEMS,

I see ye're complimented thrang,

The Poets, too, a venal gang,

But ay unerring steady,

III.
For me! before a monarch's face,
Ev'n there I winna flatter;
For neither pension, post, nor place,
Am I your humble debtor;
So, nae reflection on your grace,
Your kingship to bespatter;
There's monie waur been o' the race,
And aiblins ane been better,
Than you this day.

IV.
'Tis very true, my sov'reign king,
My skill mny weel be doubted;
But facts are chieles that winna ding,
An' downa be disputed:
Your royal nest, beneath your wing,
Is e'en right reft an' clouted,
And now the third part of the string,
An' less, will gang about it
Than did ae day.

V.
Far be't frae me that I aspire
To blame your legislation,
Or say, ye wisdom want, or fire,
To rule this mighty nation!
But faith! I muckle doubt, my Sire;
Ye've trusted ministration
To chaps, wha, in a barn or byre,
Wad better fill'd their station

But since I'm here, I'll no neglect,
In loyal, true affection,
To pay your Queen, with due respect,

Hail, Majesty most excellent!
While nobles strive to please ye,
Will ye accept a compliment
A simple Poet gies ye?
Thae bonie bairn-time, Heav'n has lent,
Still higher may they heeze ye
In bliss, till fate some day is sent,

For you, young potentate o' W——,
I tell your highness fairly,
Down pleasure's stream, wi' swelling sails,
I'm tauid ye'ir driving rarely;
But some day ye may gnaw your nails,
An' curse yo'ir folly squirly,
That e'er ye brak Diana's pales,
Or rattl'd di'te wi' Charlie,
By night or day.
Yet aft a ragged cause's been known
To mak a noble awe;
So ye may doucely fill a throne,
For a' their clish-ma-claver:
There him at Agincourt who shone,
Few better were or braver;
And yet, wi' funny, queer Sir John,†
He was an unco shaver
For monie a day.

For you, right rev'rend O———,
Name sets the lawn-sleeve sweeter,
Atho' a riband at your hug
Wad been a dress completer;
As ye disown you paughty dog
That bea the keys of Peter,
Then, swith! an' get a wife to hug,
Or, trouth! ye'll stain the mitre
Some luckless day.

Young, royal Tarry Brooks, I learn,
Ye've lately come athwart her;
A glorious galleij,³ stem an' stern,
Well rig'd for Venus' barter;
But first hang out, that she'll discern
Your hymenial character,
Then heave abroad your grapple air,
An' large upon her quarter,
Come full that day.

Ye, lastly, bonie blossoms a',
Ye royal lasses daly,
Heav'n mak you guid as weel's braw,
An' gie you lads a-plenty;
But sneer na British boys awa',
For kings are unco scant ay;
An' German gentles are but sma',

POEMS,

Food fills the wame, an' keeps us livin';
Tho' life's a gift no worth receivin',
When heavy dragg'd wi' pine an' grievin';
But, oill'd by thee,
The wheels o' life gae down-hill, scrievin,
Wi' ratlin glee.

Thou clears the head o' doited Lear;
Thou cheers the heart o' drooping Care;
Thou strings the nerves o' Labour sair,
At's weary toil:
Thou even brightens dark Despair
Wi' gloomy smile.

Aft, clad in massy silver weed,
Wi' gentles thou erects thy head;
Yet humbly kind in time o' need,
The poor man's wine,
His wee drap parritch, or his bread,
Thou kitchens fine.

Thou art the life o' public haunts;
But thee, what were our fairs and rants?
Ev'n godly meetings o' the saunts,
By thee inspir'd,
When gaping they besiege the tents,
Are doubly fir'd.

That merry night we gat the corn in,
O sweetly then thou reams the horn in?
Or recking on a new year morning
In cog or bicker,
An' just a wee drap spiritual burn in,
An' gusty sucker!

When Vulcan gies his bellows breath,
An' ploughman gather wi' their graith,
O rare to see thee fizz an' freath,
I' th' lugget caup!
Then Burnewin* comes on like death
At ev'ry chaup.

Nae mercy, then, for arm or steel;
The brawnie, bainie, ploughman chief,
Brings hard owrehip, wi' sturdy wheel,
The strong forehammer,
Till block an' studdie ring an' reel
Wi' dinsome clamour.

* Burnewin—burn-thes-wind—the Blacksmith
When skirlin weanies see the light,
Thou mak'st the gossips chatter bright,
How fumblin' cuffs their dearies sight;
Wae worth the name;
Nae howdie gets a social night,
Or plack frae them.

When neebors anger at a plea,
An' just as wud as wud can be,
How easy can the barley-tree
Cement the quarrel!
It's aye the cheapest lawyer's fee,
To taste the barrel.

Alake! that e'er my Muse has reason
To wyte her countrymen wi' treason!
But monie daily weet their weason
Wi' liquors nice,
An' hardly, in a winter's season,
E'er spier her price.

Wae worth that brandy, burning trash!
Fell source o' monie a pain an' brash!
Twins monie a poor, doyilt, drunken hash,
O' half his days!
An' sends, beside, auld Scotland's cash
To her worst face.

Ye Scots wha wish auld Scotland well,
Ye chief, to you my tale I tell,
Poor plackless devils like mysel!
It sets you ill,
Wi' bitter, deathful wines to mellt,
Or foreign gill.

May gravels round his blether wrench,
An' gouts torment him inch by inch,
Wha twists his gruttle wi' a glunch
O' sour disdain,
Out-owre a glass o' whiskey punch
Wi' honest men.

O whiskey! soul o' plays an' pranks!
Accept a Bardie's humble thanks!
When wanting thee, what timeless cranks
Are my poor verses!
Thou comes—they rattle i' their ranks
At tither's a—s!

Thire, Frintash! O sadly lost!
Scotland, lament frae coast to coast!
Now colic grips, an' barkin' boast,
May kill us a';
For loyal Forbes' clarion'd boast,
Is taen awa'!
'Thac curtus horse-leeches o' th' Excise,
Who mak the whiskey steals the prize!
Haud up thy han', Doilance, twice, thrice,
There, seize the blinkers!
An' bake them up in brunstane pies
For poor d—n'd drinkers.
Fortune! if thau'll but gie me still
Hale brecks, a scone, an' whiskey gill,
An' rowth o' rhyme to rave at will,
'Tak a' the rest,
An' deal't about as thy blind skill
Directs thee best.

THE AUTHOR'S EARNEST CRY AND PRAYER
TO THE SCOTCH REPRESENTATIVES IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Dearest of distillation! last and best—
—How art thou lost!—

PARODY ON MILTON.

Ye Irish Lords, ye Knights an' Squires,
Wha represent our burgis an' shires,
An' duncel manage our affairs
In parliament,
To you a simple Poet's prayers
Are humbly sent
Alas! my roupet Muse is hearse!
Your honours' heart wi' grief 'twad pierce,
To see her sithin on her a—e
Low in the dust,
An' scricch an' prosaic verse,
An' like to brust!

Tell them wha hae the chief direction,
Scotland an' me's in great affliction,
E'er sin' they laid that curt restriction
On Aquavitae;
An' rouse them up to strong conviction,
An' move their pity.

This was written before the act anent the Scotch distilleries, of session 1786; for which Scotland and the author return their most grateful thanks.
Stand forth, an' tell yon Prentice youth,
The honest, open, naked truth;
Tell him o' mine an' Scotland's drouth,
His servants humble;
The muckle Devil blow ye south,
If ye dissemble!

Does onie great man gluncli an' gloom!
Speak out, an' never fash your thumb!
Let posts an' pensions sink or soom
Wi' them wha grant 'em;
If honestly they canna come,
Far better want 'em.

In gath'ring votes you were na slack;
Now stand as tightly by your tack;
Ne'er claw your lug, an' fidge your back,
An' hum an' haw;
But raise your arm, an' tell your crack
Before them a'.

Paint Scotland greeting ower her thistle;
Her mutchkin soupe an' toon's a whistle;
An' d-mn'd excisemen in a busse,
Seizin a stoll,
Triumphant crushtin' like a mussel
O' lampit shell.

Then on the tither hand present her,
A blackguard smuggler right behind her,
An' cheek-for-chow, a chuffie Vintner
Colleaguing join,
Picking her pouch as hure as winter
Of a' kind coin.

Is there, that bears the name o' Scot,
But feeds his heart's blood, kissin' het,
To see his poor auld mither's pot
Thus dun in staves,
An' plunder'd o' her hindmost gront
By gallows knaves?

Alas! I'm but a nameless wight,
Trode I' the mire an' out o' sight!
But could I like Montgomery's fight,
Or gab like Boswell;
There's some sark necks I wad draw tight,
An' tie some hose well.
God bless your honours, can ye see't,
The kind, auld, cantie Carlin greet,
An' no get warmly to your feet,
An' gar them hear it,
An' tell them wi' a patriot heat,
Ye winna hear it!

Some o' you nicely ken the laws,
To round the period, an' pause,
An' w' the rhetoric clause on clause
To mak harangues;
Then echo thro' Saint Stephen's wa's
Auld Scotland's wrangs.

Dempster, a true-blue Scot I' se warran';
Thee, aith-detesting, chaste Kilkerran,
An' that glib-gabet highland Baron,
The Laird o' Graham,
An' ane, a chap that's d-mn'd auld farran,
Dundas his name.

Erskine, a spunkie Norland billie;
True Campbells, Frederick an' lay;
An' Livingstone, the bauld Sir Willie;
An' monie ither;
Whom auld Demosthenes and Tully
Might own for brothers.

Arouse, my boys! exert your mettle,
To get auld Scotland back her kettle;
Or, faith! I'll wad my new pleugh-pettle,
Ye'll see't or lang,
She'll teach you wi' a reekin whittle,
Another sang.

This while she's been in crankous mood,
Her lost Militia fir'd her bluid;
(Deil na they never ma' do guid,
Play'd her that pliskie!)
An' now she's like to rin red-wud,
About her whiskey.

An' L—d, if ance they pit her till't,
Her tartan petticoat she'll kilt,
An' dirk an' pistol at her b'lt,
She'll tak the streets,
An' rin her whittle to the hilt,
I' the first she meets

For G-d’s sake, Sirs! then speak her fair
An’ straik her cannie wi’ the hair,
An’ to the muckle house repair,
Wi’ instant speed,
An’ strive wi’ a’ your wits an’ lear,
To get remead.

Yon ill-tongued tinkler, Charlie Fox,
May taunt you wi’ his jeers an’ mocks;
But gie him’t het, my hearty cocks!
E’en cove the caddie:
An’ send him to his dicing box
An’ sporting lady.

Tell yon guid blind o’ auld Beconnock’s
I’ll be his debt twa mashlum bonnocks,
An’ drink his health in auld Nune Tinnock’s!
Nine times a week,
If he some scheme, like tea an’ winnocks,
Wad kindly seek.

Could he some commutation broach,
I’ll pledge my aith in guid braid Scotch,
He need na fear their foul reproach
Nor erudition,
You mixtia-maxtie queer hotch-potch,
The Coalition.

Auld Scotland has a rancile tongue:
She’s just a devil wi’ a rung;
An’ if she promise auld or young
To tak their part,
Tho’ by the neck she should be strung,
She’ll no desert.

An’ now, ye chosen Five-and-Forty,
May still your mither’s heart support ye;
Then, though a minister grow d Horty
An’ kick your place,
Ye’ll snap your fingers, poor an’ hearty,
Before his face.

God bless your honours a’ your days,
Wi’ sowps o’ kail an’ bratls o’ claise,
In spite o’ a’ the thievish kaes,
‘That haunt Saint Jamie’s!
Your humble poet sings an’ prays
While Rab his name is.

POSTSCRIPT.

Let half-starved slaves, in warmer skies,
See future wines, rich-clustering, rise;
Their lot auld Scotland ne'er envies,
But blythe and frisky,
She eyes her free born, martial boys
Tak aff their whiskey.

What tho' their Phaebus kinder warms,
While fragrance blooms and beauty charms!
When wretches range, in famish'd swarms,
The scented groves;
Or hounded forth, dishonour arms
In hungry droves!

Their gun's a burden on their shouther;
They downa bide the stink o' pouther;
Their bauldest thought's a hank'ring swither
To stan' or fin,
All skelpt—a shot;—they're aff a throwther,
To save their skin.

But bring a Scotsman frae his hill,
Clap in his cheek a Highland gill,
Say, such is royal George's will,
An' there's the foe.
He has nae thought but how to kill
Twa at a blow.

Nae cauld, faint-hearted doublings tease him;
Death comes, wi' fearless eye he sees him;
Wi' bluidy hand a welcome gies him:
An' when he fa's,
His latest draught o' breltim lea'es him
In faint huzzas.

Sages their solemn een may streak,
An' raise a philosophic reek,
An' physically causes seek,
In cline an' season;
But tell me whiskey's name in Greek,
I'll tell the reason.

Scotland, my auld respected mither!
'Tho' whyles ye moistify your leather,
Till what ye sit, on craps o' heather,
Ye tu your dam;
(Phreedom and whiskey gang thegither !)
Tak aff your drain!
O Prince! O Chief of many throned Pow'rs,
That led the embattled Seraphim to war.

ADDRESS TO THE DEIL.

O thou! whatever title suit thee,
Auld Hornie, Satan, Nick, or Clootie,
Wha in yon cavern, grim an' sootie,
Cios'd under hatches,
Spairges about the brunstane coottie,
To scaud poor wretches!

I hear me, auld Hangie, for a wee,
An' let poor damned bodies be;
I'm sure sin' a pleasure it can gie,
'E'en to a Deil,
To skelp an' scaud poor dogs like me,
An' hear us squeal!

Great is thy power, an' great thy fame;
Far kenn'd and noted is thy name;
An' tho' yon lowin heugh's thy hame,
Thou travels far;
An' faith thou's neither lag nor fame,
Nor blate nor scur.

Whyles ranging like a roarin' lion,
For prey, a' holes an' corners tryin;
Whyles on the strong-wing'd tempest flyin,
Thrin' the kirk's;
Whyles in the human bosom pryin,
Unseen thou lurks.

I've heard my reverend grannie say,
In lanely glens ye like to stray;
Or where auld, ruin'd castles, gray,
Nod to the moon,
Ye fright the nightly wand'r'er's way,
Wi' eerie drone.

When twiliglit did my grannie summon,
To say her prayers, douce, honest woman!
Aft yont the dyke she's heard you hummin
'Wi' eerie drone;
Or rustlin' thro' the heather's comin,
'Wi' heavy groan.

Ae dreary, windy, winter night,
The stars shot down wi' skiltenin light;

Milton.
POEMS,

Wi' you, mysel, I gat a fright,
Ayont the lough;
Ye, like a rash-bush, stood in sight,
Wi' waving sigh.

The cudgil in my neve did shake,
Each bristl'd hair stood like a stake,
When, wi' an old-fach stour, quaick—quaick—
Among the springs,
Awa' ye squatter'd, like a drake,
On whistling wings.

Let warlocks grim, an' wither'd knobs,
Tell now wi' you on ragweed nags,
They skim the muis, an' dizzy crags,
Wi' wicked speed;
And in kirkyards renew their leagues,
Owre howkit dead.

Thence countna wives, wi' toil, an' pain,
May plunge an' plunge the kirk in vain;
For, oh! the yellow treasure's taen
By witching skill:
An' dawtit, twal-pint Hawkie's gaen
As yell's the Bill.

Thence mystic knots mak great abuse,
On young guidmen, fond, keen, an' crouse;
When the best work-lume l'the house
By cantrip wit,
Is instant made no worth a louse,
Just at the bit.

When thowes dissolve the snawy hoord;
And float the jingling icy-boord,
Then water-kelpies hamit the foord,
By your direction,
An' nighted trav'llers are allur'd
To their destruction.

An' aft your moss-traversing Spuzkies
Decoy the wight that late an' drunk is:
The bleezin, currst, mischievous monkies
Delude his eyes,
Till in some miry slugh he sunk is,
Ne'er mair to rise.

When Mason's mystic word an' grip
In storms an' tempests raise you up,
Some cock or cat your rage maun stop,
Or, strange to tell!
The youngest brother ye wad whip
Aff straugh to h-hi.

When youthful lovers first were pair'd,
An' a' the saul of love they shar'd
The raptur'd hour;

In shady bow'r:

Then you, ye auld, snick-drawing dog.
Ye came to Paradise incog.
An' play'd on man a cursed brogue,
(Black be your fa'!)
An' gied the infant warld a shog,
'Maist ruin'd a'.

D'ye mind that day, when in a bizz,
Wi' reekit duds, an' reestit gizz,
Ye did present your smoutie phiz,
'Mang better folk,
An' skilented on the man of Uz
Your spitefu' joke?

An' how ye gat him i' your thrall,
An' brak him out o' house an' hall,
While scabs and blotches did him gall,
Wi' bitter claw,
An' lows'd his ill-tongu'd wicked Scawl,
Was warst ava?

But a' your doings to rehearse,
Your wily snares an' fetchin fierce,
Sin' that day Michael* did you pierce,
Down to this time,
Wad ding a' Lalland tongue, or Erse,
In prose or rhyme.

An' now, auld Cloots, I ken ye're thinkin
A certain Bardie's rantin, drinkin,
Some luckless hour will send him linkin,
To your black pit;
But, faith, he'll turn a corner jinkin,
An' cheat you yet.

But, fare you weel, anld Nickie-ben!
O wad ye tak a thought an' men'
Ye aiblins might—I dinna ken—
Still hae a stake—
I'm wae to think up' your den,
Ev'n for your sake!

ON THE LATE CAPTAIN GROSE’S

PEREGRINATIONS THROUGH SCOTLAND, COLLECTING THE ANTIQUITIES OF THAT KINGDOM.

Hear, land o’ cakes, and brither Scots,
FRAE MAIDENKIRK TO JOHNNY GROAT’S
If there’s a hole in a’ your coats,
I rede ye tent it:
A chief’s amang you taking notes,
And, faith, he’ll prent it.

If in your bounds ye chance to light,
Upon a fine, fat, fogil wight,
O’ stature short, but genius bright,
That’s he, mark weel—
And vow! he has an unco slight
O’ eauk and keel.

By some auld, houlet-haunted-biggin,*
Or kirk deserted by its riggin,
It’s ten to ane ye’ll find him snug in
Some eldritch part,
Wi’ Delis, they say, L—d safe’s! colleaguin
At some black art.

Ilk ghaist that haunts auld ha’ or cham’er,
Ye gipsey-gang that deal in glamor,
And you, deep-read in hell’s black grammar
Warlocks and witches;
Ye’ll quake at his conjuring hammer,
Ye midnight b—es.

It’s tauld he was a sodger bred,
And ane wad rather fa’n than fled;
But now he’s quat the spurtle blade,
And dog-skin wallet,
And taen the—Antiquarian trade,
I think they call it.

He has a feuth o’ auld nick-nackets!
Rusty aird caps and jinglin jackets;†
Wad hand the Lothians three in jackets,
A towmont guid;
And parritch-pats, and auld saut-backets,
Before the flood.

Auld-Tubal Cain's fire-shoot and fender;
That which distinguished the gender
O' Balna's ass;
A broom-stick o' the witch of Endor,

Forbye he'1l shape you aff, fu' gleeg,
The cut of Adam's philibeg:
The knife that nicked Abel's craig
He'll prove you fully.
It was a faulding jocetleg,
Or lang kail-guillie.

But wad ye see him in his glee,
For meikle glee and fun has he,
Then set him down, and twa or three
Guid fellows wi' him:
And port, O port! shine thou a wee,
And then ye'll see him!

Now, by the powers o' verse and prose!
Thou art a dainty chiel, O Grose!
Whae'er o' thee shall ill suppose,
They sair misca' thee;
I'd tak the rascal by the nose,
Wad say, Shame fa' thee!

WRITTEN IN A WRAPPER, ENCLOSING A LETTER TO CAPTAIN GROSE, TO BE LEFT WITH MR. CARDonNEL, ANTIQUARIAN.

Tune—"Sir John Malcolm."

Ken ye aught o' Captain Grose?
Igo, and ago,
If he's among his friends or foes?
Iram, coram, dago.
Is he south, or is he north?
Igo, and ago,
Or drowned in the river Forth?
Iram, coram, dago.
Is he slain by Highland bodies?
Igo, and ago,
And eaten like a weather haggis?
Iram, coram, dago.
POEMS,

Is he to Abram's bosom gane?
Igo, and ago,
Or hauen Sarah by the wane?
Iram, coram, dago.

Where'er he be, the Lord be near him!
Igo, and ago,
As for the Deil, he durst na steer him,
Iram, coram, dago.

But please transmit the enclosed letter,
Igo, and ago,
Which will oblige your humble debtor,
Iram, coram, dago.

So may ye haeauld stanes in store,
Igo, and ago,
The very stanes that Adam bore.
Iram, coram, dago.

So may ye get in glad possession,
Igo, and ago,
The coins o' Satan's coronation!
Iram, coram, dago.

EPITAPM ON CAPTAIN GROSE.

The Deil got notice that Grose was a-dying,
So whip! at the summons, old Satan came flying;
But when he approach'd where poor Francis lay moaning,
And saw each bed-post with its burden a-groaning,
Astonished! confounded! cry'd Satan, by G—d,
I'll want 'im, ere I take such a ——ble load.*

* Mr. Grose was exceedingly corpulent, and used to rally himself with the greatest good humour, on the singular rotundity of his figure. This Epigram, written by Burns, in a moment of festivity, was so much relished by the antiquarian, that he made it serve as an excuse for prolonging the convivial occasion that gave it birth to a very late hour.

ON AN INTERVIEW WITH LORD DÆR.

This wot ye all whom it concerns,
I Rhymcr Robin, alias Burns,
 October twenty-third,
 A ne'er-to-be-forgotten day,
 Sae far I sreckkled up the brae,
 I dinner'd wi' a Lord.

I've been at drucken writers' feasts,
Nay, been bitch fou' mang godly priests,
 Wi' rev'rence be it spoken:
I've even join'd the honour'd jorum,
When mighty squireships of the quorum,
 Their hydra drouth did stoken.

But wi' a Lord—stand out my shin,
A Lord—a Peer—an Earl's son,
 Up higher yet, my bonnet;
And sic a Lord—lang Scotch ells twa,
Our peerage he o'erlooks them a',
 As I look o'rr my sonnet.

But oh for Hogarth's magic pow'r!
To show Sir Bardy's willyart glow'r,
 And how he star'd and stammer'd
When goavan, as if led wi' branks,
An' stumpin on his ploughman shanks,
 He in the parlour hammer'd.

I sliding shelter'd in a nook,
An' at his lordship steal't a look
 Like some portentous omen;
Except good sense and social glee,
An' (what surpris'd me) modesty,
 I marked nought uncommon.

I watch'd the symptoms o' the great,
The gentle pride, the lordly state,
 The arrogant assuming;
The fient a pride, nae pride had he,
Nor sauce, nor state, that I could see,
Mair than an honest ploughman
Then from his Lordship I shall learn,
Henceforth to meet with unconcern
One rank as well as another:
Nae honest, worthy man need care,
To meet with noble, youthful Daer,
For he but meets a brother.

THE INVENTORY,

To the answer to a mandate by the Surveyor of the Taxes.

Sir, as your mandate did request,
I send you here a faithful list,
O' grades an' gear, an' a' my grain,
To which I'm clear to give my oath.

Imprimis then, for carriage cattle, {I
I have four brutes o' gallant mettle,
As ever drew afore a petit.
My Lan' afors' a guid auld has-been,
An' wight an' wilfu' a' his days been.
My Lan' akin' a weel gaun fillie,
That a' has borne me hame free Killie,‡
An' your anid burro' mone' a time,
In days when riding was nae crime—
But ance when in my wooing pride
I, like a blackhead, boost to ride,
The wilfu' creature I put to,
(L.—d pardon a' my sins an' that too!)
I play'd my fillie sic a shavie,
She's a' hade: I'd wi' the spavie.
My Ferr akin' a wordy beast,
As e'er in Ing or low was trac'd.
The fourth's a Highland Donald hastie
A d—d red-venib Kilburnie blastie
Forby a Cowt o' Cowt's the wale
As ever ran afore a tail.
If he be spar'd to be a beast,
He'll draw me fifteen puin' at least.

Wheel carriages I bae but few,
Three carts, an' twa are feckly new;
Ane anid wheel-barrow, maior for token
As leg an' bith the trams are broken;

* The fore-horse on the left-hand in the plough.
* The hindmost on the left-hand in the plough.
* Kilmarnock.
* The hindmost horse on the right-hand in the plough.

I made a poker o' the spin'le,

For men, I've three mischievous boys,
Run dells for rantin' and for noise;
A gaudsman ane, a thrasher t'other,
Wee Davock hauls til nowt in bother.
I rule them as I ought, discreetly,
An' after labour them completely.
An' ay on Sundays duly nightly,
I on the Questions targe them tightly;
Till faith! wee Davock's turn'd sae gleg,
The' scarcely longer than your leg,
He'll screed you aff Effectual Calling,
As fast as one in the dwelling.
I've nane in female servan' station,
(I—d keep me ay frae a' temptation!)
I hae na wife; and that my bliss is,
An' ye have laid na tax on misses;
An' then if kirk folks dinna clucht me,
I ken the devils dare na touch me.

Wi' weans I'm mair than weel contented,
Heav'n sent me ane mae than I wanted.
My sonsie, smirking, dear-bought Bess,
She stares the daddie in her face,
Enough of aught ye like but grace;
But her, my bonie, sweet, wee lady,
I've paid eneugh for her already,
An' gin ye tax her or her mither,
B' the L—d, ye'se get them a' thegither.

And now, remember, Mr. Aiken,
Nae kind of license out I'm takin':
Frae this time forth, I do declare,
I'se ne'er ride horse nor hizzie mair;
'Ithro' dirt and dub for life I'll paide,
Ere I sae dear pay for a saddle;
My travel a' on foot I'll stank it,
'Ve sturdy bearers, Gude be thankit.

The kirk an' you may tak you that,
It puts but little in your pat:
Sae dinna put me in your buke,
Nor for my ten white shillings luke.

This list, wi' my ain hand I wrote it,
Day and date as under notit,
Then know all ye whom it concerns,

TO A LOUSE,

ON SEEING ONE ON A LADY'S BONNET AT CHURCH.

Ha! whare ye gaun, ye crowlin' fellie!
Your impudence protects you sairly;
I canna say but ye strum rarely
Owre gauze and lace;
Tho' faith, I fear ye dine but sparingly
On sic a place.

Ye ugly, creepin', blastit w'nomer,
Detested, shunn'd, by saun and sinner,
How dare ye set your fit up, on her,
Sae fine a lady!
Gae somewhere else, and seek your dinner
On some poor body.

Swith, in some beggar's haffet squattle:
There ye may creep, and sprawl, and sprattle
Wi' ither kindred jumpin' cattle,
In shouns and nations:
Whare horn nor bane ne'er dare unsettle
Your thick plantation.

Now haud ye there, ye're out o' sight,
Below the faur'ris, snug an' tight:
Na, faith ye yet: ye'll no be right
Till ye've got on it,
The vera tapmost, tow'ring height,
O' Miss's bonnet.

My sooth! right haud ye set your nose out,
As plump and gray as onie grozet;
O for some rank, mercurial rozet,
Or fell red smeddum,
I'd gie you sic a hearty doze o'!
Wad dress your droddum!

I wad na been surpris'd to spy
You on an auld wife's flainen toy;
Or albiens some bit duddie boy,
On's wyliecoat;
But Miss's fine Lanardi! fie,
How dare you do't!

O, Jenny, dinna toss your head,
An't set your beauties a' abroad!
Ye little ken what cursed speed
The blastie's makin'
Thae winks and finger-ends, I dread,
Are notice takin'!
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

O wad some Pow'r the giftie gie us
To see oursel's as others see us!
It wad frae monie a blunder free us
And foolish notion;
What airs in dress an' gait wad lea'e us,
And ev'n Devotion!

ADDRESS TO THE TOOTH-ACHE.

My curse upon thy venom'd stang,
That shoots my tortur'd gums alang;
An' thro' my lugs gies monie a twang,
Wi' gnawing vengeance;
Tearing my nerves wi' bitter pang,
Like racking engines!

When fevers burn, or ague freezes,
Rheumatics gnaw, or colic squeezes,
Our neighbour's sympathy may ease us,
Wi' pitying moan;
But thee—thou hell o' a' diseases,
Ay mocks our groan!

Adown my beard the slavers trickle!
I throw the wee stools o'er the nickel,
As round the fire the gigske keckle
'To see me loup;
While raving mad I wish a heckle
Were in their doup.

O' a' the num'rous human dools,
Ill har'ets, daft bargains, cutty-stools,
Or worthy friends rack'd i' the mools,
Sad sight to see!
The tricks o' knaves, or fash o' fools,
Thou bear'st the gree.

Where'er that place be priests ca' hell,
Whence a' the tunes o' mis'ry yell,
And ranked plagues their numbers tell,
In dreadfu' raw,
Thou, Tooth-ache, surely bear'st the bell
Among their a'!

O thou grim mischief-making chiel,
That gars the notes of discord squeal,
Till daft mankind' aff dance a reel
in gore a shoe-thick;
Gie a' the faes o' Scotland's word
A townmond's Tooth-ache.
POEMS,

TO A HAGGIS.

Fair fa' your honest, sonsie face,
Great chieftain o' the puddin-race!
Aboon them a' ye tak your place,

Painch, tripe, or thairm:

Weel aro ye wordy o' a grace
As lang's my arm.

The groaning trencher there you fill,
Your hirdies like a distant hill,
Your pin wad help to mend a mill
In time o' need,

While thro' your pores the dew distil
Like amber bead.

His knife see rustic labour dight,
An' cut you up wi' ready slight,

Trenching your gushing entrails bright,
Like one ditch;

And then, O what a glorious sight,

Warm-reeking, rich!

Then horn for horn they stretch an' strive,

Deil tak the hindmost, on they drive;

Till a' their weel-swall'd kytes belyve
Are bent like drums,

Then auld guidman, maist like to rive,

Bekankit hums.

Is there that o'er his French rogout,
Or olio that wad staw a sow,
Or fricassee wad mak her spew

Wi' perfect sconner,

Looks down wi' sneering, scornfu' view
On sic a dinner?

Poor Devil! see him owre his trash,
As feckless as a wither'd rash,

His spindle-shank, a guid whip-lash,

His nieve a nit;

Thro' bloody flood or field to dash,

O how flint!

But mark the rustic, haggis-fed,
The trembling earth resounds his tread,

Clap in his wa'lie nieve a blade,

He'1l mak it whistle:

An' legs, an' arms, an' heads will sned,

Like taps o' thisisle.
Ye Pow'rs wha mak mankind your care,
And dish them out their bill o' fare,
Auld Scotland wants na skinking ware
That jumps in luggies;
But, if ye wish her grateful pray'r,
Gie her a Haggis!

THE HOLY FAIR.*

A robe of seeming truth and trust
Hid crafty Observation;
And secret hung, with poison'd crust,
The dirk of Defamation:
A mask that like the gorget show'd,
Dye-varying on the pigeon;
And for a mantle large and broad,
He wraapt him in Religion.

HYPOCRISY A-LA-MODE

I.
Upon a simmer Sunday morn,
When Nature's face is fair,
I walked forth to view the corn,
An' snuff the caller air,
The rising sun o'er Galston nuirs,
Wi' glorious light was glintin';
The hares were hurpin down the furs,
The lav'rocks they were chantin'
Fu' sweet that day.

II.
As lightsomely I glower'd abroad,
To see a scene sae gay,
Three Hizzies, early at the road
Cam skelpin up the way;
Twa had manteeles o' dolefu' black,
But ane wi' lyart lining;
The third, that gaed a-see-a-back.
Was in the fashion shining,
Fu' gay that day.

* Holy Fair is a common phrase in the west of Scotland for a sacramental occasion.
III.
The three appear'd like sisters twin,
In feature, form, an' claes;
Their visage, with'er'd, lang, an' thin,
An' sour as onie slaes;
The third cam up, hop-step-an'-loup,
As light as onie lambie,
An' wi' a curchie low did stoop,
As soon as e'er she saw me,
Fu' kind that day.

IV.
Wi' bonnet aff, quoth I, "Sweet lass,
I think ye seem to ken me;
I'm sure I've seen that bonie face,
But yet I ca'na name ye."
Quo' she, an' laughing as she spak,
"Ye, for my sake, hae gien the feck
Of a' the ten commands
A scree'd some day."

"My name is Fun—your cronie dear,
The nearest friend ye hae;
An' this is Superstition here,
An' that's Hypocrisy.
I'm gaun to Holy Fair,
To spend an hour in daffin;
Gin ye'll go thare, yon rank'd pair,
We will get famous laughin
At then this day."

VI.
Quoth I, "With a' my heart, I'll do't;
I'll get my Sunday's sark on,
An' meet you on the holy spot;
Faith we're hae fine remarkin!"
Then I gaed hame at crowdie time,
An' soon I made me ready;
For roads were clad, frae side to side,
Wi' monie a weary body;
In droves that day.

VII.
Here farmers gash, In ridin' graith,
Gad hoddin by their cotters;
There, swankies, young, in braw braid cloth
Are springin o'er the gutters;
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

The lasses, skelpin barefoot, thrang,
In silks an' scarlets glitter;
Wi' sweet-milk cheese, in monie a whang,
An' furls bak'd wi' butter
Fu' crump that day.

VIII.
When by the plate we set our nose,
Weel heaped up wi' benece,
A greedy glowr Black Bonnet throws,
An' we munn draw our tippence.
Then in we go to see the show,
On ev'ry side they're gathrin,
Some carrying dales, some chairs an' stool,
An' some are busy bethrin
Right loud that day.

IX.
Here stands a shed to fend the show'rs,
An' screen our countra gentry,
There racer Jess, an' two-three wh-ree,
Are blinkin at the entry.
Here sits a raw of titillin jades,
Wi' heaving breast and bare neck,
An' there a batch of webster lads,
Blackguarding frae K— c k,
For fun this day.

X.
Here some are thinking on their sins,
An' some upo' their claes;
Ane curses feet that fyl'd his shins,
Anither sighs an' piays;
On this hand sits a chosen swatch,
Wi' screw'd up grace-proud faces;
On that a set o' chaps at watch,
Thrang winkin on the lasses
To chairs that day.

XI.
O happy is that man an' blest!
Nae wonder that it pride him!
Whase an' dear lass, that he likes best,
Comes clinkin down beside him!
Wi' arm repos'd on the chair back,
He sweetly does compose him!
Which, by degrees, slips round her neck,
An' leaf upon her bosom,
Unkenn'd that day.
XII.
Now a' the congregation o'er
Is silent expectation;
For —— speaks the holy door,
Wi' tidings o' d-man—n.
Should Hornie, as in ancient days,
'Mang sons o' G— present him,
The very sight o'——'s face,
To's ain het hame had sent him
Wi' fright that day.

XIII.
Hear how he clears the points o' faith
Wi' rattlin an' wi' thumpin!
Now meekly calm, now wild in wrath,
He's stampin', an' he's jumpin':
His lengthen'd chin, his turn'd-up snout,
His eldritch squeel and gestures,
O how they fire the heart devout,
Like cantharidian plasters,
On sic a day!

XIV.
But hark! the tent has chang'd its voice;
There's peace an' rest nae langer;
For a' the real judges rise,
They canna sit for anger.
—- opens out his cauld harangues,
On practice and on morals;
An' aff the godly pour in thrangs,
To gie the jars an' barrels
A lift that day.

XV.
What signifies his barren shine,
Of moral pow'rs and reason?
His English style, an' gesture fine,
Are a' clean out o' season.
Like Socrates or Antonine,
Or some auld pagan Heathen,
The moral man he does define,
But ne'er a word o' faith in
That's right that day.

XVI.
In gud time comes an antidote
Against the poison'd nostrum;
For——, frae the water-fit,
Ascends the holy rostrum:
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Case, up he's got the word o' G—,
An' meek an' mim has view'd it,
While Common Sense has taen the road,
An' aff, an' up the Cowgate,*
Fast, fast, that day.

XVII.
Wee ——— niest, the guard relieves,
An' Orthodoxy mingles,
Tho' in his heart he weel believes,
An' thinks it auld wives' tales;
But, faith! the birkie wants a sense,
So, cannily he hums them,
Altho' his carnal wit and sense
Like hasflins' ways o'ercome m
At times that day.

XVIII.
Now butt an' ben, the Change-house fills
Wi' yill-caup Commentators;
Here's crying out for bakes and gills,
An' there the pint stoup clatters;
While thick an' thrang, an' loud an' lang,
Wi' Logic, an' wi' Scripture,
They raise a din, that in the end,
Is like to breed a rupture
O' wrath that day.

XIX.
Leeze m in drink! it gies us mair
Than e'er school or college:
It kindles it, it wankens fair,
It pangs, fou' o' knowledge.
Be't whiskey gill, or penny wheep,
Or onie stronger potion,
It never fails, on drinking deep,
To kittle up our notion
By night or day.

XX.
The lads an' lasses blithely bent
To mind bair staid an' body,
Sit round the table weel content,
An' steer about the toddy.

* A street so called, which faces the west in ———
On this an'e's dress, an' that an'e's leuk,
They're making observations;
While some are cozie i' the neuk,
An' formin' assignations,
To meet some day

XXI.
But now the L—d's ain trumpet touts,
Till a' the hills are rainin',
An' echoes back return the shouts:
Black ——— is na spairin':
His piercing words, like Highland swords,
Divide the joints an' marrow:
His talk o' H—l, where devils dwell,
Our vera souls does barrow*
Wi' fright that day.

XXII.
A vast, unbottom'd, boundless pit,
Fill'd fou o' lowin' brunstane,
Wha's raging flame, an' scorching heat,
Wad melt the hardest whinestane!
The half-asleep start up wi' fear,
An' think they hear it roarin',
When presently it does appear,
'Twas but some neebor snorin'
Asleep that day.

XXIII.
'Twad be owre lang a tale to tell
How monie stories past,
An' how they crowded to the yill,
When they were a' dismist;
How drink gaed round, in cogs an' caups,
Among the finns an' benches;
An' cheese an' bread, frae women's laps,
Was dealt about in lunches
An' dawds that day.

XXIV.
In comes a gaucie, gash Gaul'dwife,
An' sits down by the fie,
Syne draws her kebbuck an' her knife,
The lasses they are shyer.

* Shakspeare's Hamlet.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

The auld Gildmen, about the grace,
Fae side to side they bother,
Till some ane by his bonnet lays,
An' gies them'lt like a tether,
Fu' lang that day.

XXV.

Waesucks! for him that gets nae lass,
Or lasses that ha' naething!
Sma' need has he to say a grace,
Or melvie his braw claihing!
O wifey, be mindfu' ance yourself,
How bonie lads ye wanted,
An' dinna, for a keebuck-heel,
I et lasses be affronted
On sic a day!

XXVI.

Now Clinlumbell, wi' rattlin tow,
Begins to jow an' croon:
Some swagger hame the best they dow,
Some wait the afternoon.
At slaps the billies halt a blink,
Till lasses strip their shoon:
Wi' faith and hope, an' love an' drink,
They're a' in famous tune,
For crack that day.

XXVII.

How monie hearts this day converts,
O' sinners and o' lasses!
Their hearts o' stane, gin night are gane,
As saft as onie flesh 's.
There's some are fou o' love divine;
There's some are fou o' brandy;
An' monie jobs that day begin,
May end in Houghmagandie
Some ither day.

THE ORDINATION.

For sense they little one to frugal Heav'n—
To please the mob they hide the little gin'n.

I.

Kilmarnock wabsters fidge an' claw,
An' pour your creeshie nations;
POEMS.

An' ye wha leather rax an' draw,
Of a' denominations,
Swithin to the Laigh Kirk, an' a' a
An' there tak up your stations;
Then aff to B-grb—'s in a raw,
An' pour divine libations
For joy this day.

II.

Curst Common Sense, that imp o' h'Il,
Can in wi' Maggie Lander;*
But O——— aft made her yell,
An' R——— sair misca'd her;
This day M——— takes the fail,
And he's the boy will blaud her!
He'll clap a shangan on her tail,
An' set the bairns to daub her
Wi' dirt this day.

III.

Mak haste, an' turn King David owre,
An' lilt wi' holy clangour;
O' double verse come gie us four,
An' skirt up the Bangor;
This day the Kirk kicks up a stour,
Nae mair the knaves shall wrang her,
For heresy is in her pow'r,
An' gloriously she'll wrang her
Wi' pith this day.

IV.

Come, let a proper text be read,
An' touch it aff wi' vigour,
How graceless Ham* leugh at his Dad,
Which made Canaan a niger;
Or Phineas‡ drove the murdering blade
Wi' wi'-re-abhorring rigour;
Or Zipporah§, the scolding jade,
Was like a bluidy tiger
I' th' inn that day.

* Alluding to a scoffing ballad which was made on the admission of the late reverend and worthy Mr. L. to the Laigh Kirk.

V.
There, try his mettle on the creed,
And bind him down wi' caution,
That Stipend is a carnal weed
He takes but for the fashion;
And gie him o'er the flock, to feed,
And punish each transgression;
Especial, rams that cross the breed.
Gie them sufficient threshin,
Spare them nac day.

VI.
Now auld Kilmarock, cock thy tail,
And toss thy horns fu' canty;
Nae mair thou'lt rowte out-owre the d
Because thy pasture's scanty;
For lapfu's large o' gospel kail
Shall fill thy crib in plenty,
An' runts o' grace the pick and wale,
No glen by way o' dainty,
But ilka day.

VII.
Nae mair by Babel's streams we'll weep
To think upon our Zion;
And hing our fiddles up to sleep,
Like baby-clouts a-dryin.
Come, screw the pegs wi' tunesfu' cheep,
And o'er the thairms be tryin;
Oh, rare! to see our elbucks wheep,
An' a' like lamb-tails flying
Fu' fast this day!

VIII.
Lang patronage, wi' rod o' aim
Has shor'd the kirk's undoin,
As lately F-nw-ck, sair forfain,
Has proven to its ruin:
Our Patron, honest man! Glencairn,
He saw mischief was brewin:
And, like a godly elect bairn,
He's wald us out a true ane,
And sound this day.

IX.
Now R—— harangue nae mair,
But steek your gab for ever:
Or try the wicked town of Ayr,
For there they'll think you clever;
P. E. M. S.

Or, nae reflection on your hea.,
Ye may commence a shaver;
Or to the A-th-re-a repair,
And turn a carpet weaver.
All hand this day.

X.
M—— and you were just a match,
We never had sic twa drones;
Auld Horrie did the Laigh Kirk watch,
Just like a winkin' baudrons.
And ay he catch'd the tither wretch,
To try them in his cauldrons;
But now he has nae baun to detach,
Whe'er a' his trim-tone squadrons,
Fast and fast this day.

XI.
See, see an'd Orthodoxy's faces
She's swingin' throu' the city;
Hark, how the nine-tail'd cat she plays?
I vow it's unco pretty.
There, Learning, with his Greekish face,
Grants out some Latin ditty;
And Common Sense is gaun, she says,
To mak' to Jamie Bratlie
Her plaint this day.

XII.
But there's Morality him'self,
Embracing all opinions;
Hear, how he gives the tither yell,
Between his two companions;
See, now she peels the skin an' fell,
As ane were peeling onions!
Now there—they're packed a' to h-ll,
And banish'd our dominions,
Henceforth this day.

XIII.
O happy day, rejoice, rejoice!
Come, bouse about the porter!
Morality's demure decoys,
Shall here nae mair find quarter;
M——, R—— are the boys,
That Heresy can torture:
They'll gie her on a rape a hoyse,
And cow her measure shorter
By the head some day.

XIV.

"Come, bring the tither mutchkin in,
And here's for a conclusion,
To every New Light mother's son,
From this time forth, Confusion;
If mair they deave us with their din,
Or Patronage intrusion,
We'll light a spunk, and, ev'ry skin,
We'll rin them aff in fusion
Like oil, some day.

ADDRESS

TO THE UNCO GUID, OR RIGIDLY RIGHTEOUS.

My son, these maxims make a rule,
And lump them ay thegither;
The rigid righteous is a fool,
The rigid wise anither;
The cleanest corn that e'er was dight
May hae some pyles o' caff in;
So ne'er a fellow-creature slight
For random fits o' daffin.

Solomon.—Eccles. ch. vii. ver. 16.

I.

O ye wha are sae guid yoursel,
Sae pious and sae holy,
Ye've nought to do but mark and tel
Your neebor's faults and folly!
Whase life is like a weel-gaun mill,
Supply'd wi' store o' water,
The hecapit happer's ebbing still,
And still the clap plays clatter.

II.

Hear me, ye venerable core,
As counsel for poor mortals,
That frequent pass douce Wisdom's door,
For glaiket Folly's portals;
I, for their thoughtless, careless sakes,
Would here propose defences,
Their donsie tricks, their black mistakes,
Their fallings and mischances.
POEMS,

III.
Ye see your state wi' their's compar'd,
And shudder at the niffer,
But cast a moment's fair regard,
What makes the mighty differ;
Discount what scant occasion gave,
That purity ye pride in,
And (what's aft mair than a' the lave)
Your better art o' hiding.

IV.
Think, when your castigated pulse
Gies now and then a wallop,
What ragings must his veins convulse,
That still eternal gallop:
Wi' wind and tide fair i' your tall,
Right on ye scud your sea-way:
But in the teeth o' baith to sail,
It makes an unco leeway.

V.
See social life and glee sit down,
All joyous and unthinking,
Till quite transmogrify'd, they're grown
Debauchery and drinking;
O, would they stay to calculate
Th' eternal consequences;
Or your more dreaded hell to state,
Damnation of expenses!

VI.
Ye high, exalted, virtuous dames,
Ty'd up in godly laces,
Before ye gie poor frailty names,
Suppose a change o' cases;
A dear lov'd lad, convenience snug,
A treacherous inclination—
But, let me whisper i' your lug,
Ye're aiblins nae temptation.

VII.
Then gently scan your brother man,
Still gentler sister woman;
Tho' they may gang a kenning wrang;
To step as...k is human:
One point must still be greatly dark,
The moving why they do it;
And just as namely can ye mark,
How far perhaps they rue it.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

VIII.

Who made the heart, 'tis he alone
Decidedly can try us,
He knows each chord, its various tone,
Each spring—its various bias;
Then at the balance let's be mute,
We never can adjust it;
What's done we partly may compute,
But know not what's resisted.

THE TWA HERDS.*

O a' ye pious, godly flocks,
Well fed on pastures orthodox,
Wha now will keep you frae the fox,
Or worrying tykes,
Or wha will tent the walls and crooks,
About the dykes t?
The twa best herds in a' the wast,
That c'er gae gospel horn a blast,
These five-and-twenty summers past,
O' dool to tell,
Hae had a bitter, black out-cast
Atween themsel.

O M——y, man, and wordy R——ll,
How could you raise so vile a bustle?
Ye'll see how new-light herds will whistle,
And think it fine.
The L——d's cause ne'er gat sic a twistle,
Sim' I hae min'.

O, Sir! whae'er wad hae expeckit,
Your duty ye wad nae neglecket,
Ye wha were ne'er by lairds respeckit,
To wear the plaid,
But by the brutes themselves eleckit,
To be their guide.

* This piece was among the first of our author's productions which he submitted to the public, and was occasioned by a dispute between two clergymen, near Kilmarnock.
POEMS,

What flock wi' M——y's flock could rank,
Sav' bale and hearty every shank,
Na' poison'd, sour, Arminian stank,
He let them taste,
Ae Calvin's well, ay clear they drank,
O sic a feast!

The thummart wil'-cat, brock, and tod,
Weel kenn'd his voice thro' a' the wood,
He smell'd their ilka hole and road,
Baith out in and,
And weel he lik'd to shed their bluid,
And sell their skin.

What herd like R——il tell'd his tale,
His voice was heard thro' muir and dale,
He kenn'd the Lord's sheep, ilka tail,
O'er a' the height,
And saw gin they were sick or hale,
At the first sight.

He fine a many sheep could scrub,
Or nobly fling the gospel club,
And new-light herds could nicely drub,
Or pay their skin,
Could shake them o'er the burning dub;
Or heave them in.

Sic twa!—O, do I live to see't!
Sic famous twa should disagree,
An' names, like villain, hypocrite,
Ilk ither gi'en,
While new-light herds, wi' laughin spite,
Say neither's a' ein'!

A' ye wha tent the gospel fauld,
There's D——n deep, and P——s shaul,
But chiefly thou, apostle A—d,
We trust in thee,
That thou wilt work them, hot and cauld,
Till they agree.

Consider, Sirs, how we're beset,
There's scarce a new herd that we get,
But comes frae 'mang that cursed set,
I winna name,
I hope frae heav'n to see them yet
In fiery flame.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

And that curs'd rascal ca'd M——e,
And baith the S——e,
That ait hae made us black and blae,
Wi' vengefu' paws.

Auld W——w lang has hatch'd mischief,
We thought ay death wad bring relief
But he hae gotten, to our grief,
Ane to succeed him.
A chiel wha'll soundly buff our beef
I meikle dread him.

And monie a ane that I could tell,
Wha fain would openly rebel,
Forbye turn-coats amangoursel,
I doubt he's but a gray nick quill,
An' that ye'll fin'.

O! a' ye flocks, o'er a' the hills,
By mosses, meadows, moors, and fells,
Come join your counsels and your skill
To cove the lairds,
And get the brutes the power themselvs
To choose their herds.

Then Orthodoxy yet may prance,
And Learning in a woody dance,
And that fell cur ca'd Common Sense,
That bites sae sair,
Be banish'd o'er the sea to France;
Let him bark there.

Then Shaw's and D'rymple's eloquence
M'——ll's close, nervous excellence,
M'Q——'s pathetic manly sense,
And guid M——h,

THE CALF.

TO THE REV. MR. ——,

On his Text, Malachi, ch. iv. ver. 2 "And they shall go forth, and grow up, like calves of the stall."

Right, Sir! your text I'll prove it true;
Tho' Heretics may laugh;
For instance, there's yours-i just now,
God knows, an unco Calf!

And should some Patron be so kind,
As bless you wi' a kirk,
I doubt na, Sir, but then we'll find,
Ye're still as great a Stirk.

But, if the lover's raptur'd hour
Shall ever be your lot,
Forbid it, ev'ry heavenly Power,
You e'er should be a St unt!

Tho' when some kind, connubial dear,
Your but-and-ben adorns,
The like has been, that you may wear
A noble head of horns.

And in your lug, most reverend James,
To hear you roar and rowte,
Few men o' sense will doubt your claims
To rank among the nowte.

And when ye're number'd wi' the dead,
Below a grassy hillock,
Wi' justice they may mark your head—
"Here lies a famous Bullock!"

HOLY WILLIE'S PRAYER.

O thou, wha in the heavens dost dwell,
Wha, as it pleases best thyself,
Sends an' to heaven and ten to hell,
A' for thy glory,
And no for oany guerd or ill
They've done afore thee!

I bless and praise thy matchless might,
When thousands thou hast left in night,
That I am here afore thy sight,
For gifts an' grace,
A burnin an' a shinin light,
To a' this place.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

What was I, or my generation,
That I should get such exaltation?
I, wha deserve sic just damnation,
For broken laws,
Five thousand years 'fore my creation,
Thro' Adam's cause.

When frae my mither's womb I fell,
Thou might ha'e plunged me into hell,
To gnash my gums, to weep and wail,
In burnin' lake,
Whare damned devils roar and yell,
Chain'd to a stake.

Yet I am here, a chosen sample,
To show thy grace is great an' a'rie;
I'm here a pillar in thy temple,
Strong as a rock,
A guide, a buckler, an' example
To a' thy flock.

O L—d, thou kens what zeal I bear,
When drinkers drink, and swearers swear,
And singin' there, and dancin' here,
Wi' great an' sma':
For I am keepit by thy fear,
Free frae them a'.

But yet, O L—d! confess I must,
At times I'm fash'd wi' fleshy lust,
An' sometimes too, wi' worldly trust
Vile self gets in!
But thou remembers we are dust,
Dei'd in sin.

Besides, I farther maun allow,
Wi' Lizzie's lass, three times I trow;
But, L—d, that Friday I was fou,
When I came near her,
Or else, thou kens thy servant true
Wad ne'er hae steer'd her

Maybe thou lets this fleshy thorn,
Beset thy servant e'en and morn,
Lest he owre high and proud should turn,
'Cause he's sae gifted;
If sae, thy han' maun e'en be borne,
Until thou lift it.
L—d, bless thy chosen in this place,
For here thou hast a chosen race;
But G—d confound their stubborn face,
And blast their name,
Wha bring thy elders to disgrace,
An' public shame.

L—d, mind G—n Il—n's deserts,
He drinks, an' swears, an' plays at carts,
Yet has sae monie takin arts,
Wi' grit an' sma',
Frea G—d's ain priest the people's hearts
He steals awa'.

An' whan we chasten'd him therefor,
Thou kens how he brec sic a spore,
An set the warld in a roar
O' laughin at us;
Curse thou his basket and his store,
Kail an' potatoes.

L—d, hear my earnest cry an' pray'r,
Against that presby'try o' Ayr;
Thy strong right hand, L—d, make it bare,
Upo' their heads,
L—d, weigh it down, an' dinna spare,
For their misdeeds.

O L—d, my G—d, that glib-tongu'd A—m,
My very heart an' saul are quakin',
To think how we stood sweatin' shakin',
An' d—d wi' dread,
While he, wi' hinging lips and shakin',
Held up his head.

L—d, in the day of vengeance try him,
L—d, visit them who did employ him,
An' pass not in thy mercy by 'ein,
Nor hear their pray'r;
But for thy people's sake, destroy 'ein,
And dinna spare.

But, L—d, remember me and mine
Wi' mercies temp'ral and divine,
That I for gear and grace in my skine,
Excell'd by nane;
An' a' the glory shall be thine,
Amen, Amen.

EPITAPH ON HOLY WILLIE.

Here Holy Willie's sair-worn clay
  Takes up its last abode;
His soul has taken some other way,
  I fear the left-hand road.
Stop! there he is as sure's a gun,
  Poor silly body, see him;
Nae wonder he's as black's the grun,
  Observe what's standing wi' him.
Your brunnstane devilship, I see,
  Has got him there before ye;
But hand your nine-tail cat a-wee,
  Till ance you've heard my story.
Your pity I will not implore,
  For pity ye ha'e nane;
Justice, alas! has gien him o'er,
  And mercy's day is gaen.
But hear me, Sir, Deil as ye are,
  Look something to your credit:
A coof like him wad stain your name,
  If it were kent ye did it.

THE KIRK'S ALARM.*

A SATIRE.

ORTHODOX, Orthodox, who believe in John Knox,
  Let me sound an alarm to your conscience;
There's a heretic blast has been blown in the wast,
  That what is no sense must be nonsense.
Dr. Mac,† Dr. Mac, you should stretch on a rack,
  To strike evil-doers wi' terror;
To join faith and sense upon one pretence,
  Is heretic, damnable error.
Town of Ayr, Town of Ayr, it was mad, I declare,
  To meddle wi' mischief a-brewing;
Provost John is still deaf to the church's relief,
  And orator Bob; is its ruin.

A DEDICATION TO GAVIN HAMILTON, ESQ

Expect na, Sir, in this narration,
A flocking, fleeth'rin dedication,
To rouse you up, an' ca' you guid,
An' sprung o' great an' noble ill,
Because ye're surnam'd like his grace,
Perhaps related to the race;
Then when I'm tir'd—and sae are ye,
Wi' mony a fulsome sinfu' lie,
Set up a face, how I stop short,
For fear your modesty be hurt.

This may do—maun do, Sir, wi' them wha
Maun please the great folk for a wamefou;
For me! sae laigh I needna bow,
For, Lord be thankit, I can plough;
And when I down a yoke a unaig,
Then, L—d be thankit, I can beg;
Sae I shall say, an' that's sae flat'trin,
It's just sic Poet, an' sic Patron.

The Poet, some guid angel help him,
Or else, I fear some ill ane skelp him,
He may do weel for a' he's done yet,
But only he's no just begun yet.

* Dr. Taylor of Norwich.
The Patron, (Sir, ye maun forgie me,
I winna lie, come what will o' me;)
On ev'ry hand it will allow'd be,
He's just nae better than he should be.

I readily and freely grant,
He downn see a poor man want:
What's no his ain he winna tak it,
What ance he says he winna break it,
Ought he can lend he'll no refus't,
Till ait his goodness is abuse'd;
And rascals whyles that do him wrang,
Ev'n that, he does not mind it lang:
As master, landlord, husband, father
He does na fall his part in either.

But then, nae thanks to him for a' that
Nae godly symptom ye can ca' that,
It's naething but a milder feature,
Of our poor, sinfu', corrupt nature:
Ye'll get the best o' moral works,
'Mang black Gentoos and pagan Turks
Or hunters wild on Pontotxi,
Wha never heard of orthodoxy:
That he's the poor man's friend in need,
The gentleman in word and deed,
It's no thro' terror of damnation:
It's just a carnal inclination.

Morality! thou deadly bane,
Thy tens o' thousands thou hast slain!
Vain is his hope, whose stay and trust is
In moral mercy, truth, and justice!

No—stretch a point to catch a plack;
Abuse a brother to his back;
Stead thro' a winnakee frae a wh-rc,
But point to the rake that takes the door:
Be to the poor like onie whanstance,
And haud their noses to the grunstone;
I'ly every art o' legal thieving;
No matter, stick to sound believing.

Learn three-mile prayers, and half-mile graces,
Wl' wed-spread looves, an' lang weary faces;
Grant up a solemn, lengthen'd groan,
And damn a' parties but your own;
I'll warrant then, ye're nae deceiver,
A steady, sturdy, staunch believer.
O ye wha leave the springs of C-le-n,
For guantie duds of your ain delvin!
Ye sons of heresy and error,
Ye'll some day squeal in quakin terror!
When Vengeance draws the sword in wrath,
And in the fire throws the sheath;
When Ruin, with his sweeping besom,
Just frets till heav'n commission gies him;
While o'er the harp pale mis'ry moons,
And strikes the ever-deep'ning tones,
Still louder shrieks, and heavier groans!

Your pardon, Sir, for this digression,
I maist forgat my Dedication!
But when Divinity comes cross me,
My readers still are sure to lose me.

So, Sir, ye see 'twas nae daft vapour,
But I maturely thought it proper,
When a' my works I did review,
To dedicate them, Sir, to you:
Because (ye need na tak it ill)
I thought them something like yoursel.

Then patronise them wi' your favour,
And your petitioner shall ever—
I had amaist said, ever pray,
But that's a word I need na say;
For prayin I hae little skill o't;
I'm baith dead-sweer, an' wretched ill o't;
But I se repeat each poor man's pray'r,
That kens or hears about you, Sir:—

"May ne'er misfortune's growling bark,
Howl thae the dwelling o' the Clerk!
May ne'er his gen'rous, honest heart,
For that same gen'rous spirit smart!
May K——'s far honour'd name
Long beft his hymeneal flame,
Till H——, at least a dozen,
Are frae their nuptial labours risen;
Five bonie lasses round their table
And seven braw fellows, stont na' able
To serve their king and country weel,
By word, or pen, or pointed steel!
May health and peace, with mutual rays,
Shine on the evening o' his days;
Till his wee curlie John's ier oe,
When ebbing life nae mair shall flow,
The last, sad, mournful rites bestow!"
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

I will not wind a lang conclusion,
Wi' complimentary effusion:
But whilst your wishes and endeavours
Are blest wi' Fortune's smiles and favours,
I am, dear Sir, with zeal most fervent,
Your much indebted humble servant.

But if (which powers above prevent!)
That iron-hearted cairl, Wault,
Attended in his grim advances,
By sad mistakes and black mischances,
While hopes and joys and pleasures fly him,
Make you as poor a dog as I am,
Your humble servant then no more;
For who would humbly serve the poor?
But by a poor man's hopes in Heav'n!
While recollection's pow'r is given,
If, in the vale of humble life,
The victirn sad of Fortune's strife,
I, thro' the tender gushing tear,
Should recognise my master dear,
If friendless, low, we meet together,
Then, Sir, your hand—my friend and brother.

LINES

ADDRESSED TO MR. JOHN RANKEN.

As day as death, that groimesome cairl,
Was driving to the tither warl'
A mixtie-natixie motly squad,
And monie a guilt-bespotted lad;
Black gowns of each denomination,
And thieves of every rank and station,
From him that wears the star and garter,
To him that wintles in a halter;
Ashall'd himself to see the wretches,
He mutters, glow'ring at the b-es,
"Ay G—, I'll not be seen behint them,
Nor 'mang the sp'ritual corps present them,
Without, at least, ae honest man,
To grace this damn'd infernal clan."
By Adamhill a glance he threw,
"L—d G—d!" quoth he, "I have it now
There's just the man I want, in faith."
And quickly stopped Ranken's breath.

The old cock'd hat, the gray surcoat, the same;

Yet, tho' his caustic wit was biting, rude,
His heart was warm, benevolent, and good.

EXTEMPORE.

At a meeting of the Dumfriesshire Volunteers, held to commemorate the anniversary of Rodney's victory, April 12th, 1782, Burns was called upon for a song, instead of which he delivered the following lines extempore:

Instead of a song, boys, I'll give you a toast,
Here's the memory of those on the twelfth that we lost;
That we lost, did I say, nay, by Heav'n, it was found,
For their fame it shall last while the world goes round.
The next in succession, I'll give you the king,
Whoe'er would betray him, on high may he swing;
And here's the grand fabric, our free constitution,
As built on the base of the great revolution;
And, longer with politics not to be cram'd,
Be anarchy curs'd, and be tyranny damm'd;
And who would to liberty e'er prove disloyal,
May his son be a hangman, and be the first traitor.

Presented by the author, to the master of a house, at a place in the Highlands, where he had been hospitably entertained.

In Heaven itself, I'll ask no more,
Than just a Highland welcome.

EPIGRAM

[Burns accompanied by a friend, having gone to Inverary at a time when some company were there on a visit to the Duke of Argyll, finding himself and his companion entirely neglected by the innkeeper, whose whole attention seemed to be occupied with the visitors of his Grace, expressed his disapprobation of the incivility with which they were treated in the following lines.]

Who'er he be that sojourns here,

Unless he comes to wait upon

There's nae thing here but Highland pride,
And Highland scab and hunger;
If Providence has sent me here,

ON THE DEATH OF A LAP DOG NAMED ECHO

In wood and wild, ye warbling throng,

With Echo silent lies.
POEMS,

IMPROPTU ON MRS. —'S BIRTH-DAY,

4th November, 1793.

Old Winter with his frosty beard,
Thus once to Jove his prayer prefer'd:
What have I done, of all the year,
To bear this hated doom severe?
My cheerless sons no pleasure know;
Nights horrid car drags dreary slow;
My dismal months no joys are crowning,
But spleeny English, hanging, drowsing.

Now, Jove, for once be mighty civil,
To counterbalance all this evil;
Give me, and I've no more to say,
Give me Maria's natal day!
That brilliant gift will so enrich me,
Spring, Summer, Autumn, cannot match me.
'Tis done, says Jove;—so ends my story,
And Winter once rejoic'd in glory.

MONODY

On a Lady famed for her caprice.

How cold is that bosom which folly once stir'd!
How pale is that cheek where the muge lately glisten'd!
How silent that tongue which the echoes oft tir'd!
How dull is that ear which to flattery so listen'd!

If sorrow and anguish their exit await,
From friendship and dearest affection remov'd;
How doubly severer, Eliza, thy fate,
Thou diestd unwept, as thou liv'dst unlov'd.
Loves, Graces, and Virtues, I call not on you;
So shy, grave, and distant, ye shed not a tear:
But come, all ye offspring of Folly so true,
And flowers let us cull for Eliza's cold bier.

We'll search thro' the garden for each silly flower,
We'll roa' thro' the forest for each idle weed;
But chiefly the nettle, so typical, shower,
For none e'er ap, 'neath'd her but rued the rash deed.
We'll sculpture the marble, we'll measure the lay,
Here Vanity strums on her idiot lyre;
There keen Indignation shall dart on her prey,
Which spurning Contempt shall redeem from her ire.

THE EPITAPH.

Here lies, now a prey to insulting neglect,
What once was a butterfly, gay in life's beam;
Want only of wisdom denied her respect,
Want only of goodness denied her esteem

ODE,

_Sacred to the memory of Mrs._

_Dweller in your dungeon dark,_
_Hangman of creation! mark_
_Who in widow-weeds appears,_
_Laden with unnumber'd years,_
_Noosing with care a bursting purse,_
_Baited with many a deadly curse!_

STROPHE.

_Can thy keen inspection trace_
_Aught of humanity's sweet melting grace?_
_Note that eye, 'tis rheum o'erflows,_
_Pity's flood there never rose._
_Want these hands, ne'er stretch'd to save,_
_But never gave._
_Keep of Mammon's iron chest,_
_Lo! there she goes, unpitied and unblest!_
_She goes, but not to realms of everlasting rest!_

ANTISTROPHE.

_Plunderer_ of armies, lift thine eyes,_
_Awhile forbear, ye tottering fiends._
_Sweet thou whose step unwilling hither bends?_
_No fallen angel, hurl'd from upper skies;_
_Thy trusty _quondam mate_,
_Doom'd to share thy fiery fate,_
_She, tardy, hell-ward plies._

EPODE.

_And are they of no more avail,_
_Ten thousand glittering pounds a year!_
_In other worlds can Mammon fail,_
_Omnipotent as he is here!_
O, bitter mock'ry of the pompous bier,
While down the wretched vital part is driv'n!
The cave-lodged beggar, with a conscience clear,
Expires in rage, unknown, and goes to heav'n.

THE HENPECKED HUSBAND.

Curs'd be the man, the poorest wretch in life,
The crouching vassal to the tyrant wife,
Who has no will but by her high permission;
Who has not sixpence but in her possession;
Who must to her his dear friend's secret tell;
Who dreads a curtain lecture worse than hell.
Were such the wife had fallen to my part,
I'd break her spirit, or I'd break her heart;
I'd charm her with the magic of a switch,
I'd kiss her maids, and kick the perverse h.

ELEGY ON THE YEAR 1788.

For lords or kings I dinna mourn,
E'en let them die—for that they're born!
But, oh! prodigious to reflect,
A Tornmont, Sirs, is gane to wreck!
O Eighty-eight, in thy sma' space
What dire events have taken place!
Of what enjoyment thou hast reft us!
In what a pickle thou hast left us!

The Spanish empire's tint a head,
An' my auld teethless Bawtie's dead;
The toolzie's tough 'ween Pitt and F'r;
An' our gudewife's wee birdy cocks;
The ane is game, a bluddy devil,
But to the hen-birds unco civil.
The tither's dour, has nae sic breedin,
But better stuff ne'er claw'd a midden!

Ye ministers, come mount the pulpit,
An' cry till ye hearse an' rnit;
For Eighty eight, he wish'd you week,
An' gied you a' baith gear an' meat;
E'en monie a plack, an' monie a peck,
Ye ken yersels for little feck!
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH

Ye bonie lasses dight your een,
For some o' you hae tint a frien';
In Eighty-eight, sae keen, was t'en
What ye'll ne'er hae to gie again.

Observe the very nowt an' sheep,
How dowff an' dowffie now they creep;
Nay, ev'n the yirth isel does cry,
For Embro' wells are grutten dry

O Eighty-nine, thou's but a bairn,
An' no owre auld, I hope, to learn!
Thou beardless boy, I pray tak care,
Thou now has got thy daddie's chair,
Nae hand-cuff'd, muzzl'd, half-shackl'd regent,
But, like himself, a full, free agent

Be sure ye follow out the plan
Nae waur than he did, honest man!
As nuckle better as you can.

January 1, 1789.

TAM SAMSON'S* ELEGY.

An honest man's the noblest work of God.

Pope

Has auld K——— seen the Deil?
Or great M——— threw his heel?
Or K——— again grown weak,
To preach an' read?
"Na, waur than a'!" cries ilka chiel,
Tam Samson's dead!

* When this worthy old Sportsman went out last muirfowl season, he supposed it was to be, in Ossian's phrase, "the last of his fields," and expressed an ard'nt wish to die and be buried in the muirs. On this hint the author composed his Elegy and Epitaph.

† A certain preacher, a great favourite with the million

† The Ordination, stanza II.

† Another preacher, an equal favourite with the few, who was at that time ailing. For him, see also the Ordination.

stanzas IX.
POEMS,

K——— lang may grunt an' grane,
An' sigh, an' sab, an' greet her lane,
An' cleed her hairs, man, wife, an' wean,
In mourning weed:
To death she's dearly paid the kane,
Tam Samson's dead!

The brethren of the mystic level,
May bing their head in wofu' hevel,
While by the nose the tears will revel,
Like one head;
Death's gien the lodge an unco devil;
Tam Samson's dead!

When winter muffles up his cloak,
And binds the mire up like a rock;
When to the louns the curlers flock,
Wi' gruesome speed,
Wha will they station at the cock?
Tam Samson's dead!

He was the king o' a' the core,
To guard, or draw, or wick a bore,
Or up the rink like Jehu roar
In time of need;
But now he lags on death's hog-score,
Tam Samson's dead!

Now safe the stately sawmont sail,
And trouts bedropp'd wi' crimson sail,
And eels well kem'd for couple tail,
And geds for greed,
Sine dark in death's fish-creet we wall,
Tam Samson's dead!

Rejoice ye biring patricks a';
Ye contie mutreocks, crousely craw;
Ye maukins, cock your ful fu' braw,
Withouten dread;
Your mortal fae is now awa',
Tam Samson's dead!

That wofu' morn he ever mourn'd,
Saw him in shootin' grailth a'kem'd,
While pointers round impatient burn'd,
Frae couples freed;
But, och! he gaed, and ne'er return'd;
Tam Samson's dead!
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH

In vain auld age his body hatters,
In vain the gout his ankles futters!
In vain the burn come down like waters
Are we braid!
Now every auld wife, greetin, clatters,
Tam Samson's dead!

Owre many a weary hag he limpit,
An ay the tipher shot he thumpit,
Till coward death behind him jumpit,
Wi' deadly feide;
Now he proclaims, wi' tout o' trumpet,
Tam Samson's dead!

When at his heart he felt the dagger,
He reel'd him wound wi' a bottle-swagger,
But yet he drew the mortal trigger
Wi' week-aim'd deed;
"L—d, five!" he cry'd, an' owre did stagger;
Tam Samson's dead!

Ilk heary huter mourn'd a brother;
Ilk sporsman youth bemoan'd a father;
Yon auld gray stane, among the heather,
Marks out his head,
Where Burns has wrote, in rhyming blither,
Tam Samson's dead!

There he lies, in lasting rest;
Perhaps upon his mould'ring breast
Some spitefu' muffould bigs her nest,
To hatch an' breed;
Alas! nae mair he's; them molest!
Tam Samson's dead!

When August winds the heather wave,
And sporsmen wander by you grave,
Three volleys let his mem'ry crave
O' pouter an' lead,
Till echo answer frae her cave,
Tam Samson's dead!

Heav'n rest his saul where'er he be!
Is the wish o' mockie mae than me;
He had twa faults, or may be three,
Yet what remead?
Ae social honest man want we;
Tam Samson's dead!
POEMS.

THE EPITAPH.

Tam Samson's weel-born clay here lies,
Ye canting zealots spare him!
If honest worth in heaven rise,
Ye'll mend or ye win near him.

PER CONTRA.

Go, Fame, and canter like a filly
Thro' a' the streets an' neeks o' Killie,*
Tell ev'ry social, honest billie
To cease his grievin,
For yet, unskaith'd by death's gleg gullie
Tam Samson's livin.

ELEGY ON CAPT. MATTHEW HENDERSON,
A GENTLEMAN WHO HELD THE PATENT FOR HIS HONOUR
IMMEDIATELY FROM ALMIGHTY GOD.

But now his radiant course is run,
For Mathew's course was bright;
His soul was like the glorious sun,
A matchless, heavenly light!

O Death! thou tyrant fell and bloody!
The muckle devil wi' a woodie
Haurl thee hame to his Jack smiddle,
O'er hurchison hides,
And like stock-fish come o'er his studdle
Wi' thy auld sides!

He's gane, he's gane! he's frae us torn,
The ae best fellow e'er was born!
Thee, Matthew, Nature's set shall mourn
By wood and wild,
Where, haply, Pity strays forlorn,
Frae man exil'd.

Ye hills, near neebors o' the starns,
That proudly cock your cresting cairns!
Ye cliffs, the haunts of sailing yearns,
Where Echo simmers!
Come, join, ye Nature's sturdiest bairns,
My wailing numbers!

* Kilmarnock.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Mourn, Ilka grove the cushion kens!
Ye haz'illy shaws and briery dens!
Ye burnies, wimpin down your glens,
Wi' toddlin din,
Or foaming strang, wi' lanty stens,
Fae lin to lin.

Mourn, little harebells o'er the lee;
Ye stately foxgloves fair to see;
Ye woodbines hanging bonnie,
In scented bow'rs;
Ye roses on your thorny tree,
The first o' flow'rs.

At dawn, when ev'ry grassy blade
Droops with a diamond at his head,
At ev'n, when beans their fragrance shed
I' the rustling gale,
Ye maulins whiddin thro' the glade,
Come, join my wail.

Mourn, ye wee songsters o' the wood;
Ye grouse that crap the heather bud;
Ye curlews calling thro' a chud;
Ye whistling plover;
And mourn, ye whirring patrick brood;
He's gane for ever!

Mourn, sooty coots, and speckled teals,
Ye fisher herons, watching eels;
Ye duck and drake, wi' airy wheels
Circling the lake;
Ye bitterns, till the quagmire reels,
Rair for his sake!

Mourn, clam'ring cranks at close o' day
'Mang fields o' flow'ring clover gay;
And when ye wing your annual way
Fae our cauld shore,
Tell thae far warlds, wha lies in clay,
Wham we deplore.

Ye bourlets, frae your ivy bow'r,
In some an'ld tree, or eldritch tow'r,
What time the moon, wi' silent glow';
Sets up her horn,
Wall thro' the dreary midnight hour,
Till waukife morn!
POEMS,

O rivets, rests, hills and plains!
Oft have ye heard my canty strains:
But now, what else for me remains
But tales of wo;
And frae my een the drapping rains
Maun ever flow.

Mourn, Spring, thou darling of the year,
Ilk cowslip cup shall keep a tear;
Thou, Summer, while each corny spoor
Shoots up its head,
Thy gay, green, flow'ry tresses shear,
For him that's dead!

Thou, Autumn, wi' thy yellow hair,
In grief thy sallow mantle teair;
Thou, Winter, hurling thro' the air
The roaring blast,
Wide o'er the naked world declare
The worth we've lost!

Mourn him, thou sun, great source of light!
Mourn, empress of the silent night!
And you, ye twinkling starries bright,
My Matthew mourn!
For through your orbs he's taen his flight,
Ne'er to return.

O Henderson! the man! the brother!
And art thou gone, and gone for ever?
And hast thou cross'd that unknown river,
Life's dreary bound?
Like thee, where shall I find another,
The world around!

Go to your sculptur'd tombs, ye great,
In a' the tinsel trash o' state!
But by thy honest turf I'll wait,
Thou man of worth!
And weep the ae best fellow's fate
E'er lay in earth.

THE EPITAPIL

Stop, passenger, my story's brief;
And truth I shall relate, man;
I tell na common tale o' grief,
For Matthew was a great man.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

If thou uncommon merit hast,
Yet spurn'd at Fortune's door, man;
A look of pity hither cast,
For Matthew was a poor man.

If thou a nobler sodger art,
That passest by this grave, man,
There moulders here a gallant heart,
For Matthew was a brave man.

If thou on men, their works and ways,
Canst throw uncommon light, man;
Here lies wha weel had won thy praise,
For Matthew was a bright man.

If thou at friendship's sacred ca'
Wad life itself resign, man;
Thy sympathetic tear maun fa',
For Matthew was a kind man!

If thou art staunch, without a stain,
Like the unchanging blue, man!
This was a kinsman o' thy sin,
For Matthew was a true man.

If thou hast wit, and fun, and fire,
And ne'er guid wine did fear, man;
This was thy billie, dam and sire,
For Matthew was a queer man.

If onie whiggish, whingle sot,
To blame poor Matthew dare, man:
May dool and sorrow be his lot,
For Matthew was a rare man.

ON A SCOTCH BARD

GONE TO THE WEST INDIES.

A' ye wha live by soups o' drink,
A' ye wha live by crambo-clink,
A' ye wha live and never think,
Come mourn wi' me!
Our billie's gien us a' the jink,
An' owre the sea.
Lament him, a' ye rantin core,
Wha dearly like a random spore,
Nae mair he'll join the merry roar;
In social key;
For now he's taen another shore,
A' owre the sea.

The bonie lasses weel may wiss him,
And in their dear petitions place him;
The widows, wives, an' a' may bless him,
Wi' tearfu' e'e;
For weel I wad they'll sairly miss him,
That's owre the sea.

O Fortune! they hae room to grumble;
Hadst thou taen aff some drowsy humnae,
Wha can do nought but fyke an' tumble,
"T'wad been nae plea;
But he was gleg as onie wumle,
That's owre the sea.

Auld, cantie Kyle may weepers weair,
An' stain them wi' the saut, saut tear;
"Twill make her poor auld heart, I fear,
In flinders fle;
He was her laureate monie a year
That's owre the sea.

He saw misfortune's cauld nor-wees
Lang musing up a bitter blast;
A jilet brak his heart at last,
Ill may she be!
So, took a birth afore the mast,
A' owre the sea.

To tremble under Fortune's cummock,
On scarce a bellyfu' o' drummock,
Wi' his proud, independent stomach,
Could ill agree;
So, row't his upgrades in a hammock,
A' owre the sea.

He ne'er was gien to great miscudging,
Yet coon his pouches wad an bide in;
Wi' him it ne'er was under hiding:
He deict it free;
The Muse was a' that he took pride in.
That's owre the sea.

Jamaica bodies, use him weel,
An' lap him in a cozie biel;
Ye'll find him ay a dainty chiel,
And fou o' glee;
He wad na wrang'd the vera Dell,
That's owre the sea.

Fareweel, my rhyme-composing billie!
Your native soil was right ill-willie;
But may ye flourish like a lily,
Now bonnile!
I'll toast ye in my hindmost gillie,
Tho' owre the sea.

ON PASTORAL POETRY.

Hail, Poesie! thou nymph reserv'd!
In chase o' thee, what crowds hae swerv'd
Frae common sense, or sunk enerv'd
'Mang heaps o' clavers;
And och! o'er ait thy joes na starv'd,
'Mid a' thy favours!

Say, Lassie, why thy train amang,
While loud the trump's heroic clang,
And skock or buskin skelp alang
To death or marriage;
Scarse ane has tried the shepherd-sang
But wi' miscarriage?

In Homer's craft Jock Milton thrives;
Eschylus' pen Will Shakespear drives;
Wee Pope, the knurin till him rives
Horatian fame;
In thy sweet sang, Barbauld, survives
Ev'n Sappho's flame.

But thee, Theocritus! wha matches?
They're no herd's ballats, Maro's catches:
Squire Pope but busks his skinklin patches
O' heathen tatters:
I pass by hunders, nameless wretches,
That ape their betters.

In this braw age o' wit and leer,
Will name the Shepherd's whistle mair
Blaw sweetly in its native air
And rural grace;
And wi' the far-fam'd Grecian, share
A rival place?
POEMS,

Yes! there is ane; a Scottish callan:
There's ane; come forrit, honest Allan!
Thou need na jine behind the hallan,
A chief sae clever;
The teeth o' time may gnaw Tamallan,
But thou's for ever.

Thou paints an' Nature to the diners,
In thy sweet Caledonian lines;
Nae gowden stream thro' myrtles twines,
Where Philomel,
While nightly breezes sweep the vines,
Her griefs will tell!

In gowany glens thy burnie strays,
Where homie basses breach their clues;
Or trots by hazily shaws and braes,
Wi' hawthorn gray,
Where blackbirds join the shepherd's lays
At close o' day.

Thy rural loves are nature's sel;
Nae bombast spaces o' nonsense swell;
Nae sap conceits, but that sweet spell
O' witchin' love,
That charm that can the strongest quell,
The sternest move.

PROLOGUE,

SPOKEN AT THE THEATRE, ELISLAND, ON NEW YEAR DAY EVENING.

No song nor dance I bring from your great city
That quells it o'er our taste—the more's the pity:
Tho', by the by, abroad why will you roam?
Good sense and taste are natives here at home:
But not for panegyric I appear,
I come to wish you all a good new-year!
Old Father Time deputes me here before ye,
Not for to preach, but tell his simple story:
The sage, grave Ancient cough'd, and bade me say
"You're one year older this important day;"
If wiser too—he hinted some suggestion,
But 'twould be rude, you know, to ask the question;
And with a would-be roughish leer and wink,
He bade me on you press this one word—"think?"
Ye sprightly youths, quite flush with hope and spirit,
Who think to storm the world by dint of merit,
To you the Dotard has a deal to say,
In his sly, dry, sententious, proverb way!
He bids you mind, amid your thoughtless rattle,
That the first blow is ever half the battle:
That tho' some by the skirt may try to snatch him,
Yet by the forelock is the hold to catch him:
That whether doing, suffering, or forbearing,
You may do miracles by persevering.

Last tho' not least in love, ye youthful fair
Angelic forms, high Heav'n's peculiar care!
To you amid Bald-pate smooths his wrinkled brow,
And humbly begs you'll mind the important—now!
To crown your happiness he asks your leave,
And offers, bliss to give and to receive.

For our sincere, tho' haply weak endeavours,
With grateful pride we own your many favours:
And howso'er our tongues may ill reveal it,
Believe our glowing bosoms truly feel it.

PROLOGUE,

SPOKEN BY MR. WOODS, ON HIS BENEFIT-NIGHT,

Monday, 16th April, 1787.

When by a generous public's kind acclaim,
That dearest meed is granted—honest fame;
When here your favour is the actor's lot,
Nor even the men in private life forgot;
What breast so dead to heav'nly Virtue's glow,
But heaves impassion'd with the grateful throe?

Poor is the task to please a har'rous throng,
It needs no Siddons' powers in Southron's song;
For here an ancient nation, fam'd afar
For genius, learning high, as great in war—
High, Caledonia! name for ever dear!
Before whose sons I'm honour'd to appear!
Where every science—every nobler art—
That can inform the mind, or mend the heart,
In known; as grateful nations oft have found,
Far as the rude barbarian marks the bound.
Philosophy, no idle pendant dream,
Here holds her search by heaven taught Reason's beam
Here History paints with elegance and force,
The tide of Empire's fluctuating course;
Here Douglas forms wild Shakespeare into plan,
And Harley* rouses all the god in man.
When well-form'd taste and sparkling wit unite,
With manly lore, or female beauty bright,
(Beauty, where faultless symmetry and grace,
Can only charm us in the second place,)
Witness, my heart, how oft with panting fear
As on this night, I've met these judges here!
But still the hope Experience taught to live,
Equal to judge—you're candid to forgive.
No hundred-headed Riot here we meet,
With decency and law beneath his feet;
Nor insolence assumes fair Freedom's name;
Like Caledonians, you applaud or blame.

O Thou! dread Power! whose empire-giving hand
Has oft been stretch'd to shield the honour'd land!
Strong may she glow with all her ancient fire;
May every son be worthy of his sire;
Firm may she rise with generous disdain,
At Tyranny's or diper Pleasure's chain;
Still self-dependent in her native shore,
Bold may she brave grim Danger's loudest roar,
Till Fate the curtain drop on worlds to be no more.

THE RIGHTS OF WOMAN,
AN OCCASIONAL ADDRESS SPOKEN BY MISS FONTENELLE ON HER BENEFIT NIGHT.

While Europe's eye is fix'd on mighty things,
The fate of empires and the fall of kings;
While quacks of state must each produce his plan,
And even children lisp the Rights of Man;
Amid this mighty fuss, just let me mention,
The Rights of Woman merit some attention.

First in the sexes' intermix'd connexion,
One sacred right of Woman is protection.—
The tender flower that lifts its head, elate,
Helpless must fall before the blast of fate,

* The Man of Feeling, written by Mr. M'Kenzie.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH

Bank on the earth, deface'd its lovely form,
Unless your shelter ward th' impending storm.

Our second Right—but needless here is caution,
To keep that right inviolate's the fashion,
Each man of sense has it so full before him,
He'd die before he'd wrong it—'tis decorum.—
There was indeed, in far less polish'd days,
A time when rough, rude man had naughty ways;
Would swagger, swear, get drunk, kick up a riot,
Nay, even thus invade a lady's quiet—
Now, thank our stars! these Gothic times are fled:
Now, well-bred men—and you are all well-bred—
Most justly think (and we are much the gainers)
Such conduct neither spirit, wit, nor manners.

For Right the third, our last, our best, our dearest,
That right to flattering female hearts the nearest,
Which even the Rights of Kings in low prostration,
Most humbly own—'tis dear, dear admiration!
In that blest sphere a'one we live and move,
There taste that life of life—immortal love.—
Smiles, glances, sighs, tears, farts, flirtations, airs,
'Gainst such a host what flinty savage dares—
When awful Beauty joins with all her charms,
Who is so rash as rise in rebel arms?

But truce with kings, and truce with constitutions,
With bloody armaments and revolutions;
Let majesty your first attention summon,
Ah ca ira! the Majesty of Woman!

ADDRESS,

SPOKEN BY MISS FONTENELLE, ON HER BENEFIT-NIGHT
DECEMBER 4, 1795, AT THE THEATRE, DUMFRIES

Still anxious to secure your partial favour,
And not less anxious sure this night than ever;
A Prologue, Epilogue, or some such matter,
'Twould vamp my bill, said I, if nothing better;
So, sought a Poet, roosted near the skies,
Told him I came to feast my curious eyes;
Said, nothing like his works was ever printed;
And last my Prologue—business silly hinted.
"Ma'am, let me tell you," quoth my man of rhymes,
"I know your bent—these are no laughing times;"
POEMS,

Can you— but, Miss, I own I have my fears,
Dissolve in pause—and sentimental tears—
With laden sighs, and solemn-rounded sentence,
Rouse from his sluggish slumbers, fell Repentance;
Paint Vengeance as he takes his horrid stand,
Waving on high the desolating brand,
Calling the storms to bear him o'er a guilty land!

I could no more—askance the creature eying,
D'ye think; said I, this face was made for crying?
I'll laugh, that's poy—may more, the world shall know it,
And so, your servant! gloomy master poet!

Firm as my creed, Sir, 'tis my fix'd belief,
That Misery's another word for Grief;
I also think—so may I be a bride!
That so much laughter's so much life enjoy'd.

Thou man of crazy care and ceaseless sigh,
Still under bleak Misfortune's blasting eye;
Doom'd to that sorest task of man alive—
To make three guineas do the work of five;
Laugh in Misfortune's face—the beldam witch!
Say, you'll be merry, tho' you can't be rich.

Thou other man of care, the wretch in love,
Who long with jiltish arts and airs hast strove:
Who, as the boughs all temptingly project,
Measur'st in desperate thought—a rope—thy neck—
Or, where the bleating cliff o'erhangs the deep,
Pearest to meditate the healing leap;
Would'st thou be cur'd, thou silly, moping elf?
Laugh at her follies—laugh e'en at thyself:
Learn to despise those frowns, now so terrific,
And love a kinder—that's your grand specific.

To sum up all, be merry, I advise;
And as we're merry, may we still be wise.

FRAGMENT,

INSCRIBED TO THE RIGHT HON. C. J. FOX.

How wisdom and folly meet, mix, and unite,
How virtue and vice blend their black and their white,
How genius, th' illustrious father of fiction,
Confounds rule and law, reconciles contradiction—
I sing: If these mortals, the critics, should hustle,
I care not, not I, let the critics go whistle.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

But now for a Patron, whose name and whose glory
At once may illustrate and honour my story.

Thou first of our orators, first of our wits;
Yet whose parts and acquirements seem mere lucky hits;
With knowledge so vast, and with judgment so strong,
No man with the half of 'em ere went far wrong;
With passions so potent, and fancies so bright,
No man with the half of 'em e'er went quite right;
A sorry, poor misbegot son of the Muses,
For using thy name offers fifty excuses.

Good Lord, what is man! for simple as he looks,
A world try to develop his hooks and his crooks;
With his depths and his shallows, his good and his evil,
All in all he's a problem must puzzle the devil.

On his one ruling passion sir Pope hugely labours,
That, like th' old Hebrew walking-switch, eats up its neighbours:
Mankind are his show-box—a friend, would you know him? Pull the string—ruling passion the picture will show him.
What pify, in rearing so beauteous a system,
One trilling particular, truth, shou'd have niss'd him;
For spite of his fine theoretic positions,
Mankind is a science defies definitions.

Some sort all our qualities each to its tribe,
And think human nature they truly describe:
Have you found this or 'other? there's more in the wind,
As by one drunken fellow his comrades you'll find.
But such is the flaw, or the depth of the plan,
In the make of that wonderful creature, call'd Man,
No two virtues, whatever relation they claim,
Nor even two different shades of the same,
Though like as was ever twin brother to brother,
Possessing the one shall imply you've the other

FOR AN ALTAR TO INDEPENDENCE, AT KERROUGHTRY, THE SEAT OF MR. HERON, WRITTEN IN SUMMER, 1793.

Th' sprit of an independent mind,
With soul resolv'd, with soul resign'd;
Prepar'd Power's proudest frown to brave,
Who will not be, nor have a slave;
Virtue alone who dost revere,
Thy own reproach alone dost fear,

POEMS,

ADDRESS TO EDINBURGH.

I.

EDINA! Scotia's darling seat,
All hail thy palaces and towers,
Where once beneath a monarch's feet
Sat legislation's sov'reign pow'rs!
From marking wildly-scatter'd flow'rs,
As on the banks of Tyne I strav'd,
And singing, lone, the lingering hours,
I shelter in thy honour'd shade.

II.

Here wealth still swells the golden tide,
As busy trade his labours piles;
There architecture's noble pride
Rises elegance and splendour rise;
Here Justice, from her native skies,
High wields her balance and her rod;
There Learning with his eagle eyes,
Seeks science in her coy abode.

III.

Thy sons, Edina, social, kind,
With open arms the stranger hail;
Their views enlarg'd, their liberal mind
Above the narrow, rural vale;
Attentive still to sorrow's wail,
Or modest merit's silent claim;
And never may their sources fail,
And never envy blot their name.

IV.

Thy daughters bright thy walks adorn;
Gay as the gilded summer sky,
Sweet as the dewy milk-white thorn,
Dear as the raptur'd thrill of joy!
Fair B—the adoring eye!
Heav'n's beauties on my fancy shine,
I see the sire of love on high,
And own his work indeed divine!

V.

There, watching high the least alarms,
Thy rough, rude fortress gleams afar;
Like some bold vet'ran, gray in arms,
And mark'd with many a scarring scar;
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

The pond'rous wall and massy bar,
Grim-rising o'er the rugged rock;
Have oft withstood assaulting war,
And oft repelled the invader's shock.

VI.
With awe-struck thought and pitying tears,
I view that noble, stately dome,
Where Scotia's kings of other years,
Fam'd heroes, had their royal home;
Alas! how chang'd the time to come;
Their royal name low in the dust!
Their hapless race wild-wand'ring roam!
Tho' rigid law cries out, 'twas just!

VII.
Wild beats my heart to trace your steps,
Whose ancestors, in days of yore,
Thro' hostile ranks and ruin'd gaps,
Old Scotia's bloody lion bore;
Ev'n I who sing in rustic lore,
Haply my sires have left their shed,
And fate'd grim danger's loudest roar,
Bold following where your fathers led!

VIII.
Edina! Scotia's darling seat!
All hail thy palaces and bow'rs,
Where once beneath a monarch's feet
Sat legislation's sov'reign pow'rs!
From marking wildly-scatter'd flow'rs,
As on the banks of Ayr I stray'd,
And singing, lone, the lingering hours,
I shelter in thy honour'd shade.
A Vision

As I stood by yon roofless tower,
Where the wa'flower scents the dewy air
Where the howlet mourns in her ivy bower,
And tells the midnight moon her care:

The winds were laid, the air was still,
The stars they shot along the sky;
The fox was howling on the hill,
And the distant-echoing glens reply

The stream, adown its hazel path,
Was rushing by the ruin'd wa's,
Hasting to join the sweeping Nith,
Whose distant roaring swells and fa's.

The cauld blue north was streaming forth
Her lights, wi' hissing eerie din;
A thist the lift they start and shift,
Like Fortune's fav'rous, tint as win.

By heedless chance I turn'd my eyes,
And by the moon-beam, shook, to see
A stern and stalwart glaist arise,
Attr'd as minstrels wont to be.

Had I statue been o' stane,
His darin look had damned me;
And on his bonnet gray'd was plain,
The sacred posy—Libertie!

And frae his harp sic strains did flow,
Might rouse'd the slumbering dead to bear;
But oh: it was a tale of wo,
As ever met a Briton's ear!
He sang with joy his former day,
He, weeping, wail'd his latter times;
But what he said it was no play,
I w'inna ventur't in my rhymes.*

BANNOCK BURN.

ROBERT BRUCE’S ADDRESS TO HIS ARMY.

Scots, wha hae wi' Wallace bled,
Scots, whan Bruce has aften led;
Welcome to your gory bed,
Or to glorious victorie.
Now's the day, and now's the hour;
See the front o' battle lower;
See approach proud Edward's power—
Edward! chains! and slav'rie!
Wha will be a traitor knave?
Wha can fill a coward's grave?
Wha see base as be a slave?
Traitor! coward! turn and flee!
Wha for Scotland's king and law
Freedom's sword will strongly draw;
Free man stand, or free-man fall?
Caledonian! on wi' me!
By oppression's woes and pain!
By your sons in servile chains!
We will draw our dearest veins,
But they shall be—shall be free!
Lay the proud usurpers low!
Tyrants fall in every foe!
Liberty's in every blow!
Forward! let us do, or die!

* The scenery so finely described in this poem, is taken from nature. The poet is supposed to be musing, by night, on the banks of the Cluden, near the ruins of Lincluden-abbey, of which some account is given in Pennant's Tour and Crichton's Antiquities. It is to be regretted that he suppressed the song of Libertie. From the resources of his genius, and the grandeur and solemnity of the preparation, something might have been anticipated, equal, if not superior, to the Address of Bruce to his Army, to the Song of Death, or to the fervid and noble description of the Pitying Soldier in the field of battle.
POEMS,

SONG OF DEATH.

SCENE—A field of battle. Time of the day—Evening.—The wounded and dying of the victorious army are supposed to join in the following Song.

Farewell, thou fair day, thou green earth, and ye skies.
Now gay with the bright setting sun;
Farewell, loves and friendships, ye dear tender ties,
Our race of existence is run!

Thou grim king of terrors, thou life's gloomy foe,
Go, frighten the coward and slave:
Thou strik'st the dull peasant—he sinks in the dark,
Nor saves e'en the wreck of a name:
Thou strik'st the young hero—a glorious mark!
He falls in the blaze of his fame!

In the field of proud honour—our swords in our hands,
Our King and our country to save—
While Victory shines on life's last ebbing sands,
O! who would not rest with the brave!

IMITATION
OF AN OLD JACOBBITE SONG.

By yon castle wa' at the close of the day,
I heard a man sing, though his head it was gray;
And as he was singing, the tears fast down came—
There'll never be peace till Jamie comes hame.

The church is in ruins, the state is in jars;
Delusions, oppressions, and murderous wars;
We dare na weel say'it, but we ken wha's to blame—
There'll never be peace till Jamie comes hame.

My seven braw sons for Jamie drew sword,
And now I greet round their green beds in the yard,
It brak the sweet heart o' my faithful auld dame—
There'll never be peace till Jamie comes hame.

Now life is a burden that bows me down,
Slin' I tint my bairns, and he tint his crown;
But till my last moment my words are the same—
There'll never be peace till Jamie comes hame.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

THE LASS OF INVERNESS

The lovely lass o' Inverness,
Nae joy nor pleasure can she see;
For e'en and morn she cries, alas!
And aye the sun tear blin's her e'e!

Drumossie moor, Drumossie day,
A waeft' day it was to me;
For there I lost my father dear,
My father dear, and brethren three.

Their winding-sheet the bluidy clay,
Their graves are growing green to see,
And by them lies the dearest lad
That ever blest a woman's e'e!

Now was to thee, thou cruel lord,
A bluidy man I now thou be,
For made a heart thou hast made sair,
That ne'er did wrong to thine or thee.

THE ABSENT WARRIOR

Tune—"Logan Water."

O Logan, sweetly didst thou glide,
That day I was my Willie's bride;
And years since ye have e'er na run,
Like Logan to the summer sun.

But now thy flow'ry banks appear,
Like Drumlin winter, dark and drear;
While my dear lad maun face his face,
Far, far frae me and Logan braes.

Again the merry month o' May
Has made our hills and valleys gay:
The birds rejoice in leafy bower's,
The bees hum round the breathing flowers:
Rthe morning lifts us joy ey,
And evening's tears are tears of joy;
My soul, delightless, a' surveys,
While Willie's far frae Logan braes.
POEMS,

Within yon milk-white hawthorn bush,
Aman'g her nestlings sits the thrush;
Her faithful' mate will share her toil,
Or wi' his song her cares beguile;
But 't, wi' my sweet nurslings here,
Nae mate to help, nae mate to cheer,
Pass widow'd nights and joyless days,
While Willie's far frae Logan braes.

O wae upon you, men o' state,
That bratren rose to deadly hate!
As ye make monie a final heart mourn,
Sae may it on your heads return!
How can your flinty hearts enjoy
The widow's tears, the orphan's cry?
But soon may peace bring happier days,
And Willie, hame to Logan braes!

THE WARRIOR'S RETURN

_Air—"The Mill, Mill, O_

When wild war's deadly blast was blawn,
And gentle peace returning,
W't monie a sweet babe fatherless,
And monie a widow mourning:

I left the lines and tented field,
Where lang I'd been a lodger,
My humble knapsack a' my wealth,
A poor and honest sodger.

A leal, light heart was in my breast,
My hand unstain'd wi' plunder;
And for fair Scotia hame again,
I cheery on did wander.

I thought upon the banks o' Coil,
I thought upon my Nancy,
I thought upon the winking smile
That caught my youthful fancy.

At length I reach'd the bonie glen,
Where early life I sported;
I passed the mill and trystin thorn,
Where Nancy aft I courted:
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Wha spied I but my ain dear maid,
    Down by her mother's dwelling!
And turn'd me round to hide the flood
    That in my een was swelling.

Wi' alter'd voice, quoth I, sweet lass:
    Sweet as you hawthorn's blossom,
O! happy, happy may he be,
    That's dearest to thy bosom!

My purse is light, I've far to gang,
    And thin would be thy lodger;
I've serv'd my king and country lang,
    Take pity on a sodger.

Sae wistfully she gaz'd on me,
    And lovedier was than ever;
Quo' she, a sodger ance I lo'd,
    Forget him shall I never:

Our humble cot, and banely fare,
    Ye freely shall partake it,
That gallant badge, the dear cockade,
    Ye're welcome for the sake o't.

She gaz'd—she redd'en like a rose—
    Synp pale like any lily;
She sank within my arms, and cried,
    Art thou my ain dear Willie?

By him who made ye sun and sky—
    By whom true love's regarded,
I am the man; and thus may still
    True lovers be rewarded.

The wars are o'er, and I'm come hame,
    And find thee' st ill true-hearted:
The' poor in gear, we're' rich in love,
    And mair we' se' ne'er be parted.

Quo' she, my grandsire left me gowd,
    A maiden plenish'd fairly:
And come, my faithful sodger lad,
    Thou'rt welcome to it dearly!

For gold the merchant ploughs the main.
    The farmer ploughs the manor;
But glory is the sodger's prize.
    The sodger's wealth is honour:
The brave poor sodger ne'er desipse
    Nor count him as a stranger,
Remember he's his country's stay
    In day and hour of danger.
POEMS,

LORD GREGORY.

O MIRK, mirk is this midnight hour
And loud the tempest's roar;
A wan-fu' wanderer seeks thy tow'r,
Lord Gregory, ope thy door.

An exile fare her father's ha',
And a' for loving thee;
At least some pity on me shew,
If love it may na be.

Lord Gregory, mind'st thou not the grove
By bonie Irvine side,
Where first I own'd that virgin-love
I lang, lang had denied.

How often didst thou pledge and vow,
Thou wad for ay be mine!
And my fond heart, itsel' sae true,
It ne'er mistrusted thine.

Hard is thy heart, Lord Gregory,
And flinty is thy breast;
Thou dart of Heaven that flashest by,
O wilt thou give me rest?

Ye mustering thunders from above,
Your willing victim see!
But spare, and pardon my false love,
His wrang's to Heaven and me!

OPEN THE DOOR TO ME, OH!

WITH ALTERATIONS

Oh, open the door, some pity to show
Oh, open the door to me, Oh!
Tho' thou hast been false, I'll ever prove true,
Oh, open the door to me, Oh!

Cauld is the blast upon my pale cheek,
But cauld'er thy love for me, Oh!
The frost that freezes the life at my heart,
Is nought to my mains frae thee, Oh!
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

The wan moon is setting behind the white wave
And time is setting with me, Oh!
False friends, false love, farewell! for mair
I'll ne'er trouble them nor thee, Oh!

She has open'd the door, she has open'd it wide;
She sees his pale corse on the plain, Oh!
My true love, she cried, and sank down by his side,
Never to rise again, Oh!

THE ENTREATY.

Tune—"Let me in this ae night."

O LASSIE, art thou sleeping yet?
Or art thou wakin', I would wit?
For Love has bound me hand and foot,
And I would fain be in, jo.

CHORUS.

O let me in this ae night,
This ae, or, ae night;
For pity's sake, this ae night,
O rise and let me in, jo.

Thou hear'st the winter wind and weet,
Nae star blinks thro' the driving sleet;
Tak pity on my weary feet,
And shield me frae the rain, jo.

O let, &c.

The bitter blast that round me blaws,
Unheeded howls, unheeded fate;
The cauldness o' thy heart's the cause
Of a' my grief and pain, jo.

O let, &c.

THE ANSWER.

O tell na me o' wind and rain,
Upbraid na me 'tis' could disdain!
Gae back the gate ye rain again,
I wuna let you in, jo.

Vol. II.
POEMS,

CHORUS.

I tell you now this ae night,
This ae, ae, ae night;
And ance for it this ae night
I wanna let you in, jo.

The sweetest blast, at minkest hours,
That round the faultless wand'ret pours,
Is nech to what poor she endures,
That's trusted faultless man, jo.
I tell, &c.

The sweetest flower that deck'd the mead,
Now trodden like the vilest weed;
Let simple maid the lesson read,
The weird may be her am, jo.
I tell, &c.

The bird that charm'd his summer-day,
Is now the cruel fowler's prey;
Let witless, trusting woman say
How aft her fate's the same, jo.
I tell, &c.

THE FORLORN LOVER.

Tune—' Let me in this ae night.'

Forlorn, my love, no comfort near,
Far, far from thee, I wander here,
Far, far from thee, the fate severe
At which I must repine, love.

CHORUS.

O wert thou, love, but near me,
But near, near, near me;
How kindly thou wouldst cheer me,
And mingle sighs with mine, love.

Around me scowls a wintry sky,
That blasts each bud of hope and joy;
And shelter, shade, nor home have I,
Save in those arms of thine, love.
O wert, &c.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Cold, alter'd friendship's cruel part,
To poison Fortune's ruthless dart—
Let me not break thy faithful heart,
And say that fate is mine, love.
O wert, &c.

But dreary tho' the moments fleet,
O let me think we yet shall meet;
That only ray of solace sweet
Can on thy Chloris shine, love.
O wert, &c.

THE DREARY NIGHT.

Tune—"Cauld Kail in Aberdeen."

How long and dreary is the night,
When I am far from my dearie!
I restless lie frae e'en to morn,
Though I were ne'er sae weary.

CHORUS.

For oh, her lonely nights are lang;
And oh, her dreams are eerie;
And oh, her widow'd heart is sair,
That's absent frae her dearie.

When I think on the lightsome days I spent wi' thee, my dearie;
And now what seas between us roar,
How can I but be eerie?
For oh, &c.

How slow ye move, ye heavy hours;
The joyless day, how dreary!
It was na sae ye glimmed by,
When I was wi' my dearie.
For oh, &c.

POORTITH CAULD

Tune—"I had a horse."

O poortith cauld, and restless love
Ye wreck my peace between ye;
Yet poortith a' I could forgive,
An' 'twere na for my Jeany.
POEMS

CHORUS.

O why should Fate sic pleasure have
Life's dearest bonds uniting?
Or why sue sweet a flower as Love,
Depend on Fortune's shining?

This world's wealth, when I think on,
It's pride and a' the love o't;
Fie, fie on silly coward man,
That he should be the slave o't.
O why, &c.

Her een sae bonie blue betray
How she repays my passion;
But prudence is her o'erword ay,
She talks of rank and fashion.
O why, &c.

O wha can prudence think upon,
And sic a lassie by him?
O wha can prudence think upon,
And sae in love as I am?
O why, &c.

How blest the humble cotter's fate!
He woods his simple dearie;
The sillic boggles, wealth and state,
Can never make them eerie.
O why, &c.

CLARINDA.

Clarinda, mistress of my soul,
The meaus'rd time is run!
The wretch beneath the dreary pole,
So marks his latest sun.

To what dark cave of frozen night
Shall poor Sylvander hie;
Denriv'd of thee, his life and light,
The sun of all his joy.

We part—but by these precious drops
That fill thy lovely eyes!
No other light shall guide my steps
Till thy bright beams arise.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

The, the fair sun of all her sex,
Has blest my glorious day;
And shall a glimmering planet fix
My worship to its ray?

ISABELLA.

Tune—"McGrigor of Rero's Lament."

Raving winds around her blowing,
Yellow leaves the woodlands strowing,
By river howsely roaring,
Isabella stray'd, deploiring—
"Farewell, hours that late did measure
Sunshine days of joy and pleasure;
Hail, thou gloomy night of sorrow,
Cheerless night thou knows no morrow.

"O'er the past too fondly wandering,
On the hopeless future pondering;
Chaly grief my life-blood freezes,
Fell despair my fancy seizes.
Life, thou soul of every blessing,
Lead to misery most distressing,
O how gladly I'd resign thee,
And to dark oblivion join thee!"

WANDERING WILLIE.

Here awa, there awa, wandering Willie,
Here awa, there awa, hand away hame;
Come to my bosom, my ain only deare,
Tell me thou bring'st me my Willie the same.

Winter winds blew loud and cauld at our parting,
Fears for my Willie brought tears in my e'e;
Welcome now simmer, and welcome my Willie,
The simmer to nature, my Willie to me.

Rest, ye wild storms, in the cave of your slumbers,
How your dead howling a lover alarms!
Wauken, ye breezes, row gently, ye billows!
And waft my dear laddie aince mair to my arms.
But oh, if he’s faithless, and minds na his Nanle,
Flow still between us, thou wide-roaring main;
May I never see it, may I never trow it,
But, dying, believe that my Willie’s my ain!

THE PARTING KISS.

Jockey’s taen the parting kiss,
O’er the mountains he is gane;
And with him is a’ my bliss,
Nought but griefs with me remain.

Spare my love, ye winds that blaw,
Plashy sleets and beating rain!
Spare my love, them feathery shaw,
Drifting o’er the frozen plain!

When the shades of evening creep
O’er the day’s fair, gladsome e’e,
Sound and safety may he sleep,
Sweetly blithe his wakening be!

He will think on her he loves,
Fondly he’ll repeat her name;
For where’er he distant roves,
Jockey’s heart is still at hame.

THE ROARING OCEAN.

Tune—“ Drummond dubh.”

Messno on the roaring ocean,
Which divides my love and me;
Wearrying Heaven in warm devotion,
For his weal, where’er he be.

Hope and fear’s alternate billow
Yielding late to Nature’s law;
Whispering spirits round my pillow
Tale of him that’s far awa.

Ye whom sorrow never wounded,
Ye who never shed a tear,
Care untroubled, joy-surrounded,
Gaudy day to you is dear.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Gentle night, do thou befriend me;
Downy sleep the curtain draw;
Spirits kind, again attend me,
Talk of him that's far awa!

FAIR ELIZA.

A GAEIC AIR.

Turn again, thou fair Eliza,
As kind b'nk before we part;
Rer on thy despairing lover!
Canst thou break his faithful vows?

Turn again, thou fair Eliza;
If to love thy heart denies,
For pity hide the cruel sentence
Under friendship's kind disguise!

Thee, dear maid, have I offended?
The offence is loving thee;
Canst thou wreck his peace for ever?
Wha for thine would gladly die?

While the life beats in my bosom,
Thou shall mix in ilka throe,
Turn again, thou lovely maiden,
Ae sweet smile on me bestowed.

Not the bee upon the blossom,
In the pride o' sinny noon:
Not the little sporting fairy,
All beneath the simmer moon;
Not the poet in the moment
Fancy lightens on his e'e,
Kens the pleasure, feels the rapture,
That thy presence gies to me.

ELIZA.

Tune—"Nancy's to the Greenwood," &c.

Farewell, thou stream that winding flows
Around Eliza's dwelling!
O nem'ry, spare the cruel throes
Within my bosom swelling.
POEMS.

Condemn'd to drag a hopeless chain,
And yet in secret anguish,
To feel a fire in ev'ry vein,
Nor dare disclose my anguish.

Love's veriest wretch, unseen, unknown,
I fain my griefs would cover:
The bursting sigh, the unwept groan
Betray the hapless lover.

I know thou dost not me to despair,
Nor wilt nor canst relieve me;
But oh, Eliza, hear one prayer,
For pity's sake forgive me.

The music of thy voice I heard,
Nor wis, while it enslav'd me;
I saw those eyes, yet nothing fear'd,
'Till fears no more had sav'd me:
The unwary sailor thus aghast,
The wheeling torrent viewing;
Mid circling horrors sinks at last
In overwhelming ruin.

DEPARTURE OF NANCY.

Tune—"Oran-gaol."

Behold the hour, the boat arrive;
Thou guest, thou darling of my heart!
Sever'd from thee, can I survive?
But fate has will'd, and we must part.

I'll often greet this surging swell,
You distant isle will often hail:
"E'en here I took the last farewell;
There latest mark'd her vanish'd sail."

Along the solitary shore,
While flitting sea-fowl round me cry,
Across the rolling, dashing roar,
I'll westward turn my wishful eye:

Happy, thou Indian grove, I'll say,
Where now my Nancy's path may be!
While thro' thy sweets she loves to stray,
O tell me, does she muse on me?
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

MY NANIE'S AWA.

_Tune—"There'll never be peace," &c._

Now in her green mantle blithe Nature arrays,
And lappings the lambkins that bleat o'er the brachs,
While birds warble welcome in ilk a green shaw;
But to me it's delightful—my Nanie's awa.

The snow-drup and primrose our woodlands adorn,
And violets bathe in the wi:et o' the morn;
They pain my sad bosom, sae sweetly they blaw,
They mind me o' Nanie—and Nanie's awa.

Thou lav'rock that springs f're the dews of the lawn,
The shepherd to warn o' the gray-breaking dawn,
And thou mellow mavis that hails the night-fi',
Give over for pity—my Nanie's awa.

Come, autumn, sae pensive, in yellow and gray
And soothe me wi' tidings o' Nature's decay;
The dark dreary winter and wild-driving snow
Alane can delight me—now Nanie's awa.

GLOOMY DECEMBER.

Ance mair I hail thee, thou gloomy December!
Ance mair I hail thee, wi' sorrow and care;
Sad was the parting thou makes me remember,
Parting wi' Naney, oh! ne'er to meet mair!

Fond lovers' parting is sweet painful pleasure;
Hope beaming mild on the soft-parting hour;
But the dire feeling, O farewell for ever!
Is anguish unmingled and agony pure.

Wild as the Winter now tearing the forest,
Till the last leaf o' the Summer is flown,
Such is the tempest has shaken my bosom,
Since my last hope and last comfort is gone.

Still as I hail thee, thou gloomy December,
Still shall I hail thee wi' sorrow and care;
For sad was the parting thou makes me remember,
Parting wi' Naney, oh, ne'er to meet mair.
POEMS,

THE BRAES O' BALLOCHMYLE.

The Catrine woods were yellow seen,
    The flowers decay'd on Catrine lee,
Nae lav'ock sang on hillock green,
    But Nature sicken'd on the c'e.

Thro' faded groves Maria sang,
    Hersel in beauty's bloom the whyle,
And ay the wild-wood echoes rang,
    Farewell the braes o' Ballochmyle.

Low in your wint'ry beds, ye flowers,
    Again ye'll flourish fresh and fair;
Ye birdies dumb, in with'ting bowera,
    Again ye'll charm the vocal air:

But here, alas! for me nae mair
    Shall bindie charm, or flow'ret smile,
Farewell the bonie banks of Ayr,
    Farewell, farewell! sweet Ballochmyle.

BANKS O' DOON.

Yr banks and braes o' bonie Doon,
    How can ye bloom sae fresh and fair;
How can ye chant, ye little birds,
    And I sae weary, fu' o' care!

Thou'lt break my heart, thou warbling bird,
    'That wantons thro' the flowerling thorn:
Thou minds me o' departed joys,
    Departed, never to return.

Oft hae I rov'd by bonie Doon,
    To see the rose and woodbine twine;
And lika bird sang o' its love,
    And fondly sae did I o' mine.

Wi' lightsome heart I put'd a rose,
    Fu' sweet upon its thorny tree;
And my faire lover stole my rose,
    But, ah! he left the thorn wi' me.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

CRAIGIE-BURN

Tune—"Cragie-burn-wood."

Sweet fa's the eve on Cragie-burn,
And bin the awakes the mornin,
But 'a' the pride of spring's return
Can yield me nocht but sorrow.

I see the flowers and spreading trees,
I hear the wild birds singing;
But what a weary wight can please,
And care his bosom wringing?

Fain, fain would I my griefs impart,
Yet dare na for your anger;
But secret love will break my heart,
If I conceal it longer.

If thou refuse to pity me,
If thou shalt love another,
When you green leaves frae the tree,
Around my grave they'll wither.

THE CHEERLESS SOUL.

Tune—"Jockey's Grey Breeks."

Again rejoicing Nature sees
Her robe assume its vernal hues,
Her leafy locks wave in the breeze,
All freshly steep'd in morning dews.

In vain to me the cowslips blow,
In vain to me the violets spring;
In vain to me in glen or shaw,
The mavis and the lintwhite sing.

The merry plough-boy cheers his team,
With joy the tentic seed-man stalks,
But life to me's a weary dream,
A dream of ane that never wauks.

The wanton coot the water skims,
Among the reeds the ducklings cry,
The stately swan majestic swims,
And eevry thing is best but I.
POEMS,

The sheep-herd shears his faulding slat,
And o'er the moorlands whistles shrill,
Wi' wild, unequal, wand'ring step
I meet him on the dewy hill.

And when the lark, 'tween light and dark,
Blithe warble by the daisy's side,
And mounts and sings on slitting wings,
A wo-worn ghostly bann'ward glide.

Come, Winter, with thine angry howl,
And raging bend the naked tree;
The gloom will soothe my cheerless soul,
When Nature all is sad like me!

THE DISCONSOLATE LOVER.

Now spring has clad the groves in green,
And strew'd the sea wi' flowers;
The furrow'd waving corn is seen
Rejoice in fostering showers;
While icka thing in nature join
Their sorrows to foreign,
O why thus all alone are mine
The weary steps of woe!

The trout within yon winpling burn
Glides swift, a silver dart,
And safe beneath the shady thorn
Defies the angler's art:
My life was once that careless stream,
That wanton trout was I;
But love, wi' unrelenting beam,
Has sear'd my fountains dry.

The little flow'ret's peaceful lot,
In yonder cliff that grows,
Which, save the linnet's flight, I wot,
Nae ruder visit knows,
Was mine; till love has o'er me past,
And blighted a' my bloom,
And now beneath the withering blast
My youth and joy consume.

The waken'd lay'rock warbing springs,
And climbs the early sky,
Winnowing blythe her dewy wings
In morning's rosy eye;
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

As little reck I sorrow's power,

O' watchin' love, in luckless hour,

Made me the thrall o' care.

O had my fate been Greenland snows,

Wi' Men and Nature leagun'd my foes,

So Peggy me'er I'd known!

The wretch whase doom is, "hope nae mair,"

What tongue his woes can tell;

Within whase bosom, save despair,

Nae kinder spirits dwell.

MARY MORISON.

Tune—"Bide ye yet."

O MARY, at thy window be,

It is the wish'd, the trysted hour!

Those smiles and glances let me see,

That make the miser's treasure poor;

How blithely wad I bide the stoure,

A weary slave frae sun to sun;

Could I the rich reward secure,

The lovely Mary Morison.

Yestreen when to the trembling string,

The dance good thro' the lighted ha',

To thee my fancy took its wing,

I sat, but neither heard nor saw:

Tho' this was fair and that was braw,

And you the toast of a' the town,

I sigh'd, and said among them a',

"Ye are na Mary Morison."

O Mary, canst thou wreck his peace,

Wha for thy sake would gladly die?

O canst thou break that heart of his,

Whase only fault is loving thee?

If love for love thou wilt na gie,

At least be pity to me shown!

A thought ungente cannot be

The thought o' Mary Morison.
FAIR JENNY.

Tune—"Saw ye my father?"

Where are the joys that I've met in the morning?
That dance'd to the lark's early song?
Where is the peace that awaited my wand'ring,
At evening, the wild woods among?

No more a winding the course of yon river,
And marking sweet flow'rets so fair:
No more I trace the light footsteps of pleasure,
But sorrow and sad sighing care.

Is it that summer's forsaken our valleys,
And grim surly winter is near?
No, no, the bees humming round the gay roses,
Proclaim it the pride of the year.

Fain would I hide what I fear to discover,
Yet long, long too well have I known:
All that has caused this wreck in my bosom,
Is Jenny, fair Jenny alone.

Time cannot aid me, my griefs are immortal,
Nor hope dare a comfort bestow:
Come then, enamour'd and fond of my angust,
Enjoyment I'll seek in my wo.

ADDRESS TO THE WOOD-LARK.

Tune—"Where'll bonie Ann lie." Or, "Loch Eroch-sida."

O stay, sweet warbling wood-lark, stay,
Nor quit for me the trembling spray;
A hapless lover courts thy lay,
Thy soothing, fond complaining.

Again, again that tender part,
That I may catch thy melting art;
For surely that wad touch her heart,
Wha kills me with disdaining.

Say, was thy little mate unkind,
And heard thee as the careless wind?
Oh, nocht but love and sorrow joun'd,
Sic notes o' wo could wauken.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Thou tell'st of never-ending care;
O' speechless grief and dark despair;
For pity's sake, sweet bird, mac mair!
O' my poor heart is broken!

FRAGMENT,
IN WITHERSPOON'S COLLECTION OF SCOT'S SONGS

Air—"Hughie Graham."

O were my love you like fair,
Wi' purple blossoms to the spring;
And I a bird to shelter there,
When weared on my little wing;

How I wad mourn when it was torn,
By summer wild, and winter rude!
But I wad sing on wanton wing,
When youthful May its bloom renew'd.*

"O gin my love were ye red rose,
That grows upon the castle wa'
And I mysel a drop o' dew,
Into her bonie breast to fa'!

"O, there beyond expression blest,
I'd feast on beauty a' the night;
Seal'd on her silk-saft hands to rest,
Till fley'd awa by Phoebus' light."

ADDRESS TO A LADY.

Oh, wert thou in the cauld blast,
On yonder lee, on yonder lee,
My plume to the angry airt,
I'd shelter thee, I'd shelter thee;
Or did misfortune's bitter storms
Around thee blow, around thee blow;
Thy hiel'd should be my bosom,
To share it a' ; to share it a'.

* These stanzas were prefixed by Burns.
POEMS,

Or were I in the wildest waste,
Sae black and bare, sae black and bare,
The desert were a paradise,
If thou wert there, if thou wert there:
Or were I monarch o' the globe,
Wit' thee to reign, wit' thee to reign,
The brightest jewel in my crown,
Wad be my queen, wad be my queen.

THE AULD MAN.

But lately seen in gladsome green
The woods rejoice the day,
Thro' gentle showers the laughing flowers,
In double pride were gay.
But now our joys are fled
On winter blasts awa'
Yet maiden May, in rich array
Again shall bring them a'.

But my white pow, nae kindly thowwe
Shall melt the snows o' age;
My trunk of eild, but buss or bield,
Sink in Time's wint'ry rage.
Oh, age has weary days,
And nights o' sleepless pain!
Thon golden time o' youthful prime,
Why com'st thou not again?

JOHN ANDERSON; MY JO.

JOHN ANDERSON, my jo, John,
When we were first accquaint,
Your locks were like the raven,
Your bonie brow was breet;
But now your brow is held, John,
Your locks are like the snow:
But blessings on your frosty pow,
John Anderson my jo.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

John Anderson my jo, John,
   We clamb the hill thegither;
And monie a cany day, John,
   We've had wi' one another;
Now we maun toter down, John,
   But hand in hand we'll go,
And sleep thegither at the foot,
   John Anderson my jo.

AULD LANG SYNE.

Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
   And never brought to min'?
Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
   And days o' lang syne?

CHORUS.

For auld lang syne, my dear,
    For auld lang syne,
We'll tak a cup o' kindness yet,
    For auld lang syne.

We twa hae run about the bracs,
   And pu't the gowans line;
But we've wunder'd monie a weary foot,
   Sin' auld lang syne.
   For auld, &c.

We twa hae paid't i' the burn,
    Frae mornin sun till dune;
But seas between us braid hae roar'd,
    Sin' auld lang syne.
    For auld, &c.

And here's a hand, my trusty fierce,
    And gie's a hand o' thine;
And we'll tak a right guid willie-waught,
    For auld lang syne.
    For auld, &c.

And surely we'll be your pint-stowp,
    And surely I'll be mine;
And we'll tak a cup o' kindness yet,
    For auld lang syne.
    For auld, &c.
POEMS,

"HOPELESS LOVE.

Tune—"Liggeram Cosh."

Blithe hae I been on ye hill,
As the lambs before me;
Careless icka thought and free,
As the breeze flew o' er me;
Now nae longer sport and play,
Mirth or saug can please me;
Lesley is sic fair and coy,
Care and anguish seize me.

Heavy, heavy, is the task,
Hopeless love declaring;
Trembling, I dow nocht but glow'r,
Sighing, dumb, despairing!
If she winna case the thraws,
In my bosom swelling;
Underneath the grass-green sod
Soon maun be my dwelling.

BANKS OF NITH.

Tune—"Robie Donna Gorach."

The Thames flows proudly to the sea,
Where royal cities stately stand;
But sweeter flows the Nith to me,
Where Commons an'c had high command;
When shall I see that honour'd land,
That winding stream I love so dear!
Must wayward Fortune's adverse hand
For ever, ever keep me here?
How lovely, Nith, thy fruitful vales,
Where spreading hawthorns gaily bloom!
How sweetly wind thy sloping dales,
Where lambkins wanton thro' the broom!
Tho' wandering, now, must be my doom,
Far from thy bonie banks and braes,
May there my latest hours consume,
Among the friends of early days!
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

BANKS OF CREE.

Here is the glen, and here the bower,
All underneath the birchen shade;
The village bell has told the hour,
O what can stay my lovely maid?

'Tis not Maria's whispering call;
'Tis but the blowy-breathing gale,
Mixt with some warbler's dying fall,
The dewy star of eve to hail.

It is Maria's voice I hear!
So calls the woodlark in the grove,
His little faithful mate to cheer,
At once 'tis music—and 'tis love.

And art thou come! and art thou true!
O welcome dear to love and me!
And let us all our vows renew,
Along the flowery banks of Cree.

CASTLE GORDON.

Streams that glide in orient plains,
Never bound by winter's chains;
Glowing here on golden sands,
There commix'd with foulest stains
From tyranny's emurpled bands;
These, their richly-gleaming waves,
I leave to tyrants and their slaves;
Give me the stream that sweetly laves
The banks by Castle Gordon.

Spicy forests, ever gay,
Shading from the burning ray
Hapless wretches sold to toil,
Or the ruthless native's way,
Bent on slaughter, blood, and spoil;
Woods that ever verdant wave,
I leave the tyrant and the slave;
Give me the groves that lofty brave
The storms by Castle Gordon.

Wildly here without control,
Nature reigns and rules the whole;
POEMS,

In that sober pensive mood,
Dearkest to the feeling soul,
She plants the forest, pours the flood;
Life's poor day I'll miss and rave,
And find at night a sheltering cave,
Where waters flow and wild woods wave.
By bonnie Castle Gordon.

AFTON WATER.

Flow gently, sweet Afton, among thy green braes;
Flow gently, I'll sing thee a song in thy praise;
My Mary's asleep by thy murmuring stream,
Flow gently, sweet Afton, disturb not her dream.
Thou stock-dove whose echo resounds thro' the glen,
Ye wild-whistling black birds in thy thorny den,
Thou green-crested lapwing, thy screaming forbear
I charge you, disturb not my slumbering fair.
How lofty, sweet Afton, thy neighbouring hills,
Far mark'd with the courses of clear, winding rills;
There daily I wander as moon rises high,
My flocks and my Mary's sweet cot in my eye.
How pleasant thy banks and green valleys below,
Where wild in the woodlands the primroses blow;
There oft as mild ev'n'ing weeps over the lea,
The sweet-scented birk shades my Mary and me.
Thy crystal stream, Afton, how lovely it glides,
And winds by the cot where my Mary resides;
How wanton thy waters her snowy feet lave,
As gathering sweet flow'ret's she stems thy clear wave.
Flow gently, sweet Afton, among thy green braes,
Flow gently, sweet river, the theme of my lays;
My Mary's asleep by thy murmuring stream,
Flow gently, sweet Afton, disturb not her dream.

THE SACRED VOW.

Tune — "Allan Water."

By Allan stream I chanced to rove,
While Phoebus sank below Benaddi;
The winds were whispering through the grove,
The yellow corn was waving steady:

* A mountain west of Strath-Allan, 3,000 feet high.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

I listen'd to a lover's sang,
And thought on youthful pleasures monie;
And ay the wild-wood echoes rang—
O, dearly do I love thee, Annie!
O happy be the woodbine bower,
Nae nightly bogle make it eerie;
Nor ever sorrow stain the hour,
The place and time I met my dearie!

Her head upon my throbbing breast,
She, sinking, said, "I'm thine for ever!"
While monie a kiss the seal impress,
The sacred vow we ne'er should sever.
The haunt o' spring's the primrose brae,
The summer joys the flocks to follow;
How cheery through her shortening day,
Is autumn in her weeds o' yellow;
But can they melt the glowing heart,
Or chain the soul in speechless pleasure,
Or thro' each nerve the rapture dart,
Like meeting her, our bosom's treasure?

THE RIGS O' BARLEY.

Tune—"Corn rigs are bonie."

It was upon a Lammas night,
When corn rigs are bonie,
Beneath the moon's unclouded light,
I held awa to Annie:
The time flew by wi' tentless heed,
Till 'tween the late and early;
Wi'isma' persuasion she agreed,
To see me through the barley.
The sky was blue, the wind was still,
The moon was shining clearly;
I sat her down wi' right good will,
Amang the rigs o' barley:
I kent her heart was a' my ain;
I lov'd her most sincerely;
I kiss'd her owre and owre again,
Amang the rigs o' barley.
FOLKS,
I lock'd her in my fond embrace;
Her heart was beating rarely;
My blessings on that happy place,
Among the rigs o' barley!
But by the moon and stars so bright,
That shone that hour so clearly!
She ay shall bless that happy night,
Among the rigs o' barley,

I ha' been blithe wi' comrades dear;
I ha' been merry drinkin';
I ha' been joyful' gath'rin' gear;
I ha' been happy thinkin';
But 'a' the pleasures o'er I saw,
'Tho' three times doubled fairly,
That happy night was worth them a',
Among the rigs o' barley.

CHORUS.

Corn rigs, an' barley rigs,
Corn rigs are home;
I'll ne'er forget that happy night,
Among the rigs wi' Annie.

THE LILLING.

When o'er the hill the eastern star,
Tells bright'in' time is near, my jo;
And o'ersun (ve the-showered field,
Return sae down and weary O;
Down by the burn, where scented birk's
WP dew are hangin' clear, my jo,
I'll meet thee on the lea-rig,
My ain kind dearie O.

In mirest glen, at midnight hour,
I'd rove, and ne'er be erie O;
If thro' that glen I gied to thee,
My ain kind dearie O.
ALTHO' the night were ne'er sae wild
And I were ne'er sae wearie O,
I'd meet thee on the lea-rig,
My ain kind dearie O.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

The hunter loves the morning sun,
To rouse the mountain-deer, my joy;
At noon the fisher seeks the glen,
Along the burn to steer, my joy;
Give me the hour o' glimmie gray,
It makes my heart see cheerie O;
To meet thee on the tea-rig,
My ain kind dearie O.

THE LASS OF BALLOCHMYLE.

'Twas even—the dewy fields were green,
On every blade the pearls hung;
The zephyr wanted round the bean,
And bore its fragrant sweets along;
In every glen the mavis sang,
All nature listening seemed the while,
Except where greenwood echoes rang,
Among the braes o' Ballochmyle.

With careless step I onward stray'd,
My heart rejoiced in nature's joy;
When musing in a lonely glade,
A maiden fair I chanced to spy;
Her look was like the morning's eye,
Her air like nature's vernal smile,
Perfection whisper'd, passing by,
Behold the lass o' Ballochmyle!

Fair is the morning in flowery May,
And sweet is night in Autumn mild;
When roving thro' the garden gay,
Or wand'ring in the lonely wild;
But woman, nature's darling child!
There all her charms she does compile,
Ev'n there her other works are foil'd
By the bonie lass o' Ballochmyle.

O, had she been a country maid,
And I the happy country swain,
Tho' shelter'd in the lowest shed
That ever rose in Scotland's plain!
Tho' weary winter's wind and rain
With joy, with rapture, I would tell;
And nightly to my bosom strain
The bonie lass o' Ballochmyle.
POEMS,

Then pride might climb the slip'ry steep,
While fame and honours lofty shine:
And thirst of gold might tempt the deep,
Or downward seek the Indian mine;
Give me the cot below the pine,
To tend the flocks, or till the soil,
And every day have joys divine,
With the bonie lass o' Ballochmyle.

BONIE LESLEY.

O saw ye bonie Lesley
As she gaed o'er the border?
She's gane, like Alexander,
To spread her conquests farther.

To see her is to love her,
And love but her for ever;
For Nature made her what she is,
And ne'er made sic anither!

Thou art a queen, fair Lesley,
Thy subjects we, before thee;
Thou art divine, fair Lesley,
The hearts o' men adore thee.

The Deil he could na scaith thee,
Or aught that wad belong thee:
He'd look into thy bonie face,
And say, "I canna wrang thee."

The Powers aboon will tent thee;
Misfortune sha' na steer thee;
Thou'rt like themselves, soe lovely,
That ill they'll ne'er let near thee.

Return again, fair Lesley,
Return to Caledonie!
That we may brag we hae a lass
There's nane again sae bonie.
BONIE JEAN.

There was a lass, and she was far
At kirk and market to be seen,
When a' the fairest maids were met,
The fairest maid was bonie Jean.

And ay she wrought her mammie's wark,
And ay she sang sae merrilie;
The blithest bird upon the bush
Had ne'er a lighter heart than she.

But hawks will rob the tender joys
That bless the little lin' white's nest;
And frost will blight the fairest flowers,
And love will break the soundest rest.

Young Robie was the bravest lad,
The flower and pride of a' the glen;
And he had owsen, sheep, and kye,
And wanton nae ties nine or ten.

He gaed wi' Jeanie to the tryste,
He danc'd wi' Jeanie on the down;
And lang ere witless Jeanie wist,
Her heart was tint, her peace was stown.

As in the bosom o' the stream,
The moon-beam dwells at dewy e'en;
So trembling, pure, was tender love,
Within the breast o' bonie Jean.

And now she works her mammie's wark,
And ay she sighs wi' care and pain;
Yet wist na what her ails might be,
Or what wad mak her weel again.

But did na Jeanie's heart loup light,
And did na joy blink in her e'e,
As Robie tuad a tale o' love,
An e'enin on the lily lea?

The sun was sinking in the west,
The birds sang sweet in ilka grove:
His cheek to her's he fondly prest,
And whisper'd thus his tale o' love.

O Jeanie fair, I lo'e thee dear;
O canst thou think to fancy me?
Or wilt thou leave thy mammie's cot,
And learn to tent the farms wi' me?
At barn or byre thou shalt na drudge,
Or naething else to trouble thee;
But stray amang the heather-bells,
And tent the waving corn wi' me.

Now what could artless Jeanie do?
She had na will to say him na:
At length she blushed a sweet consent,
And love was ay between them twa.

------------------

TO JEANIE.

_Sir—"Cauld Kail."_

Come, let me take thee to my breast,
And pledge we ne'er shall sunder;
And I shall spurn, as vilest dust,
The world's wealth and grandeur!

And do I hear my Jeanie own,
That equal transports move her? I
I ask for dearest life alone
That may I live to love her.

Thus in my arms, wi' all thy charms,
I clasp my countless treasure;
I'll seek nae mair o' heaven to share,
That sic a moment's pleasure:

And by thy e'en, sae bonie blue,
I swear I'm thine for ever;
And on thy lips I seal my vow,
And break it shall I never.

DAINTY DAVIE.

Now rosy May comes in wi' flowers,
To deck her gay, green-spreading bow'rs;
And now comes in my happy hours,
To wander wi' my Davie.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

CHORUS.

Meet me on the warlock knowe.
Dainty Davie, dainty Davie.
There I'll spend the day wi' you.
My ain dear dainty Davie.

The crystal waters round us fa',
The merry birds are lovers a',
The scented breezes round us hlaw,
A-wandering wi' my Davie.
Meet me, &c.

When purple morning starts the hare,
To steal upon her early face;
Then thro' the dews I will repair;
To meet my faithful Davie.
Meet me, &c.

When day, expiring in the west,
The curtain draws o' Nature's rest,
I flee to his arms I lo'e best,
And that's my ain dear Davie.

CHORUS.

Meet me on the warlock knowe,
Bonie Davie, dainty Davie,
There I'll spend the day wi' you,
My ain dear dainty Davie.

LOVELY NANCY.

Tune——"The Quaker's wife."

Thine am I, my faithful fair,
Thine, my lovely Nancy;
Ev'ry pulse along my veins,
Ev'ry roving fancy.

To thy bosom lay my heart,
There to throb and languish:
Tho' despair had wrung its core,
That would heal its anguish.

Take away those rosy lips,
Rich with balmy treasure;
Turn away thine eyes of love
Lest I die with pleasure.
POEMS,
What is life when wanting love?
Night without a morning:
Love's the cloudless summer sky
Nature gay adorning.

CLOU DEN'S KNOWES.

Tune—"Ca' the Yowes to the knowes."

Chorus.

Ca' the yowes to the knowes,
Ca' them where the heather grows,
Ca' them where the burnie rows,
My bonie dearie.

Hark, the mavis' evening sang
Sounding Clouden's woods amang;
Then a-faulding let us gang,
My bonie dearie.
Ca' the, &c.

We'll gae down by Clouden side,
Thro' the hazels spreading wide,
O'er the waves that sweetly glide
To the moon sae clearly,
Ca' the, &c.

Yonder Clouden's silent tow'rs,
Where at moonshine midnight hours,
O'er the dewy bending flowers,
Fairies dance sae cheery.
Ca' the, &c.

Ghaist nor bogle shalt thou fear;
Thou'rt to love and heaven sae dear,
Nocht of ill may come thee near
My bonie dearie.
Ca' the, &c.

Fair and lovely as thou art,
Thou hast stown my very heart;
I can die—but canna part,
My bonie dearie.
Ca' the, &c.

TO CHLORIS.

Tune—"My lodging is on the cold ground.

My Chloris, mark how green the groves,
The primrose banks how fair:
The balmy gales awake the flowers,
And wave thy flaxen hair.
The lav'rock shuns the palace gay,
And o'er the cottage sings:
For nature smiles as sweet, I ween,
To shepherds as to kings.
Let minstrels sweep the skilfu' string
In lordly lighted hat:
The shepherd stops his simple reed,
Bliithe, in the birken shaw.
The princely revel may survey
Our rustic dance wi' scorn;
But are their hearts as light as ours,
Beneath the milk-white thorn?
The shepherd in the flowery glen,
In shepherd's phrase will woo:
The courtier tells a finer tale,
But is his heart as true?
These wild-wood flowers, I've pu'd, to deck
That spotless breast o' thine;
The courtier's gems may witness love—
But 'tis na love like mine.

CHLORIS.

O brawe was yon rosy brier,
That blooms sae far frae haunt o' man
And bonie she, and ah, how dear!
It shaded frae the e'enin sun.

Yon rose buds in the morning dew,
How pure amang the leaves sae green;
But purer was the lover's vow
They witness'd in their shade yestreen.

All in its rude and prickly bower,
That crimson rose how sweet and fair!
But love is far a sweeter flower
Amid life's thorny path o' care.
The pathless wild, and wimbling burn,
Wi' Chloris in my arms, be mine;
And I the world, nor wish, nor scorn,
Its joys and griefs alike resign.

Lassie wi' the Lintwhite Locks

Tune—"Rothemurche's Rant."

Chorus.

Lassie wi' the lintwhite locks,
Bonie lassie, artless lassie,
Wilt thou wi' me tent the flocks,
Wilt thou be my dearie O?

Now nature cleeds the flowery lea,
And a' is young and sweet like thee;
O wilt thou share its joys wi' me,
And say thou'lt be my dearie O?
Lassie, &c.

And when the welcome summer-shower
Has cheer'd ilk drooping little flower,
We'll to the breathing woodbine bower
At sultry noon, my dearie O.
Lassie, &c.

When Cynthia lights, wi' silver ray,
The weary shearer's haward way;
Thro' yellow waving fields we'll stray,
And talk o' love, my dearie O.
Lassie, &c.

And when the howling wint'ry blast
Disturbs my lassie's midnight rest,
Enclasped to my faithful' breast,
I'll comfort thee, my dearie O.
Lassie, &c.
THIS IS NO MY AIN LASSIE.

Tune—"This is no my ain house"

CHORUS.

O this is no my ain lassie,
Fair tho' the lassie be;
O weel ken I my ain lassie,
Kind love is in her e'e.

I see a form, I see a face,
Ye weel may wi' the fairest place;
It wants, to me, the witching grace,
The kind love that's in her e'e.
O this, &c.

She's bonie, blooming, straight, and tall,
And lang has had my heart in thrall;
And ay it charms my very saul,
The kind love that's in her e'e.
O this, &c.

A thief sae pawkie is my Jean,
To steal a blink by a' unseen;
But gleg as light are lovers' een,
When kind love is in the e'e,
O this, &c.

It may escape the courtly sparks,
It may escape the learned clerks;
But weel the watching lover marks
The kind love that's in her e'e.
O this, &c.

JESSY.

Tune—"Here's a health to them that's awa, honey.

CHORUS.

Here's a health to ane I lo'e dear,
Here's a health to ane I lo'e dear;
Thou art sweet as the smile when fond lovers meet.
And soft as their parting tear—Jessy!
POEMS,

Altho' thou maun never be mine,
Altho' even hope is denied;
Tis sweeter for thee despairing,
Than aught in the world beside—Jessy!
Here's, &c.

I mourn thro' the gay, gaudy day,
As hopeless I muse on thy charms;
But welcome the dream o' sweet slumber,
For then I am lock'd in thy arms—Jessy!
Here's, &c.

I guess by the dear angel smile,
I guess by the love-rolling e'e;
But why urge the tender confession
'Gainst fortune's fell cruel decree—Jessy!
Here's, &c.

THE BIRKS OF ABERFELDY.

CHORUS.

Bonie lassie, will ye go, will ye go, will ye go,
Bonie lassie, will ye go to the birks of Aberfeldy?

Now simmer blinks on flowery braes,
And o'er the crystal streamlet plays,
Come, let us spend the lightsome days
In the birks of Aberfeldy.

Bonie lassie, &c.

While o'er their heads the hazels hing,
The little birdies blithely sing,
Or lightly flit on wanton wing
In the birks of Aberfeldy.

Bonie lassie, &c.

The braes ascend like lofty wa's,
The foaming stream deep-roaring fa's,
O'er-hung wi' fragrant spreading shaws,
The birks of Aberfeldy.

Bonie lassie, &c.

The hoary cliffs are crown'd wi' flowers,
White o'er the linnis the burnie pours,
And, rising, weets wi' misty showers
The birks of Aberfeldy.

Bonie lassie, &c.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Let Fortune's gifts at random flee,
They ne'er shall draw a wish frae me,
Supremely blest wi' love and thee,
In the birks of Aberfeldy.
Bonie lassie, &c.

THE ROSE-BUD

A rose-bud by my early walk,
Adown a corn-enclosed bawk,
She gently bent its thorny stalk,
All on a dewy morning.

Ere twice the shades o' dawn are fled,
In a' its crimson glory spread,
And drooping rich the dewy head,
It scents the early morning.

Within the bush, her covert nest,
A little linnet fondly prest,
The dew sat chillly on her breast
Sae early in the morning.

She soon shall see her tender brood,
The pride, the pleasure o' the wood,
Amang the fresh green leaves bedew'd,
Awake the early morning.

So thou, dear bird, young Jenny fair,
On trembling string or vocal air,
Shall sweetly pay the tender care
That tents thy early morning.

So thou, sweet rose-bud, young and gay,
Shall beauteous blaze upon the day,
And bless the parent's evening ray
That watch'd thy early morning.

PEGGY'S CHARMS.

Tune—"N. Gow's Lamentation for Abercairn."

Where braving angry winter's storms,
The lofty Ochels rise,
Far in their shade my Peggy's charms,
First blest my wondering eyes.

Vol. II. L
POEMS,

As one who by some savage stream,
A lonely gem surveys,
Astonish'd, doubly marks its beam,
With art's most polish'd blaze.

Blest be the wild sequester'd shade,
And blest the day and hour,
Where Peggy's charms I first survey'd,
When first I felt their power.

The tyrant Death with grim control
May seize my fleeting breath;
But tearing Peggy from my soul
Must be a stronger death.

THE BLISSFUL DAY.

Tune—"Seventh of November."

The day returns, my bosom burns,
The blissful day we twa did meet,
Tho' winter wild in tempest toil'd,
Ne'er summer sun was half so sweet.

Than a' the pride that loads the tide,
And crosses o'er the sultry line;
Than kingly robes, than crowns and globes,
Heaven gave me more, it made thee mine.

While day and night can bring delight,
Or nature aught of pleasure give;
While joys above, my mind can move,
For thee, and thee alone, I live!

When that grim foe of life below
Comes in between to make us part;
The iron hand that breaks our band,
It breaks my bliss—it breaks my heart.

CONSTANCY.

Tune—"My love is lost to me."

O, were I on Parnassus' hill!
Or had of Helicon my fill;
That I might catch poetic skill,
To sing how dear I love thee.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

But Nith maun be my Muse's well,
My Muse maun be thy bonie sel:
On Corsincon I'll glowr and spell,
And write how dear I love thee.

Then come, sweet Muse, inspire my lay!
For a' the lee-lang simmer's day,
I couldna sing, I couldna say,
How much, how dear I love thee.

I see thee dancing o'er the green,
Thy waist sae jimp, thy limbs sae clean,
Thy tempting lips, thy roguish e'en—
By heaven and earth, I love thee!

By night, by day, a-field, at hame,
The thoughts o' thee my breast inflame;
And ay I muse and sing thy name,
I only live to love thee.

Though I were doom'd to wander on,
Beyond the sea, beyond the sun,
Till my last weary sand was run;
Till then—and then I love thee.

LOVELY JEAN.

Tune—"Miss Admiral Gordon's Strathspey"

Op a' the airts the wind can blow,
I dearly like the west,
For there the bonie lassie lives,
The lassie I lo'e best:
There wild woods grow, and rivers row,
And monie a hill between;
But day and night, my fancy's flight
Is ever wi' my Jean.

I see her in the dewy flowers,
I see her sweet and fair:
I hear her in the tuneful' birds,
I hear her charm the air:
There's not a bonie flower that springs
By fountain, shaw, or green;
There's not a bonie bird that sings,
But minds me o' my Jean.
POEMS,

THE BLUE-EYED LASSIE.

I gae'd a waefu' gate yestreen,
A gate, I fear, I'll dearly rue:
I gat my death frae twa sweet een,
Twa lovely een o' bonie blue.
'Twas not her golden ringlets bright;
Her lips like roses wat wi' dew,
Her heaving bosom, lily white;
It was her een sae bonie blue.

She talk'd, she smil'd, my heart she wyl'd,
She charm'd my soul, I wist na how;
And ay the sound, the deadly wound,
Cam frae her een sae bonie blue.

But spare to speak, and spare to speed;
She'll aiblins listen to my vow;
Should she refuse, I'll lay my dead
To her twa een sae bonie blue.

WILT THOU BE MY DEARIE?

Wilt thou be my dearie?
When sorrow wrings thy gentle heart,
O wilt thou let me cheer thee?
By the treasure of my soul,
And that's the love I bear thee!
I swear and vow that only thou
Shall ever be my dearie.
Only thou, I swear and vow,
Shall ever be my dearie.

Lassie, say thou lo'es me;
Or, if thou wilt na be my ain,
Say na thou'lt refuse me:
If it winna, canna be,
Thou for thine may choose me;
Let me, lassie, quickly die,
Trusting that thou lo'es me.

Lassie, let me quickly die,
Trusting that thou lo'es me.

LUCY.

Oh, what ye wha's in yon town,
Ye see the e'enin sun upon?
The fairest dame is in yon town
The e'enin sun is shining on.

Now haply down yon gay green shaw,
She wanders by yon spreading tree,
How blest ye flowers that round her blaw,
Ye catch the glances o' her e'e.

How blest ye birds that round her slung,
And welcome in the blooming year,
And doubly welcome be the spring,
The season to my Lucy dear.

The sun blinks blithe on yon town,
And on yon bonie braes of Ayr:
But my delight in yon town,
And dearest bliss, is Lucy fair

Without my love, not a' the charms
O' Paradise could yield me joy;
But gie me Lucy in my arms,
And welcome Lapland's dreary sky.

My cave wad be a lover's bower,
Tho' raging winter rent the air;
And she a lovely little flower,
That I wad tent and shelter there.

O sweet is she in yon town,
Yon sinking sun's gaen down upon:
A fairer than's in yon town,
His setting beams ne'er shone upon.

If angry fate is sworn my foe,
And suffering I am doom'd to bear;
I careless quit all else below,
But spare me, spare me, Lucy dear.

For while life's dearest blood is warm,
Ae thought frae her shall ne'er depart,
And she—as fairest is her form,
She has the truest, kindest heart.
POEMS.

BLITHE PHEMIE.

CHORUS.

Blithe, blithe and merry was she;
Blithe by the banks of Ern,
And blithe was she but an' ben;
And blithe in Glentuirit glen.

By Oughtertyre grows the aik,
On Yarrow banks the birken shaw;
But Phemie was a bonier lass
Than braes o' Yarrow ever saw.

Blithe, &c.

Her looks were like a flower in May,
Her smile was like a simmer morn;
She tripped by the banks of Ern,
As light's a bird upon a thorn.

Blithe, &c.

Her bonie face it was as meek
As onie lamb upon a lea;
The evening sun was ne'er sae sweet
As was the blink o' Phemie's e'e.

Blithe, &c.

The Highland hills I've wander'd wide,
And o'er the lowlands I hae been;
But Phemie was the blithest lass
That ever trod the dewy green.

Blithe, &c.

CHARMING NANNIE.

Behind yon hills where Lugar flows,
'Mang moors and mosses many, C,
The wint'ry sun the day has clos'd,
And I'll awa to Nannie, O.

The westlin wind blows loud an' shill;
The night's baith murk and rainy, O;
But I'll get my plaid, an' out I'll steal,
An' owre the hills to Nannie, O.

My Nannie's charming, sweet, an' young;
Nas artiu' wiles to win ye, O;
May ill befa' the flattering tongue
That wad beguile my Nannie, O.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Her face is fair, her heart is true,
As spotless as she's bonie, O:
The op'ning gowan, wet wi' dew,
Nae purer is than Nannie, O.

A country lad is my degree,
An' few there be that ken me, O:
But what care I how few they be,
I'm welcome ay to Nannie, O.

My riches a' 's my penny-fee,
An' I maun guide it cannie, O;
But warl's gear ne'er trouble me,
My thoughts are a' my Nannie, O.

Our auld gudman delights to view
His sheep an' kye thrive bonie, O;
But I'm as blithe that hauds his plough,
An' has nae care but Nannie, O.

Come weal, come wo, I care na by,
I'll tak what flicaven will sen' me, O;
Naeither care in life have I,
But live an' love my Nannie, O.

GREEN GROW THE RUSHES.

A Fragment.

CHORUS.

Green grow the rashes, O!
Green grow the rashes, O!
The sweetest hours that e'er I spent
Are spent amang the lasses, O!

There's nought but care on ev'ry han
In ev'ry hour that passes, O;
What signifies the life o' man,
An' twere na for the lasses, O?
Green grow, &c.

The warly race may riches chase,
An' riches still may fly them, O;
An' tho' at last they catch them fast
Their hearts can ne'er enjoy them, O.
Green grow, &c.
But give me a cannie hour at o’er,
My arms about my dearie, O:
An’ warly cares, an’ warly men.
May a’ gae tapsalteerie, O.
Green grow, &c.

For you sae dune, ye sneer at this,
Ye’re nought but senseless asses, O;
The wisest man the warl’ e’er saw,
He dearly lov’d the lasses, O.
Green grow, &c.

Auld Nature swears, the lovely dears
Her noblest work she classes, O;
Her ’prentice ban’ she tried on man,
An’ then she made the lasses, O.
Green grow, &c.

THE HIGHLAND LASSIE.

Nae gentle dames, tho’ e’er sae fair,
Shall ever be my Muse’s care;
Their titles a’ are empty show,
Gie me my Highland lassie, O.

CHORUS.

Within the glen sae bushy, O,
Aboon the plain sae rushy, O,
I set me down an’ right good will,
To sing my Highland lassie, O.

Oh, were yon hill and vallies mine,
Yon palace and yon gardens fine!
The world then the love should know
I bear my Highland lassie, O.
Within, &c.

But fickle fortune frowns on me,
And I maun cross the raging sea;
But while the crimson currents flow
I’ll love my Highland lassie, O.
Within, &c.

Altho’ thro’ foreign climes I range,
I know her heart will never change,
For her bosom burns with honour’s glow,
My faithful Highland lassie, O.
Within, &c.
For her I'll dare the billows' roar,
For her I'll trace a distant shore,
That Indian wealth may lustre throw
Around my Highland lassie, O.
Within, &c.
She has my heart, she has my hand,
By sacred truth and honour's band,
Till the mortal stroke shall lay me low,
I'm thine, my Highland lassie, O

Farewell the glen sae bushy, O!
Farewell the plain sae rushy, O!
To other lands I now must go,
To sing my Highland lassie, O.

ANNA.

Tune—'Banks of Dana.'

Yestreen I had a pint o' wine,
A place where body saw na:
Yestreen lay on this breast o' mine
The raven locks of Anna.

The hungry Jew, in wilderness,
Rejoicing o'er his manna,
Was naething to my honey bliss
Upon the lips of Anna.

Ye monarchs, take the east and west,
Frac Indus to Savannah,
Gie me within my straining grasp,
The melting form of Anna.

Then I'll despise imperial charms,
An empress or sultana;
While dying raptures, in her arms,
I give and take with Anna.

Awa, thou flaunting god of day!
Awa, thou pale Diana!
Ilk star gae hide thy twinkling ray,
When I'm to meet my Anna.

Come in thy raven plumage, Night!
Sun, moon, and stars, withdraw a'!
And bring an angel pen to write
My transport wi' my Anna.
THE SPINNING-WHEEL.

O leeze me on my spinning wheel,
O leeze me on my rock and reel;
Frae tap to tae that clacks me bien,
And haps me fiel and warm at e'en!
I'll set me down and sing and spin,
While laigh descends the simmer sin,
Blest wi' content, and milk and meal—
O leeze me on my spinning wheel.

On ilka hand the burnies trot,
And meet below my theekit cot;
The scented birk and hawthorn white
Across the pool their arms unite,
Alike to screen the birdie's nest,
And little fishes' caller rest:
The sun blinks kindly in the biel,
Where blithe I turn my spinning wheel.

On lofty aiks the cudhats wail,
And echo coms the dolfu' tale;
The hazel whites in the hazel braes
Delighted, rival flier's lays:
The craik amang the claver hay,
The pa'trick whirrin o'er the ley,
The swallow jinkin round my stiel
Amuse me at my spinning wheel.

Wi' sma' to sell, and less to buy,
Aboon distress, below envy,
O wha wad leave this humble state,
For a' the pride of a' the great?
Amid their flaring, idle toys,
Amid their cumbrous, dinsoine joys,
Can they the peace and pleasure feel
Of Bessy at her spinning wheel?

THE COUNTRY LASSIE.

In simmer, when the hay was mawn,
And corn wav'd green in ilka field,
While claver blooms white o'er the lea,
And roses blaw in ilka bield.
Blithe Bessie in the milking shiel,
Says, I'll be wed, come o't what will;
Out spak a dame in wrinkled eild,
O guid advisement comes nae ill.

Its ye ha' wooers monie ane,
And lassie, ye're but young ye ken;
Then wait a wee, and cannie wale,
A routlie butt, a routlie ben:

There's Johnnie o' the Buskie-glen,
Fu' is his barn, fu' is his bye;
Tak this frae me, my bonie hen,
Its plenty beets the luver's fire.

For Johnnie o' the Buskie-glen,
I dinna care a single flie;
He lo'es sae wee his craps and kye,
He has no luve to spare for me:

But blithe's the blink o' Robie's e'e,
And weel I wad he lo'es me dear:
Ae blink o' him I wad nae gie
For Buskie-glen and a' his gear.

O thoughtless lassie, life's a faught:
The canniest gate, the strife is sair;
But ay fu' han't is fechtin best,
A hungry care's an unco care:

But some will spend, and some will spare,
An' willfu' folk maun hae their will;
Syne as ye brew, my maiden fair,
Keep mind that ye maun drink the yill.

O, gear will buy me rigs o' land,
And gear will buy me sheep and kye;
But the tender heart o' lesosome love,
The gowd and siller canna buy:

We may be poor—Robie and I,
Light is the burden love lays on;
Content and luve brings peace and joy,
What mair hae queens upon a throne?

---

Tam Glen.

My heart is a breaking, dear Tittie,
Some counsel unto me come len';
To anger them a' is a pity,
But what will I do wi' Tam Glen?
I'm thinking, wi' sc a braw fello',
In poorith I might make a ten';
What care I in riches to wallow,
If I maun marry Tam Glen?

There's Lowrie the laird o' Drumeller,
"Guid day to you, brute!" he comes ben
He brags an' he blaws o' his siller,
But when will he dance like Tam Glen?

My minnie does constantly deave me,
And bids me beware o' young men;
They flatter, she says, to deceive me;
But wha can think sae o' Tam Glen?

My daddie says, gin I'll forsake him,
He'll gie me guld hunder marks ten;
But if it's ordain'd I maun tak him,
O wha will I get but Tam Glen?

Yestreen at the Valentine's dealing,
My heart to my mou gled a sten;
For thrice I drew ane without failing,
And thrice it was written Tam Glen.

The last Halloween I was waukin
My droukit sark-sleeve, as ye ken:
His likeness cam up the house staunkin,
And the very gray breeks o' Tam Glen!

Some counsel, dear Tittle, don't tarry;
I'll gie ye my bonie black hen,
Gif ye will advise me to marry
The lad I lo'e dearly, Tam Glen.

ANE-AND-TWENTY.

_Tune—"The Muddlewort."

CHORUS.

_An' O, for ane-and-twenty, Tam!_
_An' hey, sweet ane-and-twenty, Tam!_
I'll learn my kin a rattlin sang;
_An' I saw ane-and-twenty, Tam!_
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

They snool me sair, and hant me down,
And gar me look like bluntie, Tam!
But three short years will soon wheel roun' And then comes ane-and-twenty, Tam.
      An' O, &c.

A gleib o' lan', a claut o' gear,
Was left me by my auntie, Tam!
At kith or kin I need na spier,
An' I saw ane-and-twenty, Tam.
      An' O, &c.

They'll hae me wed a wealthy coof,
The I mysel hae plenty, Tam!
But hear'st thou, laddie, there's my loof,
I'm thine at ane-and-twenty, Tam.
      An' O, &c.

SOMEBODY.

My heart is sair, I dare na tell,
My heart is sair for somebody!
I could wake a winter night
For the sake o' somebody.
      Oh-hon! for somebody!
      Oh-hey! for somebody!
I could range the world around,
For the sake o' somebody.

Ye powers that smile on virtuous love,
O, sweetly smile on somebody!
Fae ilka danger keep him free,
And send me safe my somebody.
      Oh-hon! for somebody!
      Oh-hey! for somebody!
I wad do—what wad I not?—
For the sake o' somebody!

O WHISTLE, &c.

CHORUS.

O whistle, and I'll come to you, my lad;
O whistle, and I'll come to you, my lad;
The' father and mither and a' should gae mad,
O whistle, and I'll come to you, my lad.
POEMS,

But warily tent, when ye come to court me,
And come na unless the back-yett be a-jee;
Syne up the back-stile, and let naebody see,
And come as ye were na comin at me.
And come, &c.

O whistle, &c.

At kirk, or at market, whene'er ye meet me,
Gang by me as tho' that ye car'd na a flie;
But steal me a blink o' your bonie black e'e,
Yet look as ye were na lookin at me.
Yet look, &c.

O whistle, &c.

Ay vow and protest that yo care na for me,
And whyles ye may lightly my beauty a wee;
But court na anither, tho' jokin ye be,
For fear that she wyle your fancy frae me.
For fear, &c.

O whistle, &c.

THE YOUNG LASSIE.

What can a young lassie, what shall a young lassie,
What can a young lassie do wi' an auld man?
Bad luck on the pennie that tempted my minnie
To sell her poor Jennie for siller an' lan!

Bad luck on the penny, &c.

He's always compleenin frae mornin to e'enin,
He hosts and he hirpes the weary day lang;
He's doyit and he's dozin, his bluid it is frozen,
O, dreary's the night wi' a crazy auld man!

He hums and he hankers, he frets and he cankers,
I never can please him, do a' that I can;
He's peevish and jealous of a' the young fellows,
O, dool on the day I met wi' an auld man!

My auld auntie Katie upon me taks pity,
I'll do my endeavour to follow her plan;
I'll cross him, and wrack him, until I heart break him,
And then his auld brass will buy me a new pan.
MY TOCHER'S THE JEWEL.

O MEIKLE thinks my luve o' my beauty,
And meikle thinks my luve o' my kin;
But little thinks my luve I ken brawlie,
My tocher's the jewel has charms for him.

It's a' for the apple he'll nourish the tree,
It's a' for the honey he'll cherish the bee;
My laddie's meikle in luve wi' the siller,
He canna hae luve to spare for me.

Your proffer o' luve's an airl-penny,
My tocher's the bargain ye wad buy;
But an' ye be crafty, I am cunnin,
Sae ye wad anither your fortune maun try.

Ye're like to the timmer o' yon rotten wood,
Ye're like to the bark o' yon rotten tree,
Ye'll slip frae me like a knotless thread,
And ye'll crack your credit wi' ma' nor me.

THE MERCENARY LOVER.

Tune—"Balinamona ora."

AWA wi' your witchcraft o' beauty's alarms,
The slender bit beauty you grasp in your arms,
O, gie me the lass that has acres o' charms,
O, gie me the lass wi' the weel-stockit farms.

CHORUS.

Then hey for a lass wi' a tocher, then hey for a lass wi' a tocher,
Then hey for a lass wi' a tocher; the nice yellow guineas for me.

Your beauty's a flower, in the morning that blows,
And withers the faster, the faster it grows;
But the rapturous charm o' the bonie green knowes,
Ilk spring they're new deckit wi' bonie white yowes,
Then hey, &c.

And e'en when this beauty your bosom has blest,
The brightest o' beauty may cloy when possesst!
But the sweet yellow darlings wi' Geordie impress,
The langer ye hae them—the mair they're carnest,
Then hey, &c.
MEG O' THE MILL.

_Air—“O bonie lass, will you lie in a barrack?"

O ken ye what Meg o' the Mill has gotten?
An' ken ye what Meg o' the Mill has gotten?
She has gotten a coof wi' a claut o' siller,
And broken the heart o' the barley Miller.

The Miller was strappan, the Miller was ruddy!
A heart like a lord, and a hue like a lady;
The laird was a widdiefu', bleerit knurl;
She's left the guld fellow and taen the churl.

The Miller he hecht her a heart leal and loving;
The laird did address her wi' matter mair moving,
A fine pacing horse wi' a clear chained bridle,
A whip by her side and a bonie side-saddle.

O wae on the siller, it is sae prevailing;
And wae on the love that is fixed on a mailen!
A tocher's nae word in a true lover's parle,
But, gie me my love, and a fig for the war!

AULD ROB MORRIS.

There's auld Rob Morris that wins in yon glen,
He's the king o' guid fellows, and wale of auld men;
He has gowd in his coffers, he has owsen and kine,
And ae bonie lassie, his darling and mine.

She's fresh as the morning, the fairest in May;
She's sweet as the ev'ning amang the new hay;
As blithe and as artless as the lambs on the lea,
And dear to my heart as the light to my e'e.

But oh! she's an heiress, auld Robin's a laird,
And my daddie has nought but a cot-house, and yard;
A wooer like me mauna hope to come speed,
The wounds I must hide that will soon be my dead.

The day comes to me, but delight brings me nane;
The night comes to me, but my rest it is gane;
I wander my lane like a night-troubled ghast,
And I sigh as my heart it wad burst in my breast.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

O, had she but been of lower degree,
I then might hae hop'd she wad smil'd upon me:
O, how past describing had then been my bliss,
As now my distraction no words can express.

TO TIBBIE.

Tune—"Invercauld's Reel."

CHORUS.

O Tibbie, I hae seen the day,
Ye would nae been sae shy;
For laik o' gear ye lightly me,
But trowth I care na by.

YESTREEN I met you on the moor,
Ye spak na, but gaed by like stoure:
Ye geck at me because I'm poor,
But fient a hair care I.
   O Tibbie, &c.

I doubt na, lass, but ye may think,
Because ye hae the name o' clink,
That ye can please me at a wink,
Whene'er ye like to try.
   O Tibbie, &c.

But sorrow tak him that's sae mean,
Altho' his pouch o' coin were clean,
Wha follows any saucy quean
That looks sae proud and high.
   O Tibbie, &c.

Altho' a lad were e'er sae smart,
If that he want the yellow dirt,
Ye'll cast your head anither airt,
And answer him fu' dry.
   O Tibbie, &c.

But if he hae the name o' gear,
Ye'll fasten to him like a brier,
Tho' hardly he, for sense or lear,
Be better than the kye.
   O Tibbie, &c.

Voz. II.  M
POEMS,

But Tibbie, lass, tak my advice,
Your daddie's gear mak's you sae nice,
The deaf a' wad spier your price,
Were ye as poor as I.

O Tibbie, &c.

There lives a lass in yonder park,
I would na gie her in her sark,
For thee wi' a' thy thousand mark:
Ye needna look sae high.

O Tibbie, &c.

DUNCAN GRAY.

Duncan Gray came here to woo,
Ha, ha, the wooing o't,
On ban the yule night when we were fa
Ha, ha, the wooing o't,
Maggie coost her head fu' high,
Look'd askent and unco' skeigh,
Gart poor Duncan stand abeigh:
Ha, ha, the wooing o't.

Duncan fleech'd and Duncan pray'd:
Ha, ha, &c.
Meg was deaf as Ailsa craig,
Ha, ha, &c.
Duncan sigh'd baith out and in,
Grat his een baith bleer't and blin',
Spak o' looping o'er a linn;
Ha, ha, &c.

Time and chance are but a tide,
Ha, ha, &c.
Slighted love is sair to bide,
Ha, ha, &c.
Shall I, like a fool, quoth he,
For a haughty hizzie die!
She may gae to—France for me!
Ha, ha, &c.

How it comes let doctors tell,
Ha, ha, &c.
Meg grew sick—as he grew beal,

THE BRAW WOOER.

Tune—"The Lothian Lassie."

LAST May a braw wooer cam down the lang glen,
    And sair wi' his love he did deave me!
I said there was naething I hated like men,
The deuce gae wi'm to believe me; believe me,
The deuce gae wi'm, to believe me.

He spak o' the darts in my bonie black e'en,
    And vow'd for my love he was dying;
I said he might die when he liked, for Jean;
The Lord forgie me for lying, for lying,
The Lord forgie me for lying.

A well-stocked mailen, himsel for the laird,
    And marriage aff-hand, were his proffers;
I never loot on that I kenn'd it, or car'd,
But thought I might hae waur offers, waur offers,
But thought I might hae waur offers.

But what wad ye think, in a fortnight or less,
The deil tak his taste to gae near her!
He up the lang loan to my black cousin Bess,
    Guess ye how, the jad! I could bear her, could bear her,
Guess ye how, the jad! I could bear her.

But a' the niest week as I fretted wi' care,
    I gaed to the tryste o' Dalgarnock,
And wha but my fine, fickle lover was there;
I glow'rd as I'd seen a warlock, a warlock,
I glow'rd as I'd seen a warlock.

But owre my left shouther I gaed him a blink,
    Lest neebors might say I was saucy;
My wooer he caper'd as he'd been in drink,
    And vow'd I was his dear lassie, dear lassie,
And vow'd I was his dear lassie.
I spier'd for my cousin, fin' couthe and sweet,
Gin she had recover'd her hearin,
And how her new shoon fit her auld shackl't feet,
But, heavens! how he fell a-swearin, a-swearin,
He begg'd for Gudesake! I wad be his wife,
Or else I wad kill him wi' sorrow:
So e'en to preserve the poor body in life,
I think I maun wed him to-morrow, to-morrow,
I think I maun wed him to-morrow.

WILLIE'S WIFE.

WILLIE WASTLE dwelt on Tweed,
The spot they ca'd it Linkumdoddie,
Willie was a webster guid,
Cou'd stown a clue wi' onie bodie:
He had a wife was dour and din,
O tinkler Madgie was her mother;

CHORUS.

*Sic a wife as Willie had,
I wad na gie a button for her.*

She has an e'e, she has but ane,
The cat has twa the very colour;
Five rusty teeth, forbye a stump,
A clapper tongue wad deave a miller:
A whiskin beard about her mou,
Her nose and chin they threaten ither.
Sic a wife, &c.

She's bough-hough'd, she's hein-shinn'd,
Ae limpin leg a hand-breed shorter;
She's twisted right, she's twisted left,
To balance fair in ilka quarter:
She has a hump upon her breast,
The twin o' that upon her shouther;
Sic a wife, &c.

Auld baudron by the ingle sits,
An wi' her loof her face a washin;
But Willie's wife is nae sae trig,
She dights her grunzie wi' a bushion;
Her walle nieves like midden-creels,
Her face wad fyle the Logan-water,
Sic a wife, &c.

A PECK O' MAUT.

O, WILLIE brew'd a peck o' maut,
And Rob and Allan cam to see;
Three blither hearts, that lee-lang night,
Ye wad na find in Christendie.

CHORUS.

_We are na fou, we're na that fou,
But just a drappie in our e'e;
The cock may crow, the day may daw,
And ay we'll taste the barley bree._

Here are we met, three merry boys,
Three merry boys I trow are we;
And monie a night we've merry been,
And monie mae we hope to be!

We are, &c.

It is the moon, I ken her horn,
That's blinkin in the lift sae bie;
She shines sae bright to wyle us hame,
But by my sooth she'll wait a wee!

We are, &c.

Wha first shall rise to gang awa',
A cuckold, coward loun is he!
Wha last beside his chair shall fa',
He is the king amang us three!

We are, &c.

THE LAWIN.

GAN is the day and milk's the night,
But we'll ne'er stray for foue o' light,
For ale and brandy's stars and moon,
And bluid-red wine's the rising sun.

CHORUS.

Then, guidwife, count the laisin', the laisin', the laisin',
Then, guidwife, count the laisin', and bring a coggie mair.
There's wealth and ease for gentlemen,
And simple folk maun fecht and fen';
But here we're a' in an accord,
For likka man that's drunk's a lord.
Then guidwife, &c.

My coggie is a haly pool,
That heals the wounds o' care and dool;
And pleasure is a wanton trout,
An' ye drink it a' ye'll find him out,
Then guidwife, &c.

HONEST POVERTY.

Is there, for honest poverty,
That hangs his head, and a' that;
The coward-slave, we pass him by,
We dare be poor for a' that!

For a' that, and a' that,
Our toil's obscure, and a' that,
The rank is but the guinea's stamp,
The man's the gowd for a' that.

What tho' on hamely fare we dine,
Wear hoddin gray, and a' that;
Gie fools their eilk, and knaves their wine,
A man's a man for a' that;

For a' that, and a' that,
Their tinsel show and a' that;
The honest man, tho' e'er sue poor,
Is king o' men for a' that.

Ye see yon birkie, ca'd a lord,
Wha struts, and stares, and a' that;
The hundreds worship at his word,
He's but a coof for a' that:

For a' that, and a' that,
His riband, star, and a' that,
The man of independent mind,
He looks and laughs at a' that.

A prince can mak a belted knight,
A marquis, duke, and a' that;
But an honest man's aboon his might
Guld faith he maun fa' that!
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

For a' that, and a' that,
Their dignities and a' that,
The pith o' sense and pride o' worth,
Are higher ranks than a' that.

Then let us pray that come it may,
As come it will for a' that,
That sense and worth, o'er a' the earth,
May bear the gree, and a' that:
For a' that, and a' that,
Its coming yet, for a' that,
That man to man the ward o'er,
Shall brothers be for a' that.

CONTENTMENT.

Tune—"Lumps o' Pudding."

CONTENTED wi' little, and cantie wi' mair,
Whene'er I forgather wi' sorrow and care,
I gle them a skelp, as they're creeping alang,
Wi' a cog o' guid swats, and an auld Scottish sang.
I whyles claw the elbow o' troublesome thought;
But man is a sodger, and life is a fought:
My mirth and guid humour are coin in my pouch,
And my Freedom's my lairdship nae monarch dare touch.
A towmond o' trouble, should that be my fa',
A night o' good fellowship sowthers it a':
When at the blithe end o' our journey at last,
Wha the devil ever thinks o' the road he has past?
Blind chance, let her snapper and stoyte on her way,
Be't to me, be't fae me, e'en let the jade gae;
Come ease, or come travaill; come pleasure or pain;
My worst ward is—"Welcome, and welcome again!"

CALEDONIA.

Tune—"Humours of Glen."

Their groves o' sweet myrtle let foreign lands reckon,
Where bright beaming summers exalt the perfume,
Far dearer to me yon lone glen o' green breckan,
Wit' the burn stealing under the lang yellow broom.
POEMS,

Far dearer to me are yon humble broom bowers,
Where the blue-bell and gowan lurk lowly unseen:
For there lightly tripping among the wild flowers,
A listening the linnet, a'it wanders my Jean.

Tho' rich is the breeze in their gay sunny valleys,
And cauld Caledonia's blast on the wave:
Their sweet-scented woodlands that skirt the proud palace,
What are they? The haunt of the tyrant and slave:

The slave's spicy forests, and gold-bubbling fountains,
The brave Caledonian views with disdain:
He wanders as free as the winds of his mountains,
Save love's willing fetters, the chains o' his Jean.

THE BATTLE OF SHERIFF-MUIR,

Between the Duke of Argyll and the Earl of Mar.

O can ye here the fight to shun,
Or herd the sheep wi' me, man?
Or were ye at the Shorra-muir,
And did the battle see, man?
I saw the battle sair and tough,
And recking-red ran monie a sheur'il,
My heart, for fear, gas sough for sough,
To hear the thuds, and see the cluds,
O' clans frae woods in tartan duds,
Wha glaum'd at kingdoms three, man.

The red-coat lads, wi' black cockades,
To meet them were na slack, man;
They rush'd and push'd, and blood outgush'd,
And monie a bonk did fa', man:
The great Argyle led on his files,
I wait they glanced twenty miles;
They hack'd and hash'd, while broad-swords clash'd,
And thro' they dash'd, and hew'd and smash'd,
Till fey-men died awa, man.

But had ye seen the Philibegs,
And skyrin tartan trews, man,
When in the teeth they dar'd our whig's,
And covenant true blues, man;
In lines extended lang and large,
When bayonets oppos'd the targe

And straught to Sterling wing’d their flight;
But, cursed lot! the gates were shut,
And monie a huntit poor red-coat,

My sister Kate cam up the gate,
Wi’ crowdie unto me, man;
She swore she saw some rebels run
Frae Perth unto Dundee, man:
Their left-hand general had rae skill,
The Angus lads had nae good will
That day their neebers’ bluid to spill;
For fear by foes that they should lose
Their cogs o’ brose: all crying woes,
And so it goes, you see, man.

They’ve lost some gallant gentlemen,
Aman’g the Highland clans, man;
I fear my lord Panmure is slain,
Or fallen in whiggish hands, man:
Now wad ye sing this double fight,
Some fell for wrang and some for right;
But monie bade the world guid-night;
Then ye may tell, how pell and mells,
By red claymores, and muskets’ knell,
Wi’ dying yell, the tortes fell,
And whigs to hell did flee, man.

THE DUMFRIES VOLUNTEERS.

Tune—“Push about the Jorum.”
Does haughty Gaul invasion threat?
Then let the loons beware, Sir,
There’s wooden walls upon our seas,
And volunteers on shore, Sir.
POEMS,

The Nith shall run to Corsincon,*
And Critfield sink in Solway,
Ere we permit a foreign foe
On British ground to rally!
Fall de rall, &c.

O let us not like snarling tykes
In wrangling be divided;
Till slap come in an unco loun
And wi' a rung decide it.
Be Britain still to Britain true
Amang oursel's united;
For never but by British hands
Maun British wrangs be righted.

THE WHISTLE:

A BALLAD.

As the authentic prose history of the Whistle is curious, I shall here give it.

In the train of Anne of Denmark, when she came to Scotland with our James the Sixth, there came over also a Danish gentleman of gigantic stature and great prowess, and a matchless champion of Bacchus. He had a little ebony Whistle, which, at the commencement of the orgies, he laid on the table, and whoever was last able to blow it, every body else being disabled by the potency of the bottle, was to carry off the Whistle as a trophy of victory. The Dane produced credentials of his victories, without a single defeat, at the courts of Copenhagen, Stockholm, Moscow, Warsaw, and severals of the petty courts in Germany; and challenged the Scots Bacchanalians to the alternative of trying his prowess, or else of acknowledging their inferiority.

After many overthrowes on the part of the Scots, the Dane was encountered by Sir Robert Lawrie of Maxwclton, ancestor of the present worthy baronet of that name; who, after three days and three nights' hard contest, left the Scandina- vian under the table,

And blew on the whistle his requiem shrill.

Sir Walter, son to Sir Robert before-mentioned, afterwards lost the Whistle to Walter Riddel of Glenriddel, who had married a sister of Sir Walter's.

On Friday the 16th of October, 1790, at Friars-Carse, the Whistle was once more contended for, as related in the ballad, by the present Sir Robert Lawrie of Maxwclton; Robert Riddel, Esq. of Glenriddel, lineal descendant and representative of Walter Riddel, who won the Whistle, and in whose family it Lad continued; and Alexander Ferguson, Esq. of Craig- darroch, likewise descendant of the great Sir Robert; which last gentleman carried off the hard won honour of the field.

I sing of a Whistle, a Whistle of worth, I sing of a Whistle, the pride of the north, Was brought to the court of our good Scottish king, And long with this Whistle all Scotland shall ring.

Old Loda still rueing the arm of Fingal, The god of the bottle sends down from his hall— "This Whistle's your challenge, to Scotland get o'er, And drink them to hell, Sir! or ne'er see me more!"

Old poets have sung, and old chronicles tell, What champions ventur'd, what champions fell; The son of great Loda was conqueror still, And blow on the Whistle his requiem shrill.

Till Robert, the Lord of the Cairn and the Scaur, Unmatch'd at the botle, unconquer'd in war, He drank his poor god-ship as deep as the sea, No tide of the Baltic o'er drunker than he

* See Ossian's Caric-thura.
Thus Robert, victorious, the trophy has gain'd:
Which now in his house has for ages remain'd;
Till three noble chieftains, and all of his blood,
The jovial contest again have renew'd.

Three joyous good fellows, with hearts clear of flaw
Craigdarroch, so famous for wit, worth, and law;
And trusty Glenriddel, so skill'd in old coims;
And gallant Sir Robert, deep-read in old wines.

Craigdarroch began, with a tongue smooth as oil,
Desiring Glenriddel to yield up the spoil;
Or else he would muster the heads of the clan,
And once more, in claret, try which was the man.

"By the gods of the ancients!" Glenriddel replies,
"Before I surrender so glorious a prize,
I'll conjure the ghost of the great Rorie More,*
And bumper his horn with him twenty times o'er."

Sir Robert, a soldier, no speech would pretend,
But he ne'er turn'd his back on his foe—or his friend,
Said, toss down the Whistle, the prize of the field,
And kneo-deep in claret, he'd die, or he'd yield.

To the board of Glenriddel our heroes repair,
So noted for drowning of sorrow and care;
But for wine and for welcome not more known to fame,
Than the sense, wit, and taste, of a sweet lovely dams.

A Bard is selected to witness the fray,
And tell future ages the feats of the day;
A Bard who detested all sadness and spleen,
And wish'd that Parnassus a vineyard had been.

The dinner being over, the claret they ply,
And every new cork is a new spring of joy;
In the bands of old friendship and kindred so set,
And the bands grew the lighter the more they were wet.

Gay pleasure ran riot as bumpers ran o'er:
Bright Phoebus ne'er witness'd so joyous a core,
And vow'd that to leave them he was quite forlorn,
Till Cynthia hinted he'd see them next morn.

Six bottles a-piece had well wore out the night,
When gallant Sir Robert, to finish the fight,
Tura'd o'er in one bumper a bottle of red,
And swore 'twas the way that their ancestor did.

* See Johnson's Tour to the Hebrides.
CHIEFLY SCOTTISH.

Then worthy Glenriddel, so cautious and sage,
No longer the warfare, ungodly, would wage;
A high ruling Elder to wallow in wine!
He left the foul business to folks less divine.
The gallant Sir Robert fought hard to the end;
But who can with fate and quart-bumpers contend?
The' fate said—a hero should perish in light;
So up rose bright Phœbus—and down fell the knight.
Next up rose our Bard, like a prophet in drink:
"Craigdarroch, thou'lt soar when creation shall sink;
But if thou would flourish immortal in rhyme,
Come—one bottle more—and have at the sublime!
Thy line, that have struggled for freedom with Bruce,
Shall heroes and patriots ever produce:
So thine be the laurel, and mine be the bay;
The field thou hast won, by yon bright god of day!"

JOHN BARLEYCORN.*

A BALLAD.

There went three kings into the east,
Three kings both great and high,
An' they hae sworn a solemn oath,
John Barleycorn should die.
They took a plough and plough'd him down,
Put clods upon his head,
And they hae sworn a solemn oath
John Barleycorn was dead.
But the cheerful spring came kindly on,
And showers began to fall;
John Barleycorn got up again,
And sore surprised them all.
The sultry suns of summer came,
And he grew 'chick and strong,
His head weel arm'd wi' pointed spears,
That no one should him wrong.
The sober autumn enter'd mild,
When he grew wan and pale,
His bending joints and drooping head
Show'd he began to fail.

* This is partly composed on the plan of an old song known by the same name.
His colour sicken'd more and more,
He faded into age,
And then his enemies began
To show their deadly rage.

They've ta'en a weapon long and sharp,
And cut him by the knee:
Then tied him fast upon a cart,
Like a rogue for forgerie.

They laid him down upon his back,
And cudgelled him full sore,
They hung him up before the storm,
And turn'd him o'er and o'er.

They filled up a darksome pit
With water to the brim,
They heaved in John Barleycorn,
There let him sink or swim.

They laid him out upon the floor,
To work him farther wo,
And still as signs of life appeared,
They toss'd him to and fro.

They wasted o'er a scorching flame,
The marrow of his bones;
But a miller used him worst of all,
For he crush'd him between two stones.

And they hae taen his very heart's blood,
And drank it round and round;
And still the more and more they drank,
Their joy did more abound.

John Barleycorn was a hero bold,
Of noble enterprise,
For, if you do but taste his blood,
'Twill make your courage rise.

'Twill make a man forget his wo;
'Twill heighten all his joy;
'Twill make the widow's heart to sing,
Tho' the tear were in her eye.

Then let us toast John Barleycorn,
Each man a glass in hand;
And may his great posterity
Ne'er fall in auld Scotland!
